German Panzer Units Are Reported Poised For Drive on Belgrade

BULLETIN

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, (Thursday) April 3 (AP).—The entire German legation staff, with the exception of the charge d'affaires and military attache, was ordered home to Berlin today in a sudden move interpreted by diplomatic circles as indicating German belief that war with Yugoslavia is inevitable.

The orders were received here in a coded telegram from the German capital at 7:30 a. m. (1:30 a. m., E. S. T.).

Fifty German legation attaches and clerks and two Nazi news agency correspondents were routed from bed and ordered to begin packing immediately when the recall order was received from Berlin.

A legation secretary said an attempt would be made to leave during the day but that "it may be safe to stay as long as evening so we can catch a fast train to Budapest."

Belgrade (Thursday), April 3.—Formidable concentrations of German motorized blitzkrieg units were reported in diplomatic messages early today to be stationed in Rumania just across the frontier from the Yugoslav town of Pela Crkva.

That border point is less than 50 miles from Belgrade.

The report caused alarm in the capital because it would be one of the logical points from which the Germans might launch an attack.

Other diplomatic dispatches said fast German divisions were massing near Szeged, in southern Hungary across from Yugoslavia.

Meanwhile, it was announced secretly-sown Yugoslav mines sank two Yugoslav passenger liners in the Adriatic Sea late yesterday as the ships sped toward home ports in fear of war with the Axis powers.

The vessels were the 1,293-ton Karadjordje and the 1,726-ton Prestolonaslednik Petar, which went down in the Bay of Obrovac, 23 miles east and north of the Italian city of Zara, which is on the Dalmatian shore. All crewmen were saved.

The sinkings disclosed the defensive mining, which apparently had been carried out within the week.

Giving further point to a declaration by the Croat peasant leader, Vladimir Macek, that chances of avoiding war with Germany were slight, Skolpje had an air raid alarm when three foreign planes of undisclosed nationality scouted over that important Vardar Valley city at a great height. Townspeople kept under cover for 8 minutes.

"For all we know," remarked an official, "war may come to us any day this way."

There were reports here that a new Serb-Croat understanding had been reached. This was announced by Dr. August Kosutic, Macek's emissary, as he prepared to return to Zagreb from Belgrade to report to Macek.

An Italian legation spokesman disclosed that "certain conversations" with Yugoslav representatives—intended "to see if any possibilities existed for establishing contact between Belgrade and Rome"—had "attained no result and

'Billy's' Sister

Ruth Mitchell Joins Serb Death Legion

By Robert St. John
Associated Press Staff Writer

Belgrade, April 2.—Ruth Mitchell, who identified herself as a sister of the late American flier, Gen. "Billy" Mitchell, was sworn in today as the first foreign woman ever to join the revolutionary death-defying Comitaji.

Miss Mitchell

She was given a phial of poison, because the Comitaji boasts that no member is ever taken alive, and was made a member of the general staff as a dispatch rider for Kosta Pecanec, the white-bearded leader of the organization.

In the peasant hovel where he lives on the edge of Belgrade with the skeleton of one Comitaji hero, Pecanec received Miss Mitchell, former wife of an Englishman, and initiated her into the secrets of one of the strangest societies of men and women in the world.

(Mrs. Martin Fladoes, of Milwaukee, also a sister of Gen. Mitchell, said Ruth had been in Belgrade for about a year, and that her married name was Mrs. Stanley Knowles. She last heard of her by cable about two months ago. A niece of Miss Mitchell, Mrs. Edward G. Trueblood, lives at 1123 Duke Street, Alexandria, Va.)

Pecanec explained to Miss Mitchell how for 400 years the Comitaji harassed the Turks in guerrilla warfare, and how the same methods will be used if the Germans cross the Yugoslav frontiers.

"We Consider You Dead"

Miss Mitchell watched him cross her name off the list of those who have applied for membership, explaining:

"We just cross the name off, my girl, because we consider you dead when you become one of us. We value our lives as nothing. We may all be dead in a few weeks. I expect to die myself this time. How about you?"

"I am willing, too," Miss Mitchell replied instantly.

"There are 38,000 men and women who wear the Comitaji uniform but several hundred thousands more," Pecanec said, "who are secret members."

Two of these are members of the cabinet of the new premier, Gen. Dusan Simovic, he said.

When war comes the reckless men and women members of the Comitaji go ahead of the army doing espionage work. They are experts in getting information out

Italians, Fearing Massacre by Natives, Offer to Surrender Ethiopia, Swiss Hear

By Daniel T. Brigham
Copyright by New York Times

Bern, April 2.—Reports that the Duke of Aosta, commander of the Italian forces in Ethiopia, had sent emissaries to Gen. Archibald P. Wavell, commander of British forces in the Middle East, by plane to request his terms for surrender on the Ethiopian front, were current in many diplomatic quarters here tonight.

The reports, which could not be confirmed tonight, said that the Italian general had been primarily moved by the increasing danger of native reprisals on the unevacuated civilian white population. It will be recalled that London has recently announced that it was up to the Italians to look to the safety of women and children in potential battle areas there and added that so far as it knew, no such steps had been taken.

The British commander of the forces which entered Diredawa Monday announced his men had arrived in the nick of time to prevent wholesale massacre of white women and children by native Italian troops which had remained behind.

Other considerations which might lead to an Italian surrender immediately are the preponderance of British forces, which are being reinforced daily, the present inability to bring up any Italian reinforcements of men or material, a long, hard road northward to the Tigre district, where some kind of a stand could undoubtedly be made, and last but not least, the imminence of the rainy season, when what little advantage the terrain offers to the defenders will disappear.

Cairo, April 2 (AP)—Between 30,000 and 40,000 Italian soldiers, the beaten remnants of the Fascist army in Eritrea, are fleeing southward toward Addis Ababa, Ethiopian capital, as fast as they can, British military sources said tonight.

[The British radio in a broadcast heard in New York, said the Italians are evacuating Massaua.]

Brazil Demands German Payment For Bombing Ship

Rio de Janeiro, April 2 (AP).—Brazil protested to Germany today against an aerial attack on the Brazilian freighter Taubate in the Mediterranean March 22 and demanded "legal and moral reparations."

The 5,099-ton freighter was reported bombed by German planes 100 miles northwest of Port Said. One man was killed and three wounded. The ship continued her voyage to Alexandria.

Vengeful Mood

Berlin (Thursday), April 3.—Four United States citizens were arrested and held for several hours late Wednesday in what German criminal police admitted might have "some connection with German reprisals" for the United States seizure of Axis ships in American ports.

All the arrests were connected with passport regulations, authorized German quarters stated.

The possibility of the confiscation of United States property in Germany in reprisal for the seizure of German, Italian and Danish ships in United States ports meanwhile was rumored in political quarters as the Reich government prepared a formal answer to the American action.

The German official answer to what is being called "an act of gangsterism" will announce definite German measures, it was said reliably.

"It's not absolutely impossible that the arrests had some connection with reprisals against the confiscation of German ships," the Nazi criminal police admitted, referring to the case of three of the four Americans seized and held in custody for several hours.

But the case of a fourth, John Paul Dickson, a newspaperman from New York, was said to be "quite different," although no further details were divulged.

All four have been long-time residents of Germany.

Dickson was the last of the quartet to obtain his release, after being held from 8:30 until 10:30 p. m.

The others seized on the passport charges were Arthur E. Dunning, permanent secretary of the American Chamber of Commerce in Berlin; a Negro music student from New York named Welsh and an unidentified young man whose home is in California.

Dunning, Welsh and the Californian, arrested yesterday afternoon, were held and questioned about 3 hours.

Dunning said he was arrested at 4:35 p. m. at his home by two uniformed German policemen who first took him to a district precinct station and then to the Alexanderplatz headquarters.

"I was told to pack a bag and prepare to spend at least two or three days away from home," the Chamber of Commerce official said.

On reaching the Alexanderplatz headquarters, Dunning said, he was questioned by police on many per-

Labor Department Action in Milwaukee Walkout Follows 2 Days of Disorders

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

The Department of Labor late last night certified to the National Defense Mediation Board the 71-day-old Allis-Chalmers strike at Milwaukee.

Rioting at the plant which on Tuesday night caused Gov. Julius P. Heil, of Wisconsin, to wire President Roosevelt that the situation was beyond control of State officials, had largely subsided yesterday due to the company's ordering the plant closed again.

However, C. I. O. strikers yesterday demanded that the company also stop the work of 1,700 office employes not involved in the production workers' strike, and set this morning as the deadline for the office stoppage. At the same time, some 200 production workers who wanted to continue at their jobs asked officers to deputize them so they might carry guns and attempt to keep the plant open.

The Milwaukee County C. I. O. Council last night voted a full holiday and parade for 65,000 of its members as "a show of strength" in connection with the Allis-Chalmers tie-up.

In this situation Secretary of Labor Perkins shortly before midnight announced certification of the bitter case to President Roosevelt's new Mediation Board.

Follows Disorders

The strike, involving 7,800 workers, is the sixth to be turned over to the new mediation organization. The certification followed two days of serious disorders after company officials attempted to open the plant in response to a telegraphic request last week from OPM Director Knudsen and Navy Secretary Knox.

Gov. Heil's message to President Roosevelt early yesterday was circulated among defense agencies for study and recommendations. Last night's certification was the result.

Heil who had asked Mr. Roosevelt to take whatever action he deemed "advisable" also had requested the Sixth Corp Area commander for Federal troops after he reported that the situation was out of hand and that State and local police officers were unable to cope with it.

The strike, which began on January 22 following demands of a local C. I. O. auto workers union for "union security," put an end to production on $45,000,000 of defense orders. Most important of these

Woman's Body Found Floating In Tidal Basin

Records of missing persons were being checked last night in an effort to identify the body of a white woman which was found floating in the Tidal Basin yesterday.

The body was discovered by E. J. Johns, of Arlington, Va., near the Jefferson Memorial and was taken from the water by harbor police and transferred to the morgue.

Examination failed to disclose any marks of identification. There were no cards or papers in the woman's pocketbook or coat pockets. No marks of violence were found.

It was said the body apparently had been in the water two or three days.

The woman was described as 55, 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighing about 150 pounds. She had gray hair and was wearing a blue flowered dress, black coat and shoes and tan stockings.

U. S. Freezes Soft Coal Prices; Four Men Slain In Harlan Gun Fight

By the Associated Press

New York, April 2.—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America (C. I. O.), ruled out the possibility today of Federal mediation in the wage dispute and work stoppage in the bituminous coal industry as a spokesman for the mine operators agreed with a Federal conciliator's expressed belief that an agreement soon would be reached and the mines reopened.

Meanwhile, in Washington, the Government ordered the freezing of bituminous coal prices at the March 28 levels, in a move which Leon Henderson, defense price stabilization commissioner, said was taken "to prevent runaway or excessive prices due to the bituminous coal strike."

He said the order would apply to producers, distributors, retailers and "all other sellers" of soft coal.

The negotiators in the coal dispute recessed shortly after midnight until 11 a. m. without comment beyond a statement saying "some progress" had been made and that the conferees were "conscientiously trying to come to an agreement." They had been in session since 4 p. m., with a short time off for dinner.

At Harlan County, Ky., part of the bituminous area, four men were killed and five others wounded at the Crummies Creek coal mine during an outburst of violence in which more than 100 shots were reported to have been fired.

Warns Miners

Speaking at a convention of anthracite miners during a recess in negotiations between union and management in the soft coal industry, Lewis asserted that "we are not going to follow the new formula that the Mediation Board has discovered—of wiring the strikers to go back, bust their strikes, then have them come to Washington to mediate for the remnants of it."

Lewis said that he warned the anthracite miners they were meeting "in advance of another war," and that the union must realize the situation. He added:

"Labor in America, if it is to sustain the Government and defend the country, must be given its rightful part in any increased prosperity, any increased production.

"Oh, Boy, What a Job"

Southern Congressmen whom Lewis described as "labor's enemies" had proposed in Congress, he said, to take away the workers' right to strike in defense industries.

He added that "the time is not here yet and methinks it will not come in America when an act of Congress can make indentured servants out of 45,000,000 American workers."

He said that any political party that would permit such legislation would "be swept from power by an outraged vote."

Lewis pounded the desk as he told the miners that Representative Hatton Sumners, Texas Democrat,

MEDIATION efforts are being speeded by State and Federal officials in an effort to settle the strike at the Ford Motor Co.'s River Rouge plant, where many workers have been injured in picketing clashes.

THE LABOR Department certifies the Allis-Chalmers strike to the National Defense Mediation Board after Gov. Heil of Wisconsin brands the C. I. O. strikers as a "mob."

JOHN L. LEWIS, mineworkers' president, rules out Federal mediation in the wage dispute that has resulted in a work stoppage in the soft coal industry.

House Acts To Probe Arms Setup, Strikes

By John B. Oakes

As protests against defense strikes boiled up on both sides of the Capitol yesterday, a broad-gauge investigation into the rearmament program, including labor stoppages, was approved by the House with but one dissenting vote.

In both House and Senate, demands were voiced for legislation to curb strikes, in the face of President Roosevelt's position that existing machinery, such as the Mediation Board, be given time to prove itself.

However, with the Easter recess about to begin, the only Congressional action yesterday was the formal establishment of two investigating committees in the House.

Meanwhile, the National Defense Mediation Board yesterday chalked up its fourth and fifth victories, when 2,000 striking A. F. of L. workers agreed to go back to their jobs today at the Condenser Corporation, in South Plainfield, N. J., and another 100 men at the opposite edge of the continent promised to resume work on the Snohomish Airport, at Everett, Washington.

The Condenser Corporation strike, pending since March 10, was in the first group of four cases certified to the board last week. The airport strike, which began March 17, was in sympathy to the five-month closure at the Snoqualmie Falls Timber Co., a case certified to the board Tuesday.

Board Chairman Clarence A. Dykstra said that as a result of conferences yesterday between representatives of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and of the Condenser Corporation management, a complete settlement of the dispute had been reached. The company manufactures radio parts vital to Army Signal Corps and aircraft communication equipment.

Dr. Dykstra also announced that conferences yesterday resulted in

Bennett Urges Roosevelt to Quell 'Terroristic' Riots; 200 Hurt, He Says

By the United Press

Dearborn, April 2.—State and Federal officials mediated swiftly tonight to settle the day-old strike of the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers against the Ford Motor Co.'s River Rouge plant, where many were injured in clashes between pickets and workers today.

Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner and Federal Conciliator James F. Dewey summoned union and company leaders into conference in the Governor's hotel suite and announced "we have a plan of operation."

Appeals to Roosevelt

Three hours after Dewey and Van Wagoner went into joint action, Dewey said he and the Governor had talked with August Scholles, regional director of the U. A. W.-C. I. O., and Walter Reuther, head of the union's General Motors division, presumably obtaining the union's minimum demands.

A delegation of five Ford representatives arrived soon afterward and Gov. Van Wagoner took them immediately to Dewey and a three-man State mediation board. Representing Ford were Harry Mack, Dearborn branch manager; Arthur Miller, employment manager; V. E. Doonan, assistant manager of the Dearborn branch; E. S. La Planche, transportation manager, and James Brady, of the Ford service department.

Mediators Call Recess

The Ford delegation left the mediation room a few minutes before midnight, and Dewey said the conference would be resumed at 11 a. m.

It was decided, Dewey said, to call back "all office people, clerks, timekeepers and the pay roll department, as well as workers needed in the various departments to protect the property."

The agreement announced by Van Wagoner provided that the plant would remain closed during mediation but that maintenance and office workers would return to jobs.

Dewey said that "no conclusions" on any matters in the strike dispute itself had been reached.

Earlier this evening the Ford company appealed directly to President Roosevelt to help end "terroristic mass picketing at its River Rouge plant so the company can resume "full participation in the national defense program."

Harry H. Bennett, personnel director, telegraphed Mr. Roosevelt

Smashing Surprise Attack Destroyed Italian Craft Before They Could Fire, Survivors Say

By J. Wes Gallagher
Associated Press Staff Writer

Athens, (Thursday), April 3.—Survivors of the Italian cruisers Fiume and Zara, and the destroyer Alfieri, declared on their arrival here last night that British warships destroyed their craft in last weekend's naval battle "ten minutes before we were able to fire a single shot, and caused enormous casualties."

Rescued by a Greek warship, the Fascist sailors asserted that hundreds of seamen and petty officers, trapped below decks, went down with the Italian ships when the British opened fire Friday night.

A 21-year-old gunner on the Fiume, one of the few on duty when the smashing British attack was launched said:

"We were cruising along about 9 o'clock Friday night when suddenly in the distance, about three or four miles away, big searchlights flashed on us.

"For a few seconds we thought they were the lights of another Italian cruiser, although we had sighted one British warship just before dark.

"A salvo of shells almost immediately followed the searchlight and simultaneously we were hit by a torpedo.

"Before we could bring a single gun into action the ship was listing too badly to fire.

"The ship started settling. I just had time to jump aboard a life raft floating alongside as the Fiume's deck went under. I'm sure hundreds of others were trapped below deck."

Other survivors told a similar story, but the action was so swift many did not know exactly what happened.

One young sailor told a harrowing story of how two men went mad on an overburdened raft.

"Our raft," he related, "already was overcrowded and a foot under water when the men began fighting among themselves.

"The raft tipped and spilled all of us into the sea. Just nine of us were able to get back onto the raft. The others drowned.

"We were adrift 30 hours until picked up by the Greek ship."

Those rescued did not know what happened to the 35,000-ton Italian battleship Vittorio Veneto because they said it was several miles away.

Worst Room Shortage Since '17 Feared for Cherry Blossom Fete

"The worst housing shortage the Capital has seen since 1917," was predicted last night by Washington housing officials for the week of April 12, when thousands of visitors are expected for the Cherry Blossom Festival, Easter Week, vacations and the D. A. R. Convention here.

Crowds larger than those attending the recent inauguration or brought here by the visit of England's King are anticipated for the three periodic events, augmented by delegates to the Southern Society for Philosophy and Psychology convention, visitors to the annual exhibit of the Washington Arts Club, and high school students' annual Easter trips to their National Capital.

The city's entire 10,000-room hotel capacity has been sold out for the week, according to Russell Schneider, manager of the Board of Trade's Greater National Capital Committee.

"Washington's housing facilities have not been exhausted since World War days, but we expect to have very few, if any, vacant rooms in the city between April 12 and 19," he said.

Clearing house for vacancies available to transients is the Housing Bureau of the Greater National Capital Committee, which listed approximately 2,000 vacancies for the inauguration.

"If a person must come to Washington Easter week, he should get in touch with the bureau (Republic 2600) or make reservations in some other way," Schneider said. "People without plans should not come."

"All Washingtonians who have extra rooms and would like to have paying guests should list them with the Housing Bureau," he added.

Peace Talks Open in Ford Strike that more than 200 employes had been injured in picket-line battling and that "agitators schooled in communistic tactics of mass action" have been imported from Ohio and Indiana to lead the strike which tied up the huge Ford plant for the first time in its history.

Pitched battles and sporadic fist and knife fights in the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) strike injured many men, one of whom may die, and brought squadrons of State police converging on the vast, sprawling plant, where 85,000 men are normally employed.

James F. Dewey, Federal labor conciliator, flew from his sickbed at Chester, Pa., to try to persuade union and company officials to settle their differences amicably and return to the task of turning out automobiles, trucks, tractors and defense materials worth $154,000,000.

Ford officials said they would not negotiate until the union removed pickets from the plant's 14 gates, barricaded with men and automobiles. Michael F. Widman, jr., director of the U. A. W. Ford organizing campaign, said the union would cooperate with Dewey and the special State Mediation Commission.

Autos Massed 15 Deep

Police said there must have been hundreds of scraps in which workmen attempting to penetrate 8,000 pickets and automobiles massed bumper to bumper, sometimes 15 deep, were engaged by pickets and in most instances thrown back.

By far the worst battle was a pitched fight at the main gate—gate 4—where 400 Negroes, said by a company spokesman to constitute the foundry night shift, sallied forth armed with iron bars, nuts, bolts and clubs.

Hooting and jeering the pickets, the Negroes attacked. Heads cracked. Men fell and lay still on the ground. Some combatants fled with blood streaming down their faces. The Negroes hurled a shower of missiles and pickets returned the fire with stones and sticks.

Dearborn police charged into the crowd to break up the fight. One of those who fell was a police inspector. His head and sides were lacerated. Police finally drove the Negroes back inside the gate.

Service Man Stabbed

The injured were carried through the gates and treated at the plant hospital. Of 41 treated there hospital authorities said 17 still were being cared for tonight.

Angelo Caruso, described as a Ford service man, was stabbed in another fight outside the Dearborn police station. He was said to be dying. His assailants escaped, police said, but three suspects were taken into custody later.

Bennett issued a statement in which he charged that the C. I. O. is "Communist controlled" and "the union's main object is not an election but is, rather, to tie up another large American industry and thus cripple the national defense program."

Bennett asserted that "the purpose of the Communist Party, as the direct agency of a foreign country, Russia, is to bring about the complete industrial and economic breakdown which not only will interfere with our national defense program but which the Communists hope to convert into the revolutionary situation out of which will come their expected dictatorship of the proletariat."

whom he described as "small-time, small-town lawyer," had told Congress that strikers in defense industries should be electrocuted.

"They would have to electrocute tomorrow 400,000 bituminous coal miners and perhaps on the first of May they would have to electrocute 120,000 anthracite miners," Lewis said.

"And if I know anything about the miners, I would say, oh, boy what a job.'"

As the union and bituminous operators resumed negotiations late in the afternoon, following the recess called at the end of a morning session, Charles O'Neill, a credited spokesman for the operators and of their negotiators said:

"We assure the public at this hour that the suspension will be of short duration. An agreement will be achieved and the mines will very shortly reopen."

At that time, the 48-hour period within which Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the United States Conciliation Service, had said there would be at least a temporary agreement as almost at the halfway mark.

an agreement for continuing production and looking toward ending the dispute at four plants of the International Harvester Co., strike-bound until the case was certified to the board last week and an agreement to resume operations was reached.

The Harvester formula was validated by the board panel considering the case, the company and the A. F. of L. Federal union involved. It was not signed, however, by the C. I. O. Farm Equipment Workers' Organizing Committee, whose representatives declared they could not agree until the plan was submitted to the union.

The board recommended, and the agreement provided:

That all plants be kept open and production maintained pending a recommendation for settlement by the board, which in the meantime will investigate the issues and make findings of fact.

That the National Labor Relations Board be asked to determine appropriate bargaining agents for the workers at the earliest possible time;

That the company promptly return all employes to work without loss of seniority;

That even though operations cannot be resumed at once at former levels following the strike, the company agrees to continue to pay each employe not less than his former average wage "until such time as his former regular work or its equivalent is available to him."

That the employes agree to maintain good order and proper shop discipline pending the board's investigative period.

Signed With Reservations

The agreement was signed by the A. F. of L. and company representatives, by Dr. Dykstra, representing the public; Eugene Meyer and W. C. Teagle, as employer members; Robert J. Watt, as A. F. of L. member, and Allen S. Haywood, "drafted" to serve on the panel as C. I. O. member in the absence of Philip Murray and Thomas Kennedy, regular representatives of the organization.

Haywood's signature, however, was affixed with two reservations. The first objected to the words "or its equivalent" in the provision permitting workers to be reemployed at jobs other than their former ones. The second reservation asked that pending the board's investigation, means be provided for employes to have grievances adjusted by representatives of their own choosing.

A Senate Committee to investigate defense progress had already been set up; but yesterday by vote of 324 to 1—with only Representative Marcantonio (American Labor), of New York, voting "no"—the House directed its Military and Naval Affairs Committees to conduct "thorough studies and investigations" into the defense program, with the clear understanding that defense strikes are to be included.

Amidst the demands for legislation, Chairman Hatton Sumners of the House Judiciary Committee, which has been holding its own inquiry into defense strikes for some weeks, asserted that President Roosevelt has all the legislative authority to deal with the problem that he has asked for.

"If he doesn't have full power to handle all the details of the present strike situation, Congress is ready to give it to him immediately upon his indication that it is needed," Representative Sumners declared.

Senator Connally urged that the Selective Service Act be enlarged to permit the Government to take over any defense plant where strikes or disputes are impeding or threatening to impede production. An effort may be made to tack his proposal (which is similar to a bill introduced in the House this week) on to some pending legislation on its passage through the Senate.

Senator Byrd, on the other hand, proposed yesterday that the Mediation Board be given statutory authority "to investigate all strike situations, to attempt to prevent strikes before they start and then to have authority to enforce its decisions."

Dr. Dykstra announced that Msgr. Francis J. Haas, veteran Labor Department special mediator, was to leave last night for Bridgeville, Pa., to investigate the issues that led to the Vanadium Corporation of America strike. C. I. O. workers there returned to their jobs last week at the board's request, pending a settlement of the dispute.

Meantime, reports circulated persistently yesterday that the 75-day-old Allis-Chalmers strike would be certified to the board, but no such action was taken by the end of the day.

In a reply last night, the Secretary said she had been prepared to certify the Allis-Chalmers case to the board in March, but had delayed because OPM Director Knudsen and Navy Secretary Knox were then seeking a settlement.

Bitter denunciation of the Allis-Chalmers strike as "red insurrection and rebellion" came from Representative Howard W. Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, in the hour's debate preceding House approval of the defense inquiry.

Under the resolution, shouted Representative Marcantonio, the Naval and Military Affairs Committees will be turned into "strike-breaking agencies."

Chairman Carl Vinson of the Naval Affairs Committee, sponsor of the double inquiry, told the Post that his group's investigation will begin the week of April 14. (The Senate investigation, under Senator Truman (Democrat), of Missouri, is scheduled to begin the 14.)

The Naval Committee's probe, Representative Vinson said, will include strikes on naval contracts, cost of the naval program, progress of the program, contractors' profits and the various types of contracts, delays in delivery of materials, geographical distribution of contracts, training of technical personnel, and legislation that may be needed to expedite the program.

The investigation of each committee must relate to matters coming within its own jurisdiction, the resolution says.

Shipping Strike Averted

New York, April 2 (AP).—A threatened strike of 2,500 towboat workers, which would have tied up shipping in New York Harbor, was averted late today when a wage increase agreement was reached between representatives of the New York Towboat Owners Association and Local 333 of the United Marine Division of the International Longshoremen's Association (A. F. L.). The strike had been set for midnight tonight.

THE 1941 BOTTLING OF FOUR ROSES

WE'VE BEEN MAKING fine whiskies for 76 years, but today's Four Roses is so exceptionally fine we've given it a special designation—"The 1941 Bottling!"

When we laid down these whiskies, more than 5 years ago, we knew they would be good. They had been made with the most painstaking care, and through the years we applied added knowledge and skill to their aging.

But even we were not prepared for the rounded perfection, the soft mellowness, the subtle flavor overtones we found when we opened the barrels! No one could have foretold the present magnificence of those whiskies . . . their smooth, glorious flavor!

No matter when you last tried Four Roses, you have never tasted whiskey like this 1941 Bottling. Won't you try it . . . today?

EVERY DROP IS 5 YEARS OR MORE OLD

A blend of straight whiskies—90 proof. The straight whiskies in Four Roses are 5 years or more old. Frankfort Distilleries, Incorporated, Louisville & Baltimore.

$238,000,000 Asked in Farm Parity Fund

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

A $238,000,000 increase in the farm parity payment fund approved by the House was urged on the Senate floor yesterday as "a little handout to keep the farmer off the relief rolls."

Senator Russell (Democrat), of Georgia, chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee which approved the $1,340,000,000 outlay for the Agriculture Department, told his colleagues:

"Of course, we are not solving the farm problem by voting these parity payments from year to year, but we can at least keep the farmer going during this period when his export market is disappearing and the rest of the country is prospering from the defense program."

The Senate bill calls for a total increase of $449,000,000 over the amount voted by the House for the Agriculture Department in the fiscal year 1942, of which $400,000,000 is accounted for by the boost in parity payments.

Out of this $400,000,000, however, only $238,000,000 represents an actual increase by the Senate committee, Russell explained, since the House bill authorized the Secretary of Agriculture to incur obligations for parity payments up to $162,000,000, without including that sum in the total appropriation.

Administration leaders last night predicted the Senate will approve the agriculture bill late today and said that conferees can take up the job of ironing out differences between the House and Senate bills during the 11-day legislative recess.

A sharp exchange between Russell and Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, followed the Georgian's statement that he had been given no intimation of President Roosevelt's attitude toward the parity payment increase.

When Byrd, a frequent critic of Administration policies, pressed the question, Russell replied heatedly:

"I should think the Senator from Virginia would be the last one to rise here and ask whether the President has approved certain legislation before he casts his vote on it."

Byrd denied that he was motivated "only by the test of whether the President is for or against a proposal."

"I don't like the tenor of this colloquy," said Senator Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, chairman of the Agriculture Committee. "We are supposed to know the needs of the country and vote accordingly—it's not up to us to find out how some person outside this body feels about a certain piece of legislation."

Russell stated that farm income in February of this year was below that in February, 1940, contrasting this picture with sharp increases in total wage payments, dividends and corporation earnings during the past year.

"If that is the case," Byrd interjected, "it would seem like an indictment of this administration's farm program.

Russell said much of the present distress in rural areas resulted from the war's effect on the American farmer's export markets. The farmers are the only group in the country who have not benefited financially from the defense program, he added.

2,000-Year-Old Democratic Institutions In China Described by Dr. Hu Shih in Lecture

CHINA'S ENVOY BUYS FIRST TICKET—Chinese Ambassador Dr. Hu Shih and Mrs. Owen Roberts, wife of the Supreme Court Justice, were the first to buy tickets yesterday for the United China Relief Benefit to be held at Constitution Hall Sunday, April 27. Selling the tickets in the lobby of the Shoreham Hotel were Mrs. Ira Bird Kirkland, jr., and Mrs. Kien-wen Yu, wife of the Second Secretary of the Chinese Embassy

Tells of Centuries-Old Civil Service System; Yarnell Hints at Convoying Aid

Democratic institutions, including a 2,000-year-old competitive civil service system, are among the foundations of China's modern democracy, Dr. Hu Shih, Chinese Ambassador to the United States, declared here yesterday.

Dr. Hu Shih, who spoke to an audience of more than 900 persons in the Far East lecture program at the Shoreham, said that his talk was to be "nonpolitical," and to describe the historical roots of Chinese democracy.

These roots, he said, had been developed over more than 2,000 years and included these institutions:

A thoroughly democratized and almost classless society.

A 2,000-year-old system of competitive examinations for the country's civil service.

More than 2,000 years of a censorship system whereby the government created its own opposition, with censors appointed to criticize public officials from the highest to the lowest, and permit the people to be heard.

Speaking with Dr. Hu Shih, Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander of the United States Asiatic fleet until a year ago, now on duty in the Navy Department, declared that the war in Europe and the war in the Far East is one and the same war, and very likely "will be decided by sea power."

He warned that sea power is relative, and that if Germany and Japan win their fights, they might shortly outdistance the two-ocean Navy America is to have by 1946.

Following the program, Admiral Yarnell was asked from the floor what America's naval policy should be pending completion of a two-ocean Navy. He replied with this question:

"Do you think we are going to manufacture $7,000,000,000 worth of war materials and have it sunk in the Atlantic?"

After the meeting Dr. Hu Shih bought the first ticket for a benefit movie for the United China Relief to be presented in Constitution Hall April 27.

Mrs. Robert Low Bacon was chairman of the lecture meeting and Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, wife of the Attorney General, introduced Dr. Hu Shih.

Bridges Probe 'Bungled,' Says House Report

By the Associated Press

A charge, made public yesterday, that witnesses at Harry R. Bridges' first deportation hearing were administered illegal oaths brought an immediate demand from the House Appropriations Committee that "whoever was responsible" be held to account for a "grossly inexcusable oversight."

The charge came from J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, who said that improper swearing made it impossible for the Justice Department to prosecute certain witnesses suspected of perjuring themselves at the hearing.

Following publication of the committee's report on the matter, Representative Carter (Republican), of California, told the House:

"The general bungling of the case is so well known it need not be repeated, but the testimony of Hoover furnishes additional indication that the Department of Labor protected and didn't want to deport Bridges."

"It means," Hoover declared, "that practically the whole first proceeding was not conducted in accordance with law, because none of the witnesses were really testifying under a legally administered oath."

Following the hearing, Secretary of Labor Perkins canceled a deportation order against Bridges, West Coast C. I. O. leader, who is a native of Australia.

The fault, said Hoover, lay in the appointment in 1939 of James M. Landis as a "contract labor examiner" in the Labor Department to hear the case against Bridges.

Contract labor examiners, the FBI chief continued, lack authority to administer oaths whereas the appointment of Landis as an "immigrant inspector" would have given him the requisite authority.

2d Ex-Communist Testifies at Hearing

San Francisco, April 2 (AP).—The second self-styled former Communist to testify at the Harry Bridges deportation hearing declared today it was a Communist aim to foster strikes, paralyze industry and thus create civil war in America.

Department of Justice attorneys contend Bridges is deportable under the 1940 Alien Registration Act, as a member or former member of organizations advocating violent overthrow of the government.

Chase said he was instructed by a Communist leader in 1937 to attend a meeting of some Communist labor leaders, including some from the A. F. of L. Upholsters' Union, in which he was active, at which Bridges "told us the line to follow" in connection with the A. F. of L. and C. I. O.

The witness testified that the Communists were interested in strikes "which could lead to paralyzing the industry of a nation and possibly could be converted into civil war."

"Our purpose," he continued, "was to convert the A. F. L. from a craft type to an industrial type union and to push the organization further to the left . . . so that the American labor movement could be used as a revolutionary force."

Mediation Board Gets Allis Strike

were power generators, equipment for the Army's Radford, Va., powder plant and machinery for naval vessels.

Early in February defense officials believed that a settlement had been reached following conferences here with OPM chiefs, Knudsen and Sidney Hillman, and company and union representatives. When the latter returned to Milwaukee, however, a rash of "interpretations" broke out, and the stoppage continued. Two weeks later the union agreed to the proposed OPM settlement but the company insisted on the inclusion of an additional interpretation by Hillman.

Last Wednesday, Knox and Knudsen, having discovered that the original strike vote included 2,200 fraudulent ballots favoring a strike, wired company and union to resume operations.

Secretary Perkins was criticized on the floor of the Senate yesterday by Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, who said she had been "exceedingly derelict" in failing to turn over the dispute to the board. The Secretary replied in a letter to the Senator last night that she had been ready to certify the case as the board's No. 1 undertaking on March 26, when she was advised that Knudsen and Secretary Knox were then seeking a reopening of the plant. Consequently, she withheld action, she said.

Only yesterday Harold Christoffel, president of the striking C. I. O. union, had wired President Roosevelt specifically opposing the transfer in mediation later ordered by Secretary Perkins.

"In the interests of settling this strike as quickly and peacefully as possible," he wired, "we most strongly urge that this matter be not referred to any new agencies and bodies, but that the Department of Conciliation be given a free hand and full authority to order the company to accept the OPM or similar union security clause."

Latin Chiefs Invited to Tour Defenses

In a move to promote closer cooperation in continental defense, the commanders of all Latin-American navies yesterday were invited to visit the United States next month as guests of the American Navy.

Secretary Knox announced that the invitations were extended by Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, "to promote good will and cordial personal relations" among the naval services of the Western hemisphere and permit the Latin-American naval chiefs "to observe the development in activities of the United States Navy."

At the same time, President Roosevelt put before Congress for ratification the new United States-Mexican agreement for reciprocal use of air fields in the two nations, another important plank in the hemisphere defense program.

The agreement, the President said in a message, was concluded "in view of the exceptional circumstances which have arisen from the present European conflict and takes into consideration the necessity of ensuring conditions of maximum speed for the movements in matters of aviation required in the defense of the American continent."

"Its purpose is to organize a substantial and efficient collaboration between the United States and Mexico in preparations for the defense of the Western Hemisphere," he said.

American naval attache in 11 Latin-American countries presented the invitations yesterday.

Arnold Cites Aluminum Plot In Plane Lag

By the Associated Press

Charges were laid before Congress yesterday that "a conspiracy by the Germans" and a "bunch of self-seeking men" had in the past kept down the production of aluminum which the United States needs for airplanes, and was keeping it down now.

Thurman Arnold, Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Justice Department's antitrust division, made that assertion to a House Appropriations Subcommittee hearing in testimony made public yesterday.

Because of this conspiracy, Arnold testified, the German "production went up; but they kept it down in France, England and America, and they are doing it today."

Arnold was asked by Representative Rabaut (Democrat), Michigan, whether the situation was restricting plane roduction here.

Nazi Output More

"That is the reason they (the Germans) are able to produce more planes because they have the aluminum," he replied.

He credited Germany with an aluminum production 33 to 50 per cent greater than that of the United States.

Without elaborating at length on "the conspiracy," Arnold said the situation dated from 1931 when the Aluminum Co., "to avoid our antitrust laws," formed a Canadian corporation, Aluminum, Ltd.

This concern, he stated, began to divide the world aluminum markets with other countries. The United States was allocated 28 per cent, Germany 20 per cent and Britain 15 per cent. In this country, he said in his testimony, production was methodically reduced to boost prices and collect "all that the traffic would bear."

Hitler "Delighted"

When Hitler came to power, Arnold continued, he told the German aluminum company that he was "not interested in restricing production," and the German company served notice on the other members of the cartel that it would not abide henceforth by the 20 per cent limitations.

The others, he alleged, replied: "All right, but do not disturb our little game. Let us continue with our plans . . ."

That response "delighted" Hitler, Arnold said. Germany's aluminum production boomed, giving the output needed for plane construction.

2 Nazi Ships That Fled Peru Found in Flames

Lima, Peru, April 2 (U.P.).—Navy authorities announced tonight that two German freighters which fled Callao Monday night without obtaining clearance papers had been found burning at sea.

The announcement said the Peruvian cruiser Almirante Grau found the 3,315-ton Muenchen aflame and sinking this morning some 200 miles from Callao.

The same cruiser found the 2,819-ton Hermonthis about 250 miles from Callao this afternoon, also in flames.

The Almirante Grau found no trace of the crews of the two vessels which made a run for it after the seizure of Axis ships in American ports and indications that the action was about to spread to South America.

Ensign Roosevelt Reports for Duty Today

Boston, April 2 (U.P.).—Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., an ensign in the Naval Reserve, will report for active duty tomorrow morning, it was reported tonight.

The President's son will serve aboard a destroyer now stationed at Boston Navy Yard.

sonal matters, including the date of his arrival in Germany and the purposes of his stay here.

Others questions put to him were what the Germans technically call "protokol der personalien."

Dunning said he was treated with extreme courtesy and finally was released at 7:45 p. m. On his release he said he saw two of the other Americans who had been arrested, but not Dickson.

For the last six months Dickson had been Berlin representative of the Mutual Broadcasting Co. as well as part-time office assistant for the Chicago Tribune.

Dickson was arrested in the Chicago Tribune offices early Wednesday evening by a uniformed police officer who refused to tell Dickson where he was being taken and also refused him permission to use the telephone before he left.

Son of Naval Officer

Dickson had tea during the afternoon with friends who said he apparently was unaware that he might be arrested.

Immediately after notification of the arrests, a member of the United States consulate went to the Alexanderplatz police headquarters and requested information, particularly regarding Dickson, but was told that he was to apply to the foreign office for any information.

Dickson, who is 34, is the son of an officer of the United States Navy. He is a Yale graduate and has lived in Germany for the last eight years, including five years of study at Bonn University. After his studies he worked for the United States Consulate in Cologne until foreigners were ordered to leave the remilitarized Rhineland zone.

Dunning, who is in his middle sixties, has lived in Berlin for nearly 40 years and has been secretary of the American Chamber of Commerce for nearly 30 years. He is one of the best known American residents of the German capital.

The United States Consulate and Embassy said early today they were unable to fully identify the other two Americans arrested.

No police officials could be found who were able to provide information.

The Californian, it was understood, has lived in Berlin about five years.

Ceiling Placed on Scrap Prices

Speculative activity which has put "inflationary pressure" on prices for iron and steel scrap was met yesterday by orders from Leon Henderson, defense commissioner in charge of price stabilization, setting a schedule of maximum prices above which the commodities may not rise.

In announcing the schedule, which establishes three categories for various types of scrap, Henderson declared:

"In January, I asked the industry to cooperate with the Government in its effort to prevent runaway prices. For the most part, the response to my request has been whole-hearted. Some persons in the industry, however, have been continuing their speculative practices at the expense of those who have cooperated. This price schedule is our answer to the speculators.

"Some of the large makers of scrap have been demanding from the dealer prices so high that it was impossible to get the scrap to the open hearth at a reasonable figure. The ceilings fixed in this schedule will discourage hoarding and thus aid in securing the needed supply of scrap. The ceilings are established at a level which will insure a fair return to all persons in the industry, requiring the maker to stand a reduction from the prices which have prevailed."

The price schedule, to take effect today except for contracts already entered into, "does not attempt to correct or indorse existing practices," which are "badly in need of change," he added.

The price ceilings will be rigorously enforced, Henderson said, with Government powers "to place compulsory orders, to condemn or requisition properties, to issue priorities . . . exerted to the utmost against any person who may venture to disregard" the maximum limits.

Two Soldiers Strike Snag in Naturalization

Seventy-five aliens have won United States citizenship in the District Court, but two others, already American soldiers, have encountered delay, it was revealed yesterday.

Due to take the oath of allegiance later in the year are Master Tech. Sergt. Charles Reynolds, 49, Quantico, and Stewart Allan, 25, who is wearing the uniform of a mechanized unit at Fort Benning, Ga.

Sergt. Reynolds, a native of Canada, joined the Marines in 1919 and has received four honorable discharges, reenlisting each time. Believing his long service took care of it, he failed to complete registration as an alien last fall. Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat delayed decision on his citizenship application until he complies with the registration requirement.

Allan, who formerly lived at 1834 Columbia Road Northwest, entered the Army under the Selective Service Act. He was absent when his name was called Tuesday because he was sent away for training.

Touches on War

Chief Justice Wheat touched on the possibility of America being drawn into the war, in his address to the new citizens.

"We are all painfully conscious," he said, "of the wars which are going on in Europe today. Let us hope that we will not be drawn into war, but if we are, I know that after you have taken the oath which you take today, you will become loyal supporters of our country."

The new citizens are:

Virginia Woolf, Novelist, Missing

London, April 2 (U.P.).—The disappearance of Virginia Woolf, British novelist, was revealed tonight by members of her family who believed that she had drowned.

Mrs. Woolf, author of a long list of works dating from 1915 to 1940, left her home in Lewes last Friday for a walk. She has not been seen since. Youngest daughter of the late Sir Leslie Stephen, she was married in 1912 to Leonard Woolf.

Bitterness and Unrest Among 30,000 Aliens in French Refugee Camps Add to Beaten Nation's Woes

By the Associated Press

Marseille, France, April 2.—Growing bitterness and unrest among the 30,000-odd foreigners in refugee camps of unoccupied France were reported today, adding to the troubles that beset this beaten nation.

Substitution of a dole system was suggested by one official as a way to cut administration costs that add to the camps' 1,000,000-franc daily budget.

The increasing ill will of foreign statesmen, authors, journalists and artists interned in the cheerless compounds was another factor the French feared might cost them dearly, particularly in the future.

Unoccupied France has perhaps 90,000 foreigners who were admitted under the Third Republic, one-third of them in eight refugee camps and the rest in labor camps and foreign soldiers camps.

There are Jews, anti-Nazi Germans and Spanish Republicans, who have changed with the course of Europe from men without a country to men without a continent.

The 19 relief organizations—mostly American—working in France have banded together to do what they can to make internment camp life more livable.

Their model is the Mexican government's Spanish war veteran camp at La Reynarde, where the heaviest penalty for breach of discipline is expulsion.

La Reynarde is a large Renaissance chateau surrounded by trees and broad lawns that make the sun-baked, dusty surroundings of French camps at Rives Altes, Argeles and Barcanes look like deserts.

On a budget of 6 francs, 96 centimes a person daily, the Mexicans serve meals of soup, macaroni, meat, bread, wine, salad and dessert.

In contrast, Argeles camp's menu for a day is wine, bread, two ladles of turnips or carrots and a thumb-size piece of meat on a budget of 11½ francs a day.

The Mexicans said they made their saving on administrative costs, using a trusty system like that in effect in some American prisons and penal farms. Unlike the French camps where police stand guard, La Reynarde is policed by Spanish War veterans. Its 900 male internees do all their own work and still have found time to build football, tennis, basketball and swimming facilities.

The Swiss, Quaker, Jewish, Unitarian and Y. M. C. A. relief committees would like to get as many out of the French camps as possible in cases where relatives will support the internees, and to help those who may want to leave the country.

For the rest, they offer funds for improving the camps, social workers to start handicraft workshops and sanitary engineers to clean up where necessary.

The Swiss group already is distributing free milk for babies in all camps where it is permitted to operate.

The others have installed windows in dingy blank-walled barracks, furnished books, musical instruments and clothing, and in other ways tried to make camp life more comfortable.

G. S. Fougner, N.Y. Columnist, Succumbs Here

G. Selmer Fougner, 56, internationally known gourmet, New York newspaperman and founder of Les d'Escoffier, a society of food lovers, died of a heart attack at the wheel of his automobile in the driveway of the Shoreham Hotel yesterday.

En route from New York City to Georgia to visit his son who is with the 207th Coast Artillery, Mr. Fougner spent the night at the hotel and was preparing to leave with his wife, Mrs. Vera Fougner, when he was stricken. He was dead when a doctor reached his side.

Mr. Fougner, who served as European correspondent for the New York Sun and several British newspapers during the World War, had been writing a column for the New York Sun since 1933—"Along the Wine Trail." He also wrote several books dealing with the fine art of eating and drinking.

Born in Chicago, August 24, 1884, Mr. Fougner received a bachelor of letters degree from the Sorbonne in Paris in 1905 and married Miss Var Ellon in San Francisco in 1911.

Mr Fougner "covered" New York and Paris for the New York Herald between 1906 and 1909 and worked for the New York Press and Sun until the outbreak of the World War.

After the War, he returned to the States and became chief of press relations regarding Liberty Loans for the Treasury Department. In 1926, he handled publicity for the Republican candidate for Governor of New York.

Mr. Fougner was director of Aero-News and owned his own press syndicate in Paris. He was a member of the News Club of New York, Syndicates Journalistes Parisiens, Anglo-American Press Association in Paris and American Luncheon Club of London. He was a chevalier of the Legion of Honor of France and an officer of the Order of the Crown of Italy.

He is credited with founding 14 epicurean societies.

He leaves his wife and an only son, Robert Selmer Fougner.

His body was at Gawler's Funeral Home last night while araringements were being made for burial.

C. E. Moore Dies; Former Ohio Representative

Former Representative C. Ellis Moore (Republican), of Ohio, who served here from 1919 to 1933, died yesterday at his home in Cambridge, Ohio.

Mr. Moore, who was prosecuting attorney of Ohio's Guernsey County before coming to Washington, was a member of the Judiciary and Postoffice Committees in the House. Since 1933, he had been practicing law in Cambridge.

Here he attended the Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian Church and for many years taught a men's Bible class there.

He leaves his wife, one son, Charles L. Moore, and a daughter, Martha C. Moore, all of Cambridge. Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. at the home.

Verne J. Schick's Rites Tomorrow

The funeral for Verne J. Schick, 33, druggist and resident of Arlington, Va., for 10 years, who died Tuesday, will be at 2 p. m. tomorrow at Chambers funeral home, 1400 Chapin Street Northwest.

Mr. Schick was graduated from the University of Pittsburgh in 1929. He had worked as a druggist for two years in that city before coming here. In Washington he had been employed at Simpson's drug establishment, Seventh Street and Rhode Island Avenue Northwest. He had lived at 523 Twenty-sixth Road South Arlington.

Mr. Schick leaves his wife, Marguerite J.; a son and daughter, James V. and Patsy Lou; and his father, John M. Schick, of Pittsburgh.

Funeral Today For Mrs. Traxler In Riverdale

Second Protests Filed by Italy And Germany in Ship Seizures

In the face of an American rejection of their first complaints, Germany and Italy last night filed second protests against American seizure of 26 Axis merchant ships.

The sole concession wrung from the State Department was compliance with a German demand that the Stars and Stripes be hauled down from the Nazi cargo ship Arauca, seized at Port Everglades, Fla.

With this amendment, the United States maintained its refusal to release the vessels or their crews, even after being told in a note from the German Charge d'Affaires, Hans Thomsen, that "there is no legal basis in international law" for the seizures which, he asserted, violate a 1923 treaty of commerce and friendship with the United States.

The text of the first German protest note was made public by the German Embassy. Though the State Department declined to reveal the contents of the second note, it was disclosed in official circles that the document complained against imprisonment of German nationals when 875 crewmen of the Axis ships were taken into custody. It was assumed that the second Italian protest was similar. The German Embassy described its second missive as "supplementary" to the first, delivered late Monday.

The Italian government still guarded the contents of its notes.

The second protests were handed to the State Department shortly after Secretary Hull had tacitly rejected the first Axis protests.

Asked at his press conference if there was any present intention of complying with demands that the ships be released, Hull declared he had not heard of it in Government quarters.

He reemphasized earlier declarations that there is no question as to the legality of the American action, which was based on a 1917 law allowing the Government to take custody of foreign ships in its ports when acts of sabotage are committed endangering navigation.

Officials described the second notes as "stronger" in tone than the first.

Germany's original protest, firm but polite, demanded release of its two vessels and the crews, and the right to fly the Nazi swastika, in place of the American flag, from the Arauca.

The State Department agreed to haul down the American flag but refused permission for hoisting of the German colors.

When President Roosevelt was aboard his yacht at Port Everglades last week Germans aboard the Arauca, berthed nearby, broke out a large swastika flag.

Sabotage was discovered aboard most of the Axis ships taken over.

The Coast Guard issued orders yesterday for removal of the American flag from the seized ships. The German and Italian vessels will fly no flag while they are in custody, but the 39 Danish ships taken over in a different type of action and on which skeleton crews are being permitted to remain, may fly the Danish flag while Danish officers are aboard.

An official explanation of these orders was that the ships still belong to their foreign owners pending any forfeiture proceedings that may be taken later.

Secretary Hull said the text of the American notes of reply, which are now being prepared, would be made public only upon consultation with the German and Italian Embassies.

Informed Berlin quarters were reported to have said that the seizures would draw retaliation in "whatever form possible in the future."

In the midst of these developments, a Federal Grand Jury returned against five German officers and five crew members the first indictments on charges of sabotage aboard any of the seized ships.

The offense carries a maximum penalty of $10 000 fine or 20 years imprisonment, or both.

The action followed orders from Attorney General Jackson that United States attorneys take steps in all cases of sabotage aboard the vessels.

The Boston indictments were returned against Capt. Ernest R. Heitzmann of the tanker Pauline Frederich, four of his officers and five members of the crew.

United States Attorney Edmund J. Brandon indicated that indictments might also be sought against the captain and crew of the Italian freighter Dino, although damage aboard that craft was said by the Coast Guard to be slight.

The Coast Guard reported that every piece of machinery aboard the German tanker had been damaged beyond repair.

It was learned, meanwhile, that Federal intelligence services are seeking to establish whether any German or Italian officials in this country instigated the wholesale sabotage which crippled most of the seized vessels.

If complicity of any officials can be proved, it was said, the State Department is ready to take immediate action. The guilty officials would be handed their passports or their prompt recall would be demanded.

Elsewhere in the hemisphere, where a continental policy of seizing Axis ships was developing, these developments were reported:

Mexico City—Mexican marines were ordered to take possession of all German and Italian ships at Tampico and Vera Cruz after the 2,000-ton Italian tanker was set afire by her crew.

Tampico, Mexico — Authorities said the crews of nine Axis vessels seized at Tampico would be interned to forestall sabotage attempts. German seamen on the liner Orinoco put up a fight when their ship was boarded, but the Marines soon overpowered them. Captains of the nine vessels were invited ashore for a conference, then were arrested when they landed.

Buenos Aires, Argentine—Authoritative quarters said that Argentina, instead of seizing Axis vessels in her waters, may lease them. The Argentine press, meanwhile, unanimously applauded United States' seizure of the vessels.

Quito, Ecuador—The Ecuadorian government announced it had no intention of taking over the 1,120-ton German steamer Cerigo, which burst into flames when Ecuadorean authorities approached the vessel at Guayaquil Tuesday.

Text of German Protest

Following is the text of the first German note protesting United States seizure of two vessels, as made public yesterday by the German embassy:

His Excellency, the Secretary of the United States,
Mr. Cordell Hull,
Washington, D. C.,
Sir:

In the name of my government, I have the honor to advise your excellency as follows:

According to yesterday's and today's press dispatches, which are confirmed by statements of responsible Government officials in Washington, agencies of the United States Government have occupied and taken into custody the German vessels lying in American harbors, namely, the tanker Pauline Friedrich, lying in the Port of Boston, and the motorship Arauca, lying in Port Everglades. In both cases the crew aboard, including the captain and the officers, was forcibly removed from the ship and is being detained on land by the American Federal authorities. According to a report of the German consul in Boston the entire crew of the tanker Pauline Friedrich is held at the immigration station there under conditions to which the members of the crew cannot be expected to submit. Regarding the whereabouts of the crew of the motorship Arauca, a report of the competent German consul in New Orleans is still outstanding; from dispatches of press bureaus it appears, however, that the crew of this vessel, including the captain and the officers, are being held at the Coast Guard station in Fort Lauderdale. A photograph published in today's Baltimore Sun confirms an earlier press dispatch that on the motorship Arauca the American flag has been hoisted in place of the German flag. In the name of my government, I protest most urgently against the aforesaid measures of the United States Government, for which there is no legal basis in international law and which represent in particular a clear violation of the treaty of friendship, commerce and consular rights of December 8, 1923, existing between Germany and the United States. Pending further instructions from my government, I ask your excellency, in fulfilment of the obligations stipulated in the aforementioned treaty and affirmed by the amended treaty of June 3, 1935, to take all necessary measures in order to:

(1) Place the tanker Pauline Friedrich and the motorship Aracua again at the free and unrestricted disposal of the rightful owners, i. e., to rescind the occupation and custody and restore the unrestricted authority of the captains over the ships;

(2) Immediately to release the crews of the two vessels and to make possible their return and stay on board their ships;

(3) To remove the American flag hoisted on the motorship Aracua and unreservedly restore to the ships the right recognized under international law and affirmed by treaty to fly the flag of their country.

Accept, excellency, the renewed assurance of my highest consideration.

Signed: Thomsen.

(The signer was Hans Thomsen, charge d'affaires.)

Funds to Build 205 Airports Asked in House

Funds to develop 205 airports and carry on other national defense activities were included in a $212,067,200 appropriation recommended yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee to run the State, Justice and Commerce Departments and the Federal judiciary for the next fiscal year.

The committee estimated that approximately $75,000,000 of the total was strictly for defense purposes.

Although the total was $31,016,989 below the sum available to the agencies for the current fiscal year, only $873,480 of the reduction was made by the committee. The budget bureau did the rest of the trimming in estimates submitted to the group.

In three instances the committee increased the budget estimates to provide additional funds for the civilian pilot training program, the Justice Department's antitrust division and a minor increase for salaries of Supreme Court employes. The Federal Bureau of Investigation would get $16,450,000 under the bill, of which $8,750,000 is for such activities as counterespionage and antisabotage work.

To enable the Justice Department to continue and expand its antitrust investigations, the committee added $750,000 to the Budget Bureau's recommendation for $1,575,000 for the department's antitrust division.

Thurman Arnold, chief of the division, told the committee he was interested in seeing that the Government "does not pay through the nose" for war materials and that prices for necessities of life do not soar.

Appropriations recommended for the various departments were: State $21,287,300; Commerce, $112,228,000; Justice, $66,257,500. For the Federal Judiciary $12,314,400 was approved.

The budget figure of $18,000,000 for civilian pilot training was boosted to $25,000,000. Describing the program as vital to National defense, the committee said that more than 4,800 of the CAA trainees had gone into the air forces of the armed services.

A total of $6,700,000 was included for additional air navigational aids, including 57 ultra-high-frequency systems which the committee said were urgently desired by the Army.

Anti-Convoy Forces Take Senate Floor

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Isolationists took the floor of the Senate yesterday for another round robin against convoys as leaders denied any present Administration intention to escort supply ships to Britain.

"I have not heard of anybody even suggesting that the President is thinking about sending convoys into danger zones or belligerent waters, or into any areas which he has demarked by proclamation," said Majority Leader Barkley.

"I have heard nothing of the sort and I cannot quite understand what all this fuss is about until and unless he does indicate some purpose of that kind."

Barkley's statement followed charges by Senator Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, that Secretary of Navy Knox has reversed his stand against convoys. Tobey demanded action on his anti-convoy resolution. He was backed by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana. Wheeler thought it "inconceivable" the President would use convoys without submitting the question to Congress.

Off the floor, some usually well-informed members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee expressed doubt that the question of convoys would come up until a need was urgently demonstrated by opening of the Nazi spring blitz and augmented Atlantic ship losses.

View persisted in these quarters that first naval aid to Britain was likely to come through loan of destroyers, with Atlantic coastal patrols meanwhile intensified to safeguard American waters.

Twice during the Senate's convoy debate, Senator Wheeler took the floor to charge "war mongerers" are trying to persuade the President to use convoys. He said he was warning against "trickery behind the scenes," which, he declared, would cause the people "to lose faith in their Government."

Tobey's demand for a convoy ban and Wheeler's assertion that "convoys mean war" followed a conference of 70 Senators and Representatives in the Senate caucus room Tuesday night to discuss methods of preventing use of convoys. Wheeler presided and addresssed the meeting, which heard charges of pressure for a bill authorizing convoys.

"It is inconceivable to me that he (the President) would use convoys, because he has said that convoys mean war, and he would not use convoys without first coming back to the Congress and asking for a declaration of war," Wheeler told the Senate yesterday.

Wheeler read a news dispatch quoting William Cardinal O'Connell, Catholic Archbishop of Boston, as saying that secret maneuvers behind the scenes of government are drawing the Nation nearer to war. He said he believed with the archbishop that "trust of a people in their Government is a dangerous thing to toy with."

Demanding action on his resolution to ban convoys, Tobey read a New York Herald Tribune dispatch saying Secretary Knox opposed transfer of warships to Britain because he wanted American ships to do the convoying. Tobey said he had wired Knox to explain his actual stand, since the Secretary opposed convoys in his lend-lease bill testimony.

Barkley, who at first declined to be drawn into the debate, rose to challenge Tobey's charge of a "somersault" by Knox on the convoy issue. He questioned the correctness of the report.

"So far as I know, there has been no indication that the President has issued any orders or even contemplated any orders that are contrary to what Secretary Knox stated," said the Senate leader.

George later told reporters that if an urgent need arose, he thought destroyers would be loaned to Britain for convoy use. George said he saw no objection to the Navy escorting American ships through territorial waters to Carribean bases or to Newfoundland.

President, 'War Cabinet' Weigh Role Navy May Play in Aid

The crucial question of how the United States can help Great Britain win the Battle of the Atlantic was canvassed by President Roosevelt yesterday with his defense captains.

The President conferred for more than two hours with members of what has come to be known as his "War Cabinet" and with chiefs of the armed services. Earlier he had discussed shipping matters with Admiral Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission.

None of the callers would discuss the subject of the conferences upon leaving the White House, but it was established that the role the Navy may play in aid to Britain and American defense was one of the chief topics of the afternoon.

The full-dress discussion followed by one day word from the President at his Tuesday press conference that the question of ensuring that war material for Britain reaches the other side of the Atlantic is under study.

Several of the conferees were asked pointblank by reporters whether the question was discussed. They uniformly declined to say.

There has been considerable speculation in official circles over what steps the United States may take to prevent lend-lease supplies for Britain from going to the bottom of the Atlantic.

Suggestions being officially considered include convoying supply ships to a halfway point, such as Iceland; extending the neutrality patrol further out to sea, and "all out" convoying across the Atlantic.

The official group that conferred with the President at the White House yesterday afternoon was first announced to include Secretary of State Hull, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Knox and Harry L. Hopkins, who serves as coordinator of the lend-lease program for the President.

Later the group was enlarged to include Attorney General Jackson; Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff; Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, and Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, commandant of the Marine Corps.

The conference began at 3 p. m. Hull, the first to leave, stepped out of the President's office at 5:15 followed by Marshall and smilingly declined to discuss the meeting.

Stimson walked out at 5:35 with Jackson and parried questions with the observation, directed at the insistent newsmen, that "hope springs eternal."

Knox and Stark stayed until 6:15 and also declined to divulge the nature of their discussion.

Later Maj. Gen. E. M. Watson, the President's aide, told reporters "the President says he has nothing to say."

Flannels for Spring —Custom-tailored is a masculine "must" for a well-dressed man's wardrobe

Here in The Men's Store, we take an especial pride in our fine worsted flannels. There is a certain "feel"—a certain smoothness of finish—a way they have of holding their shape—that makes them an important asset to your Spring wardrobe.

They tailor beautifully, of course—but, more important—we custom-tailor them to your individual proportions so that perfect, comfortable fit and distinctive smartness are immediately apparent.

Medium and dark grays and medium blue-gray, plain tans, soft-toned chalk stripes. Double-breasted and single-breasted three-button lounge models pair top honor—however, we tailor them to your preference.

Pope Has 'Fine' Conference With Matsuoka

By Herbert L. Matthews

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, April 2.—Pope Pius received Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka today in an audience which the Pontiff characterized as a "fine one" and the Japanese minister later called "the prettiest moment of my life."

Because both in their different ways are interested in seeing peace in Europe, reports have spread that Matsuoka sounded out the Pontiff on the possibility of mediation or a joint Vatican-Japanese peace move. There is no reason to believe this rumor, which is very strongly denied in authoritative Vatican circles, where it was characterized as "ridiculous."

What is much more important is that Matsuoka left behind a distinct impression that his trip to Europe, far from having any bellicose motives, was an inquiry into the possibilities of limiting the conflict or even of finding the basis for a Japanese compromise suggestion.

As a result of this audience, the Pope, who has been debating whether to make an Easter peace appeal, is said to be much encouraged and it is now very probable that such an appeal will be launched. However, it is authoritatively stated that his plea will have a strictly religious character and will avoid any political considerations or proposals, such as the five points in his Christmas message.

One may be sure that the Pope was also very much interested in the results of Matsuoka's conversations in Moscow, Berlin and Rome. Besides, this is the best opportunity His Holiness has yet had to get first-hand information from the Far East since the world conflict began.

The Holy See keeps an apostolic delegate in Chungking and generally maintains friendly relations with the Chiang Kai-shek government.

The basic document regulating Vatican-Chinese relations is still the message sent in 1928 by the late Pope Pius XI to the Chinese bishops, recognizing China's right to live as an independent nation. Moreover, the Chinese bishops, as well as all Chinese Catholics, have openly supported Gen. Chiang.

Tokyo unquestionably would like the Vatican to change its attitude and it seems likely that Matsuoka sounded out the Pope on the subject. If so, one may be sure that he met with a refusal. It is even more likely that the Pontiff complained to Matsuoka regarding the enormous damages sustained by Catholic missions in China due to Japanese air raids, which have destroyed churches, hospitals, Catholic schools and mission buildings and have killed many missionaries.

The audience lasted an hour and five minutes, which is unusually long. Afterward Matsuoka talked to Luigi Cardinal Maglione, papal secretary of state, for 50 minutes, and the conference appeared to have touched on religious questions rather than political ones.

The Pontiff, immediately after seeing Matsuoka, went out to his weekly public audience and among the people there were a dozen Japanese seminarists. It was when the Pope stopped to talk to them that he said it was a "fine audience."

[The Japanese statesman said goodby to Premier Mussolini before returning tomorrow to Berlin for further conferences with Adolf Hitler, the Associated Press reported.

[An anticipated talk between Mussolini and Matsuoka at Palazzo Venezia late this afternoon did not take place, authoritative sources indicating that a long after-lunch chat was substituted. Ceremonies in honor of the Japanese visitor were concluded with a gymnastic drill of Fascist youth this afternoon and a dinner tonight at the Japanese Embassy, followed by a reception.]

Bombing of British Envoy's Hotel in Istanbul

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

THEY ESCAPED BLAST—George Rendel, recalled British Minister to Bulgaria, is shown on arrival in Istanbul, Turkey, March 11, with his daughter, Anne, 20. They went to the Pera Palace Hotel. Soon after their arrival at the Pera Palace Hotel, two time bombs went off, killing three persons. The doorway of the hotel (shown above) was badly damaged. An injured man, one of 22 hurt, is being removed. Rendel and his daughter escaped injury, but a member of his staff was hurt. Police believe plotters intended bombs to have gone off on diplomat's train of prisoners. If their own army falls back they stay behind, fighting by day and working at night.

The Comitaji under Serb law have the right to demand food and lodging from anyone and the right to carry firearms.

The poison given to each member is sewn in the upturned coat collar in such a way that a man or woman, even if manacled, can commit suicide by sucking the poison out of the cloth.

As Pecanec explained these things to Miss Mitchell he was sitting in his "study." Behind him hung a photograph of Gavrio Prinzip, the man who assassinated the Austrian Archduke Franz Ferdinand and his wife at Sarajevo in 1914 and thus launched the World War.

On the floor in a corner lay the bleached bones of a skeleton.

"Those are the bones of one of the greatest Comitaji heroes," Pecanec said. "His mother comes to see me in this room every few weeks. She often asks whose skeleton that is. I have never told her. I am hard but not that hard."

Ruth Mitchell was piqued as she sat in her own home later telling the story to this correspondent.

She was piqued because she wore a man's coat and riding breeches instead of the regulation uniform which was not yet available. She said she was eager to don the black socks embroidered with red roses which all members wear over khaki trousers because there is a place in the top of one sock for a long slender dagger.

"The chief told me I would have to practice with a knife, plunging and twisting it into a sack of flour. He said that was good training," she said.

Miss Mitchell was the only English-American citizen in northern Albania when the Italian-Greek war started. She had been covering every passable road, writing a guide book. She first learned of the Comitaji studying native folklore. She said she joined because "the Comitaji form the heart of Serbia and Serbia is the heart of Yugoslavia which has dared to talk back to Hitler."

Her biggest problem today was finding a horse. The chief told her, she said, that because of the scarcity of gasoline and also because of the nature of the Comitaji operations she would have to have one to keep in touch with him and his officers.

no negotiations are now in progress."

There had been rumors that Italy, against whose Albanian colony the Yugoslavs might move in case of war with the Axis, was trying to smooth matters between Premier Simovic of Yugoslavia and Adolf Hitler's agents.

Germans Nervous

The Yugoslav government, sending more troops to the northern and eastern frontiers in an action paralleling reports that the Nazis were moving many soldiers westward across Bulgaria, maintained its air of restraint under violent German press attacks.

The 60 diplomatic representatives of Germany, still remaining here—German Minister Viktor von Heeren is in Berlin—clearly exhibited nervousness and set up a control system to keep the legation informed by the moment of the whereabouts of its employes.

For example, if an aide walks out to buy cigarettes the control officer at the legation must be notified by telephone of the time of departure, destination, route and approximate time of his expected return.

Four German legation buildings are stocked with food—in case. For the moment the Nazis still eat at public restaurants. But they no longer wear Nazi lapel emblems and the swastikas have been taken off their cars.

Newspaper dispatches received in Budapest, Hungary, reported that two Rumanian trains carrying wheat and oil to Italy were confiscated by the Yuguslav government. Balkan traffic to neutral Switzerland also was halted, the Swiss war office said.

Singapore's Chief Sees U. S. Aides in Manila

By H. Ford Wilkins

Copyright by New York Times

Manila, April 2.—Initial contact between British and American defense forces in the Far East was accomplished here today with the arrival of air chief, Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, from Singapore for conferences with American military commanders.

Sir Robert, commanding all British forces in the Far East, first conferred with Admiral Thomas Hart, commanding the United States Asiatic Fleet, and then with Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Commonwealth military adviser, who admitted that they discussed "all defense plans" for the Philippines.

Francis B. Sayre, United States high commissioner to the Philippines, hurried down from his summer home at Baguio for a conference. Later Sir Robert will see Maj. Gen. George Grunert, commanding the Philippine Department of the United States Army, and will depart for Hong Kong Friday.

The visiting marshal's arrival surprised all but a few who had been privately informed by the British consul.

Accompanied only by his aides and the crew of the plane, he landed at Cavite in midafternoon, following an easy 1,500-mile overwater flight direct from Singapore, in a big British transport plane. He was welcomed by United States naval officers.

Sir Robert's visit found both Philippine and American officialdom immersed in problems of civilian defense, which are being tackled by the Commonwealth government on Sayre's insistence that it was purely a Commonwealth responsibility.

The first meeting of President Manuel Quezon's Civilian Emergency Administration, which includes all cabinet members, was devoted to organization purposes on an island-wide scale.

The national assembly is considering a $1,000,000 increase in this year's appropriations for the Philippine army, making a total of around $9,000,000. It was explained the increase is necessary to coordinate the army's development with defense plans.

House Committee Advises Separate Building for FBI

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday suggested to Congress that the Federal Bureau of Investigation should be provided with a building of its own "where it will have a reasonable opportunity to expand in future years."

The committee, in reporting to the House a $16,350,000 item for operation of the bureau during the 1942 fiscal year, declared that the Public Buildings Administration "should give expeditious attention" to the FBI's space needs. The size, cost or probable location of the building was not suggested.

The total recommended for the bureau was $2,581,000 higher than its current appropriation and only $100,000 less than the Budget Bureau's request.

Italy Reported Seeking Terms Of Surrender

lated in Ethiopia are all the Italian troops left to fight in East Africa.

Amid intimations that the white flag of Fascist surrender might soon float over all Eritrea, the British army and navy teamed up to put the squeeze on those soldiers.

The navy announced the sinking of an Italian destroyer and capture of a German merchantman in the Red Sea at Massaua, and the sinking of an Italian submarine and a tanker in the Mediterranean.

Hastening to clean up the remainder of East Africa before the rains come, the British announced at Khartoum, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, that their advance on Asmara, the Eritrean capital, was met Tuesday by Italian emissaries bearing a white flag.

The Italians said resistance had ceased and asked that Asmara be considered an open town, the communique said, adding:

"It is not known yet whether the order to cease fire refers only to Asmara or to the whole of Eritrea."

Thus, without opposition from the so-called "impregnable" Fort Baldissera, the British took over a city of nearly 100,000 population, half Italians.

The Fascist troops who withdrew there and the survivors of the bitter Battle of Cheren—40,000 in all—were said to have fled south and southeast.

It announced that the Italian destroyer sunk by naval aircraft was of the 1,526-ton Pantera class. It was hit as it fled from Massaua. Near the same port the British destroyer Kandahar intercepted the 4,188-ton German freighter Bertram Rickmers.

[In the Mediterranean action, a New York Times dispatch said, a British submarine whose identity was not given, attacked and sank an Italian submarine, and then followed up its victory by torpedoing and sinking the Italian tanker Laura Corrado, 3,645 tons. The exact location of this action was not revealed.]

British Fall Back in Libya

Cairo, April 2 (U.P.).—Abandonment of the Libyan coast town of Marsa El Brega to German and Italian armored forces was admitted today in a Brtish communique.

Marsa El Brega is 30 miles east of El Agheila, high-water mark of Britain's conquest of eastern Libya and 130 miles south of British-held Bengasi.

(The German and Italian high commands, announcing the taking of Marsa El Brega, said the British were falling back hurriedly to Agedabia, 70 miles by coast road from El Agheila which Italo-German "panzer" forces occupied last week.

(The German high command said the British attempted "unsuccessful" counterattacks to recover Marsa El Brega after its capture by Germany's African corps, aided by their own and Italian planes, and that "a number of British prisoners were taken and numerous British armored patrol cars and trucks were destroyed on the ground in battle and by our air attacks."

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Bette Davis Will Count The Candles on a Cake

SO WE MIGHT AS WELL QUOTE the telegram.

"You are cordially invited to be guest of Warner Brothers at Bette Davis birthday celebration and world premiere of her latest picture, 'The Great Lie,' at Littleton, N. H., Saturday, April 5. It will be real New England birthday party with whole population of Franconia Notch area taking part in festivities in honor of New England's most famous actress. Littleton, population 6,000, is metropolis of Franconia area, where Bette has built her home. Many colorful events planned to take place against background of one of most beautiful mountain regions in America. Gov. Blood of New Hampshire, and other State officials will be present. Governor will lead grand march with Bette at gala ball, following premiere. Events will include trip up and down Cannon Mountain on famous aerial tramway. Optional visit to Old Man of Mountain, made famous by Hawthorne's story, 'The Great Stone Face.' Torchlight motorcade through entire Franconia Notch area. Cocktail party, at which visiting press will be entertained by Bette and her husband, Arthur Farnsworth, to whom she was married New Year's Eve.

BELL

"Be sure to bring plenty of warm clothes, as Littleton is great ski country, which means lots of snow. By no means forget the long underwear and the galoshes. Our train leaves New York's Grand Central Station 8:45 p. m., Friday, April 4. Back in New York 9:45 p. m., Sunday April 6. Best Regards.
MITCHELL RAWSON."

This looks like a pretty hopeless business. That long underwear was left back in Chicago, when we migrated to the West Indies about 1901, and there hasn't been a galosh in the Bell family since goodness knows when, Hector was a pup and winters were what they used to be. And, anyhow, how come a lot of snow, even in New Hampshire, in April? Furthermore to this column's rickety legs, the ski's the limit. We do have a spat, come to think of it, that could be pressed into service for the sake of the old ankle, but what about that Sunday makeup? Which, of course, is all apart from the fact that we know and deeply admire Bette Davis and would love to be at her party. We'd also like to have a million dollars and a home on Waikiki Beach.

Red Fire And Dancing in the Streets

The Earle Theater is beginning to burn a little red fire in anticipation of its forthcoming stage bills. With Martha Raye, as near to the present-day Eva Tanguay as we are apt to get, coming in on Friday, the Warnerites also are dancing in the street about that "Truth or Consequences" radio feature in the nearby offing. This program, so they tell me, has been going up in the ratings while many of the others have been coming down. I wouldn't know about that and Radio Editor Coe refuses to commit himself. At any rate, the thing was originated by Ralph Edwards, who still presides over its destinies. It's an old parlor game that has been whipped into an etherized item that lacks all of the common qualities of ether. Then there is that fellow Joe Cook. Joe is bringing his latest revue to the Earle stage contemporaneously with the rounding up of his musical biography, "Cook Book," out at Catholic University, under the aegis of Father Hartke and his Harlequins. And another thing. Charlie Spivak and His Orchestra, who found it impossible to get here a few minutes ago, now see an open date not too far ahead and have given it to the Earle. There will be a notable group of specialists along with Mr. Spivak, when, as and if he gets here.

Our aforementioned Mr. Richard Livingston Coe, who made the grade when we couldn't, reports that Mary Martin, who arrived at her 5 o'clock Carlton rout at 6, on Tuesday, is a ravishing young woman of infinite beauty and jest, who might well be made the subject of an unrestrained panegyric. If we were to repeat Mr. Coe's adjectives, you would think we were publishing a thesaurus of show business' favorite superlatives. The discouraging aspect of the whole thing is that her heart still belongs to daddy.

But-Don't-Be-Too-Sure Note

This might be that spring they've been talking so much about.

Costar Again in Sequel to Memorable 'Boys Town'

SPENCER TRACY AND MICKEY ROONEY

as they will appear in "Men of Boys Town," in a resumption of the roles that made so deep an impression in the original "Boys Town." This new picturization of the admirable work of Father Flanagan, under the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer trade-mark, will open its first Washington engagement today on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, April 2.

Charlotte Greenwood, who played in three musical comedies in London for five years, can well understand the British morale which has stood up so well under the test of a very bitter and bloody war.

HOPPER

"They have a capacity for a sort of come-what-may bravery," Charlotte told me on the "Miami" set. "I was once in a hotel elevator when it fell five floors. Though no one was seriously injured, anywhere else in the world there would have been screaming and fainting. But not one of the passengers ever lost that British calm. It's mighty hard to beat people that have that."

When Clark Gable came into a scene for "The Uniform" yesterday and flung himself into a chair, there was a sharp crack and the chair started to fall apart. "Cut!" yelled Director Clarence Brown. "You props will either have to bring me a stronger chair or a weaker actor!"

Kenneth MacGowan, as member of the South America amity committee, is film editing one of the first 16 mm. cultural and educational films to be released in schools throughout the United States. General plan is to release such films made in North America in South America, and vice versa. Tyrone Power will be director and cameraman of the first short to be released by MacGowan, film having been completed by Ty after three trips to Mexico.

Hear that Bob Presnell and Richard Connell are pretty burned up over Frank Capra's treatment of their original story, "Meet John Doe." They didn't think $16,000 was enough for it, but agreed to sell at that price with the tacit agreement that Cooper would go off the building instead of into Stanwyck's arms. They feel that they wrote a great social document, and the picture hasn't the significance they intended . . . Nat Pendleton swears he saw this on a theater marquee: "Bank Night, Free Car, Dish Night, All This and Heaven, Too—Fifteen Cents!"

Director Bill Keighley and his wife, Genevieve Tobin, are going to visit Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Cagney at their Martha's Vineyard, Mass., home, where Bill and Jimmy can rest up, and the two wives can go antiquing all over New England. And how I envy them! I did it one year, came across silver snuff boxes for $3, and have since turned down $100 for them!

Kissing isn't as prevalent on the screen as it used to be, due to some odd obsession of the censors, so the modern love scene, devoid of embraces, calls for a high-voltage love sparkle in the heroine's eye. Seems that Rouben Mamoulian (the actor's friend) has now developed a "pencil point spot" for the love scenes between Ty Power and Rita Hayworth in "Blood and Sand."

They tell me that once they get a head on Rita's pupils with this magic gadget it's a cinch for a clinch. Nita Naldi never needed a light—but she could have used a censor or two!

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, April 3 (INS).—Just as I was getting ready to put my column on the teletype a telegram arrived saying that the Ethel Barrymore play, "The Corn Is Green," by Emlyn Williams, had been bought by Warner Brothers for Bette Davis and Ida Lupino. Won't that be something to start the two queens of the lot in one movie? Jack Warner saw the Williams play in London when it opened there and he had never stopped trying to buy it for Warners. The asking price was $150,000, but I understand from New York that you can safely cut that in half and arrive at the right figure.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Farmer Bromfield, on his farm in Ohio, had an idea for a novel that he knew was good. So he sent it to M.-G.-M. after he had written an outline. Almost as soon as "Mrs. Parkington" (that's what he is calling his story) was received here, a check was sent Bromfield for the film rights. The idea is tremendous—as effective in the telling as "Cimarron." It is a cavalcade of American women, starting with the first one in a family, who was a pioneer, and including four generations.

I have always said that Sally Eilers is one of the very prettiest girls in Hollywood and that she has genuine acting talent. If Sally weren't married to Harry Joe Brown, successful producer, and she had to work hard to make a living, she'd probably now be on Broadway or doing something important in the movies, but when you have a comfortable home, an adoring husband and a little son it is difficult to concentrate on a career. Sally now will check in at Columbia with Donald Woods in "I Was a Prisoner on Devil's Island," with Lew Landers directing.

Snapshots of Hollywood Collected at Random: Ann Dvorak reveals that Leslie Fenton is now a commissioned officer in the British navy. Victor Mature and Virginia Fields have discovered each other in New York and are at all the night spots together; Ken Murray squiring Kay (Tillie the Toiler) Harris to the Pirates' Den; Billy Bakewell and Tanya Widrin, who once occupied Rudy Vallee's attentions, at a table for two at the Seven Seas.

Pat Knowles is visiting his old friend, Errol Flynn, in San Diego; Monday night at the Mocambo was plenty gay. Norma Shearer brought most of her dinner party, honoring Jean Gabin, there to dance. The French favorite had a chance to see some Hollywood night life; Jock Whitney and the Charlie Feldmans, Sylvia Fairbanks, the Andrew Davens, Minna Wallis, David Lewis and Mrs. Black were among those who went Mocamboing.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Pick of 2,000 Beauties Are Guests at a 'Little Outing'

By Frederick C. Othman

United Press Hollywood Correspondent

Arrowhead Spring, Calif., April 2.—This essay had better be entitled "A Reporter Goes to a Party." Director Robert Z. Leonard invited a dozen of his Ziegfeld girls on what he called a little outing. He also invited a couple of dozen photographers.

The pretty girls, pick of nearly 2,000 tested for roles in "Ziegfeld Girl," came here by bus, smiling for the picture purposes, they stopped and bought candy for ditto, and when they finally got here, a cold wind was whistling around the swimming pool.

So they all were told to get in their bathing suits. Seven didn't have any. They bought white satin ones in a shop in the Arrowhead Springs Hotel, at a cost of $10.75 per—bill to Director Leonard. Then they lined up at the pool for the magazine cameramen, the movie newsreel men and the newspaper photographers. Goose pimples broke out on their legs. Director Leonard fortified them with sherry.

The Ritzy Kibitzers

Two of the three Ritz Brothers came out on the lawn to watch. So did a number of elderly gentlemen, with movie cameras of their own. While the professional photographers took pictures of the beauties from the front, amateurs ground film from the rear.

Leonard's guests were worth photographing from any angle. They included Alaine Brandes, known as the composite girl because her hair is like Hedy LaMarr's and her mouth like Carole Lombard's and so on; Claire James, the current Miss America; Madeline Martin, clothes model; Loraine Gettman, whose photos have appeared in magazines all over the land; Frances Gladwin, the goose girl at Hollywood race track; Georgia Carroll, New York's leading advertising model; Louise LaPlanche, who is Miss Catalina and Miss North America, too; Harriett Benet, a former Carroll girl; Virginia Cruzon, the Chinese Theater usherette whom the talent scouts couldn't pass by, and the Misses Myrna Dell, Gayle Mellott and Patsy Mace, beauties all.

Chicken Hips Vs. Camera

Leonard eventually took his girls down the road to a barbecue; they still had on their bathing suits which they still hadn't gotten wet, and they had some trouble eating their chicken because they had to pose while doing it. There's nothing a beauty hates worse than looking into a camera while she's gnawing on a chicken leg.

Walt Disney and Samuel Goldwyn announce they've joined forces to film the fairy tales, and the life, too, of Hans Christian Andersen. Goldwyn owns the story of the Danish story teller; Disney owns the stories he told. Milton Berle, Mrs. Pat O'Brien, Mary Pickford, Mrs. Bob Hope, Mrs. Lehr and almost every woman who amounts to anything in the movie business are preparing for a "red, white and blue" party May 3; the proceeds to go to hungry actors.

Star's Poodle Lost In Auto Leap

If anyone should find a white French poodle, who answers to the name of Blanche, notify Rose Hobart on the set of "Lady Be Good."

Returning from work the other evening, the poodle became excited when she spotted a cat and jumped out of the car into a maze of traffic. By the time Miss Hobart could stop her car and go after the dog, it had disappeared. More than an hour's search brought no results.

The sad part of the whole story is the fact that Blanche has five month-old puppies at Miss Hobart's house. Until Blanche is found, or goes home of her own accord, the pups are being fed from doll nursing bottles.

Leonard Lyons:

New York, April 2.

JOHN P. MARQUAND, the Pulitzer Prize novelist and author of "H. M. Pulhan, Esq.," posed recently in Boston for a series of photos for Life Magazine. The cameraman suggested that one of the pictures should show the author standing on the steps of St. Botolph's Club, which is hallowed by New England tradition. Marquand reported this to the officers of the club, who decided to let the members determine the question of whether a photographer be permitted to take a picture there . . . "I'm afraid the members won't stand for it," Marquand was told. "But you belong to the Tavern Club. Why don't you have the picture taken there?" . . . "At the Tavern Club?" Marquand replied, as if he had been asked to deflower New England. "I wouldn't dream of asking them."

March Income Tax Receipts Of 1.1 Billion Set New Record

By the Associated Press

The Treasury said yesterday income tax collections reached a monthly record of about $1,100,000,000 in March. Income taxes, officials said, accounted for nearly all of the $1,207,512,891 income and excess profits tax collections recorded during the month. Segregation of the two types of taxes will be made on Treasury books later.

March income tax collections are the most important guide to annual Federal revenues, because in that month many individuals and corporations pay their full year's income taxes, while others subject to the tax pay their first quarterly installment.

The March total was nearly double the $565,456,755 collected in March of last year. The figure exceeded collections made during the whole of several recent fiscal years.

The March total was believed by some officials to be at least $300,000,000 in excess of budget estimates. With three months of the fiscal year yet to go, during which time another quarterly payment date will arrive, income tax collections already amount to about $2,300,000,000 of the $3,055,000,000 predicted by President Roosevelt in his budget for the fiscal year, which will end June 30.

Revenues, however, were still far behind expenditures, and Administration leaders were preparing to ask new taxes of Congress.

For the first nine months of the fiscal year total revenues from all taxes amoutned to $5,372,101,790, but expenditures amounted to $8,770,628,952, leaving a deficit of $3,398,527,162.

The spending program was led by ever-growing defense costs, March defense expenditures totaling $744,604,763. This figure was $152,000,000 above February's and was the ninth consecutive monthly rise in such expenditures. The rate of this monthly gain was shown by the fact that the March total was more than four times the size of such costs last July, when the current defense program started.

Borrowing to finance the resulting deficit today pushed the Federal debt over $47,000,000,000, also a record. After completing bookkeeping on a recent $500,000,000 borrowing operation the Treasury said the public debt on March 31 was $47,172,888,619.

Retiring Police Inspector Holmes Praised by Chief

With tears in his eyes, Police Inspector William E. Holmes, former District traffic supervisor, became a civilian yesterday, satisfied that his efforts had won for Washington the 1940 traffic safety ward of the National Safety Council.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, in presenting the veteran of more than 30 years service with a scroll and wrist watch, told Inspector Holmes he could be proud of his achievements as traffic supervisor. The major informed Holmes of a telegram he had received in notification of the award of "safest city" in the more-than-500,000 population group.

"I extend my official and personal appreciation for your services," Maj. Brown declared.

Holmes expressed his thanks to the men of the department "for their cooperation," and said that the gifts "affect me deeply." "You have a good man to take my place—Inspector Arthur E. Miller," Holmes asserted.

Columbia

Winner of the Academy Award as the finest picture of the last year, "Rebecca" returns this morning to the Columbia Theater.

Nor was this Alfred Hitchcock adaptation of the Daphne du Maurier novel simply "the best picture of the year" according to the votes of the film-makers themselves. For his photography, George Barnes received the award for the finest black and white cinematography of the year. While Joan Fontaine, Laurence Olivier and Judith Anderson did not actually receive official Academy recognition for their performances in the leads, their work placed them in the forefront of the also-rans, made of Miss Anderson a firstrank character actress in one of her earliest screen efforts, clinched Olivier's hold on a vast public and turned Miss Fontaine from a sugary ingenue into a player of dominant ability.

It's a late date to retell Miss du Maurier's widely read story of the second wife whose marriage is haunted by the memory of the first. It originally was told in the first person—and masterly Director Alfred Hitchcock has managed to capture the same striking quality. From the start of the film, when the second Mrs. de Winter begins to look back on her married life, one is conscious that here is a new technique, a rare inventiveness that has been recognized by its recent award.

Surely one of the features that won Producer Selznick's "Rebecca" the top award is its supporting cast—a group of players of outstanding merit; George Sanders, Nigel Bruce, Reginald Denny, C. Aubrey Smith, Gladys Cooper, Florence Bates, Melville Cooper, Leo G. Carroll, Leonard Carey and Lumsden Hare.

Keep False Teeth Purified Says Dr. Sherwin

Don't brush your false teeth or dental plates—you can't purify them that way—you can't even clean them properly that way.

Keep up with the times—get today a generous 30-cent bottle of Stera-Kleen—give your plate a bath as directed, and after the first bath your false teeth will start to sparkle with purity and cleanliness—will so glisten with beauty that you'll be proud of them. Your mouth will feel much better—rejuvenated.

Just a little of Stera-Kleen in a half glass of water and all slimy mucin stains and murkiness begin to go—it's amazing—lasts for weeks—30 cents—all drug stores.

Health Center

Dr. Ruhland's survey of hospital and medical facilities that might be pressed into service in time of war or other emergency could have led to only one conclusion. In case of severe epidemics or other conditions growing out of total war, he says, "the existing facilities would be inadequate." When a community is struggling to obtain more public hospital beds and health centers to meet the ordinary needs of its indigent families, it can scarcely be expected to be prepared for an emergency.

It is reassuring to know that plans to meet extraordinary demands upon the city's medical facilities are being laid. If this effort centers attention upon the need for new health centers, it will be doubly salutary. For many years the Health Department has been trying to induce Congress to provide funds for such a center in the Northwest central area. Clinical services are now being rendered there, but from widely separated buildings. In these circumstances neither economy nor efficiency can be attained. A centralized clinic would also be used as headquarters for an improved nursing service and more extensive laboratory work.

Experience long ago established the fact that well-managed health centers reduce the necessity of hospitalization at public expense. In these institutions diseases may be detected and their ravages checked before expensive treatments become necessary. So it is good business, to say nothing of humanitarian considerations, to provide modern, efficient clinics for those who cannot afford proper medical care. Construction of the proposed Northwest health center would thus seem to be one of the best health-insurance projects this rapidly expanding city could undertake.

Balkan Moves

The violent press campaign which the Nazis have launched against Yugoslavia is ominously reminiscent of the torrent of abuse hurled against Czecho-Slovakia in the period before Munich. The purpose is clearly to break the spirit of a nation which, with the overwhelming support of its people, refuses to compromise its independence. But the campaign does not appear to be succeeding, not even in Croatia, where enthusiasm for last week's coup d'etat was measurably less than in the Serbian portions of the triune kingdom. Present indications point to a drawing together of Serb and Croat which will enable the Simovitch government to act with that unity which the situation demands. It may be because of that development that the Belgrade government, far from succumbing to German pressure, has refused to budge an inch. If it can be done honorably, Premier Simovitch would like to keep his nation at peace. But he is not blinking his eyes to the dangerous possibilities of the present situation, and this is why the mobilization of the Yugoslav army is proceeding apace.

In the game of pressure politics which Hitler is now playing in the Balkans with all the weapons of terror and intimidation he commands, Yugoslavia is not entirely helpless. For if Germany invades that kingdom the first victim of this act of aggression would be not so much Yugoslavia as Italy. Yugoslavia might have to evacuate Croatia and Slovenia, a circumstance which helps to explain the eagerness of certain elements in those regions for a compromise with the Axis. But while maintaining a defensive position in the mountainous area to the south, the Yugoslav army could strike out in the direction of Durazzo, and thus catch the badly battered Italian forces in Albania in a vise. It is not surprising, therefore, that Mussolini has been trying desperately to find a modus vivendi between Belgrade and Berlin. He has troubles enough already without the additional difficulty of having to fight the Yugoslavs. But whether Hitler would be moved by the plight of his partner to forego the chastisement of a nation which has caused him his greatest loss of face since he came to power eight years ago is not so certain.

What Hitler will do is still anybody's guess. Already he has allowed a week to go by without striking out at Yugoslavia. In part this may have been due to the desire to withdraw the German population before hostilities begin; in part because the Yugoslav coup was so unexpected that the German army in the Balkans was forced to make a rapid and drastic revision of its battle plans. But that in itself is an ominous circumstance for a military machine which sets such great store by meticulous preparations for eventualities worked out in advance. The Serbs certainly spilled the German apple cart, and it is taking Hitler some time to pick up his battered Balkan fruit. That is not the least important aspect of a development which historians may deem to have been a major turning point in the history of World War II.

Strike Menace

The labor crisis arrived at a dangerous new zenith yesterday less than 24 hours after President Roosevelt had discussed the situation in complacent tones at his press conference. Industrial war broke out in Milwaukee, Dearborn and Harlan. Men who should have been at work producing coal and machinery for national defense fought desperate battles in the streets in defiance of law-enforcement authorities. In place of the spirit of give and take, which the President hopes will prevail, there was only giving and taking with firearms, steel bars, barrel staves and bricks.

There is good reason for the President to be pleased with the work of the National Defense Mediation Board to date. It has demonstrated both capacity and dispatch in settling disputes referred to it. Yet strikes seems to be breaking out faster than they can be settled by all Government agencies. Some of these walkouts, like that at the Ford plant in Dearborn and the coal strike, carry grave threats to the defense program. Others, like that in the Allis-Chalmers plant at Milwaukee, also involve flagrant defiance of the Federal Government.

Unquestionably the Dearborn strike has its roots in the refusal of the Ford Motor Co. to bargain collectively with its employes. The Government owes organized labor an obligation to see that its rights are protected in the Ford plants, as elsewhere. At last the NLRB is moving with dispatch to complete hearings preliminary to ordering the election of collective bargaining representatives to meet with Mr. Ford. But the union has now prejudiced its case by calling a strike and barricading the streets to prevent nonstrikers from building machines for defense of their country. Clearly both sides have ignored the public interest in an emergency and ought to be called to an accounting.

As for the Allis-Chalmers dispute, it is assumed that this will be dropped into the lap of the new Mediation Board. But the fight has long since passed the stage of mediation. Secretary Knox and OPM Director Knudsen ordered the factory reopened last week after it had been discovered that the strike was called by fraudulent stuffing of ballot boxes. Now it has had to be closed once more because of violence and bloodshed which the State of Wisconsin, in the absence of its National Guard, is unable to control. This strike has degenerated into virtual war against the Government, and should be regarded as such.

A strong and unequivocal national policy in dealing with such arbitrary conduct on the part of both employers and employes has thus become imperative. Perhaps the President expects the Mediation Board to develop such a policy. But even an alert and powerful strike-settling board cannot take the place of a strong-minded and active Secretary of Labor. Secretary Perkins has many achievements to her credit. And it is no disparagement of her to say that, in the present emergency, the office she holds ought to go to a man who would give positive leadership in the development of a practicable labor policy. This is a time when no one should cling to a high governmental office that might be more advantageously directed by stronger or more experienced hands. Sacrifices for the national welfare should not stop with the drafting of young men for military service. The present epidemic of strikes calls for some drafting in other quarters where labor policy is supposed to be initiated.

Historic Waters

The recent battle in the Ionian Sea already bids fair to become one of the classic engagements of naval history. Not its least interesting aspect is that it should have occurred in waters already famous for the decisive actions that have been fought in them. It was in this sea in the first century before our era that the destiny of Europe and of the world was decided in the great victory of Octavian, later Caesar Augustus, over the fleet of Antony and Cleopatra off Actium, on the coast of Epirus. In its way this was a victory as brilliant as that of the British last week. Antony had ordered the attack, apparently to cover the retreat of himself and his land forces, but it rapidly evolved into a general action. The two fleets were nearly equal, and for a time the fight raged without advantage. But, on this occasion, it was the superior seamanship of Octavian's admirals, their recognition of the importance of "keeping whole," that carried the day. The Egyptian fleet was put to flight, separated, and its ships fired and destroyed. Today Mussolini might well echo the words that Shakespeare puts into the mouth of Antony's henchman, Scarus, as he watches the fight from the Plain of Actium—

> The greater cantle of the world is lost
> With very ignorance; we have kiss'd away
> Kingdoms and provinces!

Southeast of Actium the waters of the Ionian Sea enter the Gulf of Corinth. And it was there, more than 1,600 years after Actium, that the galleys of Don John of Austria attacked and routed the Turkish naval power in the last great conflict to be fought entirely with oar-propelled ships. This victory of Lepanto, celebrated in the magnificent poem of the late G. K. Chesterton, rescued the West from its greatest peril since the invasion of the Golden Horde. But by all accounts the recent action in the Ionian Sea was so skillfully fought against a superior enemy that the Ionian Sea must hereafter be as inseparably associated with the name of Admiral Cunningham as that of Cape Trafalgar with Nelson.

Spiritual Offensive

Even those who in prewar years spotted the portent of Hitlerism gave away a good Jeffersonian word when they called Hitlerism revolutionary. With such help Mrs. Lindbergh was hypnotized into thinking of Naziism as the wave of the future. In point of fact, the "stuff and nonsense," in the President's language, of Hitlerism is atavistic, a throwback to the days of tyranny before men had won their freedom. Revolution is the monopoly of freemen, and the true revolution is being born anew in the hearts of mankind, taking form in a universal determination to stamp out a menace which threatens the domain that Hitler frankly calls "our world" with a new Dark Age.

Two foreigners on the excellent radio program sponsored by the Immigration and Naturalization Service on Tuesday night sought to endow the anti-Hitler movement in the habiliments of true revolution. They are journalists both: Genevieve Tabouis and Edward Weinthal. Both of them long ago discerned the true significance of Hitlerism. Neither of them felt that there was anything revolutionary in it. What they did see was the rise of the same old tyranny on the same old opportunity—namely, a forgetfulness in the democracies that the price of liberty is eternal vigilance. Mme. Tabouis spoke of French indifference and complacency. Mr. Weinthal pointed up his colleague's experience by saying that the "greatest tragedy" had been that the democracies had not lived up to their pristine dynamism in pursuing the quest for a good society.

Such neglect on the part of the democracies, as a matter of fact, is what gave Hitler his edge. The spirit of sacrifice and devotion to duty—these were two of the democratic qualities which lay dormant in the democracies. In his own country, Hitler harnessed those very qualities in the service of evil. One is reminded of G. K. Chesterton's aphorism that despotism is nothing but a tired democracy. What is more, Hitler stole the very clothes of the democracies while they were asleep. Because of democratic sloth, he could delude the Mrs. Lindberghs into thinking, and he could make the little men think, that it was his movement which was the revolution against injustice, against greed, against insecurity.

So, in the new stirring of freemen everywhere, there is required not so much defense as offense. The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto by tyrants, but to minister and to give His life as ransom for many. We democratic people were the original revolutionaries, and at our peril we cannot lose the spirit of revolution, be it against tyranny wrapped in the same ancient forms or against tyranny decked out with the impostor terms which are our old words turned against us. The call, as Mr. Weinthal put it, is for a "spiritual offensive" to break down the evil and also to restore a dynamic good.

Piccadilly Arcade

Many prized possessions of Washington families have been donated to the Piccadilly Arcade for the benefit of the Royal Air Force Benevolent Fund. Society women are acting as shopkeepers for the sale, which opens today at 1423-25 F Street Northwest, and will continue through Saturday. But it must not be thought that the Arcade is a society affair; it has been comprehensive by a community effort. Carpenters and sign painters volunteered their services; cleaning establishments brightened up the garments contributed; local stores lent their counters, and students at Cardozo High School painted the sign in the window. It is now up to the public at large to match this display of community sympathy for our gallant friends—the few who have stood guard for the many—across the sea.

WEAVER

Weave stolidly from dawn to dusk,
Shut out all human love and passion;
Feed your starved soul upon the husk
Of life, and be content to fashion
A fabric, beautiful and frail,
But know, when all too late for weeping,
Held safe from every storm and gale
It will be yours, for lonely sleeping.

America To "Unista"

I understand that the natives in Gua' nala resent our use, as though it were our own exclusive property, of the words America and American. They refuse to call us Americans, but instead call us "gringos," which is a Spanish term of contempt.

If we turn to the word America in any encyclopedia we find it does not refer to this country at all. It is the name of this whole Western Hemisphere. Because our official title, United States of America, is too unmanageable for everyday use, and because we have no other suitable title to take its place, we have been forced to use the word America instead, and hundreds of years of use has made this seem right and proper. Precedent, of course, is all on our side, but even precedent cannot overrule the fact that the name of America covers a vast stretch of territory, of which our country is less than one-fifth in area.

The need of some handy and distinctive title for our country and its people has often been noted, and various names have been suggested. Among these, and perhaps the best, are "Unista" and "Unistans" (abbreviations of our official title).

Our continental use of the words America and American is distasteful to our Latin-American cousins; it is like waving a red rag in front of a bull; like holding out one hand in friendship to them, and then slapping them in the face with the other.

If we care more for precedent than we do for the esteem of our southern neighbors, well and good. But since we have been moving heaven and earth to establish more friendly relations with them, we should not overlook any good chance to do so.

"Unista" and "Unistan" would be time-savers as well as space-savers, and they would be promoters of good will, leaving the United States of America for formal use only. Of all the countries, this, the greatest one of all, is the only one that has no handy, distinctive title.

Remedy For Strikes Lies With Congress

Yesterday, I sat in a motion picture theater and, after a few minutes, the news reel was flashed on the screen. Certain strike scenes had been filmed. What I saw impressed me, tear bombs being exploded in order to restore order. Strikers deliberately defying law and order by throwing stones and other missiles. Immediately, the question loomed in my mind. "What is wrong?" In presenting my views, please bear in mind that I am a member of a union. I believe in unions. I am therefore pro-labor, but I am an American. I have been in strikes. I have been ordered into the "picket line." I have witnessed my fellow workers throwing missiles, but, somehow, I have always refrained from such acts, urged by a consideration, that although I had the right to register my protest, I had no right either morally or legally to commit a criminal act, and the throwing of stones or other objects is a criminal act and not in accordance with the precepts of law and order which my parents instilled in me.

I appreciate the fact that we of the laboring class are confronted with a serious situation, but as a member of a union, I make the charge that it is the direct fault of our fellow Americans who have been elected to represent us in the House of Congress. And I feel that members of Congress are more interested in being elected or re-elected and have shunned and will shun, until there is an aroused public sentiment, the issues which present themselves and which directly involve the conduct of our unions. Now is the time to act.

What are the remedies? Simple enough. Labor unions should be regulated by Congress. Laws should be immediately enacted which would bring them under close scrutiny of the Government. Here are some examples:

(1). No union shall contribute to the campaign chest of any political party, political candidate, or to any political committee. Such a violation to be punished by adequate fines or even imprisonment.

(2). Each union shall publish and certify its membership list.

(3). Accurate books shall be kept showing dues and other assessments levied against a member. All expenditures are to be shown and certified. The reason for such expenditures shall be noted.

(4). A member in good standing in the union shall be granted the right to be heard at meetings. He shall be permitted to voice his opinions. He shall have the right to demand and be informed as the the past character of delegates.

(5). No persons shall be a delegate or other important labor union official if he has been convicted of a crime. Nor shall such delegate or official be permitted to hold office, if he is not an American citizen. Nor shall he hold such office if he believes in any doctrine which has for its philosophy or theory the overthrow of our Government.

(6). No strike shall be called until the Government has been given the opportunity to investigate all the facts. The commission to determine such facts shall be composed, with the exception of its chairman of qualified experts appointed as a result of a competitive civil service examination and shall only be removed for cause and after a trial. In this fashion they will not be subjected to political influence.

(7). Unions should be subjected to an income law. Dues shall be determined by a budget, which budget shall be based on a nonprofit idea. In other words, the budget shall include only necessary expense for an administrative section. Unions shall not be permitted to establish funds to pay their members when on strike. Union officials should be limited to the salaries they are paid, to prevent unjust enrichment. Some of our leaders can qualify as the so-called "economic royalists."

Employers must be told by legislation that the laboring classes are those who keep the factories going. Their wages shall be commensurate in relative share to that which they produce for the employer, taking into consideration reserves which must be established for expansion, losses and business slack. Their books shall be at all times open for inspection to the Government and labor unions established under the new principles. When reserves are too large, they shall be paid to the employes, stockholders, in a just proportion.

When we shall have established such unions, communism and other isms will die by their own folly and weight. A. D'ANDREAS.
Alexandria, Va., March 29.

"Iron Law" Of Wages

As a publisher of Westbrook Pegler's column, The Post might be interested in a fact or two related to organized labor. For some unexplained reason, Mr. Pegler says all he can to discredit labor unions. They appear to be his pet abomination. His stuff is amazingly allergic to union labor.

One looks in vain for some recognition of the fact, or principle, that the unionization of labor for collective bargaining is its sole defense against the iron law of wages. This is the law which until recently, before the unpacking of the Supreme Court, was the supreme law of the land. The iron law says that in a "system" of free competition, labor, consisting of man-hours, is a commodity subject to the law of demand and supply and that the wages of labor, its price, must constantly tend to the minimum required to maintain the supply of labor. "The living wage" is known in the "science" of economics as Ricardo's Iron Law of Wages. The law, like the Malthusian doctrine as to pressure of population upon subsistence, is one of the "immutable" laws of laissez-faire economics. It had been a favorite of the Old Deal.

Labor unions, as a matter of cold, hard fact, have had difficulty in beating the iron law. The war is helping them. When the surplus is taken off the market, whether or not it is converted into cannon fodder, as in '17, the price of man-hours, the commodity, is sure to rise. It is the iron law. Then we may have another "new era" of consuming power. It need not crash this time.

RICHARD FRANCHOT.

Adolf-Benito

I dislike parodies in general, but the following seems to express so truly the feelings of the majority of people that I offer it for their perusal with apologies to the author of "Abou Ben Adhem."

Adolf-Benito (may their tribe decrease!)
Awoke one night from a bad dream of Greece.
And saw in a weird light within their room.
Making it sulphurous and full of gloom,
The Devil writing on a book's broad fold:
Their dream of Greece had made them not so bold.
And to the Devil, in their room, they said,
"What writest thou?" The Devil raised his head.
And with a look of tripartite accord,
Answered, "The names of those who hate the Lord!"
"And are ours there?" asked they. "Yea, even so,"
Replied the Devil. Here they spoke more low.
But cheerily still, and said, "We pray thee then,
Write, too, that we both hate our fellow men."

The Devil wrote and vanished. The next night
He came again, in phosphorescent light,
And showed the names whom all just men have cursed:
Benito's name was second, Adolf's first!

The Post Impressionist

"Bear-Leading"

My connection with "tourismo" began quite casually. In the spring of 1926 I was down on my luck, in London, and casting around—somewhat ineffectually—for a temporary job to tide over, as I hoped, between periods of prosperity I met a friend in Piccadilly who knew that I had traveled all my life. "Come in and have a 'quick one'," quoth he, as he lured me toward a pub. "I hear you're having a thin time; why don't you capitalize your travel experience by becoming a courier?"

I savored the "quick one" and tried to look wise, but I had to admit complete ignorance. "What's a courier?" I finally asked.

My friend explained that the big tourist agencies employed experienced travelers to conduct tourists around Europe and elsewhere, on salary and expense account, and that the work was interesting, amusing and reasonably well paid. I lost no time in immediately applying to the nearest travel agency, and somewhat to my own surprise talked myself into a "temporary" job that lasted seven years, and involved uncounted thousands of miles of travel in Europe, North, Central and South America, and ocean voyages in both the Atlantic and Pacific.

I was first sent to poor Plymouth (Nazi bombers were undreamed of then), where, with an outward calmness that masked an inward perturbation, I met my first group of some 30 American tourists. In those lush years of that prosperity yclept "Coolidge," most of the tourists, at least the male ones, came to Europe quite frankly to escape the rigors of the Eighteenth Amendment, and didn't care who knew it. The result was that everybody knew it! It startled me no end to find that quite a percentage of this, my initial group, were getting their first glimpse of Europe through an alcoholic haze. However, we scrambled through the passport and customs formalities, and the ensuing trip to London on what was then the fastest train in the world, the famous Plymouth-Paddington Boat Express, 225 miles in about three hours, scared them sober. "Afraid the train would run off the damn little island," as one of them remarked.

The tourists were making their first European trip, and I was having my first experience at "bear-leading" (courier slang), and didn't want them to know.

So that first voyage through Britain and the continent was mutually enlightening. As trip succeeded trip and I really learned to do my stuff with effortless ease, I often looked back upon that first experimental journey, and wondered if those first travel companions suspected that I frequently had to improvise answers, which were sometimes wrong, and pretend I knew some Italian hill town well, when as a matter of fact I'd never heard of it before. Older, experienced couriers taught me the rope. I got over my first nervousness, became well acquainted with scores of hotel managers, headwaiters, dining car conductors and incomparably fine local guides, and really enjoyed it all.

The rules of the "dear old firm" were delightfully simple: Protect the firm's interests, protect the tourists' interests, and send 'em home happy, satisfied propagandists for more "tourismo." This involved watching over them like a mother hen, keeping them from being gypped by local flimflam merchants, getting them out of the clutches of the gendarmerie when they occasionally suffered from delusions (and I mean delusions) of grandeur, and that inevitable last night in Paris, running them to earth, unwrapping them from around lamp-posts, packing their bags, and pouring them onto the Cherbourg Boat Express for their reluctant return home. We couriers had our own, self-made rules: Always dine alone; always keep alert for a crisis; and don't try to drink even with the customers—it simply can't be done!

It was odd how the same types kept turning up in party after party, people from entirely different parts of the country, total strangers who ran true to form. There was the occasional ardent prohibitionist (usually female), who insisted on drinking tap water in Italy and Portugal—I left more than one of them recuperating from typhoid in Naples or Oporto hospitals. There was the successful butter-and-egg man who became panicky in a non-English-speaking country and wouldn't leave his hotel unescorted. There was the culture-club president, who argued historical dates with expert Parisian guides—and sometimes won the argument. There was the utterly bored, yet perfectly happy person who gaped at cathedrals between gulps, but who finally mutinied in the Florence Art Gallery and said "I simply can't look at any more bambini. I gotta have a drink!" There was the dear soul who, when I was directing the chauffeur of a sightseeing bus, backing out of an alley, by shouting the Spanish word for "enough" (which is ibasta! ibasta!), said reproachfully, "Oh, don't; he's doing the best he can!" There was—but why go on?

Travel was of all kinds, from super de luxe in the best hotels and on the Golden Arrow trains, to hole-in-corner pensions and hard, third-class benches for all-night journeys. A courier never knew where he was going next, at a moment's notice, and sometimes when the knock came at the door in the early morning, I could hardly remember what language to use in reply—in what country I had gone to bed the night before! And the scrapes out of which I had to drag the parties. Riots in Vienna, street-fighting in Berlin, breakdown of arrangements in the Andes, getting a man across a frontier without a passport (it can be done). But I loved every minute of it!

What's become of all my "tourismo" colleagues? Those couriers, managers, maitres d'hotel, conductors, guides? Empty hotels, commandeered trains, closed galleries, bombed cathedrals—finis "tourismo."

Today And Tomorrow

American Intervention After 10 Months

ABOUT TEN MONTHS have passed since in May, 1940, the United States Government by making available to the British and the French some weapons from its own reserves, ceased in fact and in intent to be neutral. From then on the American intervention has been intensified by the historic transfer of the 50 destroyers, by the immense armament program avowedly designed for defense against the triple Axis, by the passage of the lend-lease bill, by the seizure of merchant ships, by an increasing participation in the economic warfare, and by a succession of official declarations and of diplomatic actions.

LIPPMANN

There can be no doubt that these measures mark the end of American isolation and neutrality, and we are now in a position to examine, not theoretically in words but practically in the light of events, how this great change in American policy is working. In examining it we may undoubtedly assume that those who are called isolationists and those who are called interventionists are agreed that the test of this policy is whether it is promoting the real and substantial security of the American people—their security against the invasion of the Western Hemisphere, against intimidation by unfriendly powers, against being compelled to sacrifice masses of men in great battles fought in Europe or in South America or anywhere else. These real things are what matter—and not whether a particular measure is technically an act of war or whether a foreign power will think it advisable to call it an act of war. For what counts are not the names but the substance—whether the American people are more or are less secure against attack, are more or are less secure against vast and dangerous military involvement, than they were when the policy was first adopted.

ONLY THOSE will doubt that the United States is more secure who do not remember, or perhaps have never realized, the position of the United States when France capitulated last June. Hitler had smashed the French and British armies. Italy had just entered the war with a large and impressive navy and a considerable air force. The French navy was subject to capture by the Axis or to being betrayed by French politicians committed to the Axis. There was a partnership, which was very near to an alliance, between the European Axis and Japan. Great Britain, her army shattered, her defenses unprepared, her air force outnumbered, without allies anywhere, stood in imminent danger of an invasion and a conquest which threatened to end in the destruction or capture of her fleet.

At that desperate moment it appeared that within a few weeks—or at the latest by the end of the summer—the Axis might consummate a total victory in Europe, and that Japan, joining in for the kill, would conquer the Western Pacific and obtain the resources and the manpower for any ambition she might entertain. So dark was the prospect that eminent men among us rose up to speak and to say that the war was lost, and that our only course was to make the best bargain possible with the new masters of the world.

LAST SUMMER, when Col. Lindbergh openly, and Mr. Hoover implicitly, advised the American people to come to terms with the new order, the United States was committed to the defense of the Western Hemisphere and, at least until 1946, to the defense of the Philippines. Yet it had a Navy which on paper was not by any means decisively larger than the Japanese. It had no Navy and no naval bases remotely adequate for equality of bargaining power, much less for the defense of the Atlantic Ocean, against the navies of Germany, Italy, France and not to speak of any part of the British navy which might be captured.

The United States did not have even a common plan of defense with Canada and Mexico. For its air force it had little more than the plants built to fill the British and French orders. It had almost no Army. It had not organized and developed a munitions industry. It faced a prolonged political campaign in which strong efforts were certain to be made to capture votes by decrying the danger, by promising "peace" through inaction, by creating hysteric fear that any measures to reduce the real peril would lead to the imaginary peril of another great expeditionary army in Europe.

IN COMPARISON with our situation then, the risks we face now—even on the most pessimistic calculation — are immeasurably less. The most pessimistic calculation would be that Hitler will destroy Britain this season. If he does, we are still indisputably better off than we were last summer. We shall have gained a whole year during which we have enlarged the Navy, organized a great war industry, raised an Army, and waked up to the need of national defense. Even if the worst happens in Europe and Asia now, that year—which we might well have used more efficiently—has been precious beyond all description.

But as a matter of fact we have actually gained much more than the time which was absolutely indispensable to the organizing of our own defense. By our intervention last summer and by the measures which have followed, we have played a great part in a campaign which has already changed, decisively to our advantage, the whole balance of power in the world. Even if the worst happened this year, and it is far less likely to happen than it was last July, the totalitarian allies cannot now win any such victory as was in sight last July.

A victory then would have established the new order in Europe with the assent, however reluctant, of most of the nations of Europe. A victory now must be imposed by force on peoples among whom the spirit of rebellion is rising. A victory then would have been won by a Germany at the height of her military power with Italy in full force, with Britain unable to fight back with great power. A victory now, if it is to be won at all, must be won by Hitler at a terrific cost. For he must win it on difficult ground against a new Britain supported by effective allies.

In this year Italy has been stricken: The destruction of Italy's African empire, the blows inflicted on the Italian navy, have all but cut the link which threatened to unite the power of Germany with the power of Japan. The victories of Wavell and Cunningham in the Mediterranean, of the Greeks in the Balkans and of the Jugoslav uprising, have broken and dislocated the Nazi-Japanese combination. Hitler and the faction which supports him in Japan are separated physically and strategically by the defeats inflicted upon Italy. There is no formidable European navy now which can go to the assistance of Japan. The prospects of moderation in the Pacific have improved because, with the damage done to the Italian navy and its consequence, the immobilization of the French navy, Anglo-American sea power is relatively ever so much stronger than it was ten months ago.

THUS, on any estimate of the future, however sombre, it can be said that those who had faith have been justified as against those who offered the counsels of despair. The security of the United States is immeasurably greater today, come what may, than it was when Churchill dared to stand up and declare that Britain would never surrender, when Roosevelt and Willkie dared to stand up and say that we would support this high resolve. No risks we face now are comparable with the risks we faced ten months ago, and on the record of the events themselves we shall always be glad that in the English-speaking world the brave faith prevailed.

Congress And The Farmers

By Anna P. Youngman

The Farmers Want More

ALTHOUGH labor troubles momentarily hold the spotlight, Congress has not forgotten the farmer, who is demanding a larger share of the prosperity resulting from defense spending. From present indications agriculture is in line for larger subsidies and more liberal price-raising loans for producers of basic crops. Recently the House passed an agricultural supply bill for the fiscal year 1942 carrying direct appropriations of $890,800,000. To that should be added reappropriations and permanent appropriations which raise the total to approximately $1,009,000,000. Besides these direct appropriations the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to borrow $250,000,000 from the RFC for making loans to rural electrification projects, to farm tenants and for other purposes. When the House bill emerged from the Senate Committee on Appropriations, it carried net additions to the direct House appropriations of $449,800,000—$400,000,000 of which was accounted for by increased appropriations for parity payments. The bill which is now before the Senate also adds $25,000,000 to the maximum loans that may be borrowed from the RFC for rural rehabilitation.

YOUNGMAN

Despite the record-breaking totals carried in the Senate bill, it falls far short of the amounts that would be required to satisfy the farm groups who are demanding parity prices for their crops, or at least parity returns secured by some form of Government aid to supplement receipts from cash sales at current prices. The most direct way of giving the farmers what they want would be to vote subsidies large enough to cover the difference between actual cash incomes and the parity incomes which are sought—parity incomes being incomes that would give the farmer the same relative purchasing power compared with non-farm incomes that he had in 1909-'14. Experts in the Department of Agriculture estimate that the farmers' cash income falls over $2,000,000,000 short of what it would be if he were getting full parity prices for his crops. Producers of the five basic crops—cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco and rice—would have to receive over $1,000,000,000 in parity payments in addition to present production and conservation payments in order to reach the goal of complete parity. Few members of Congress would have the temerity to vote subsidies of such magnitude; so they are inclined to rely increasingly upon Government loans as a means of raising farm prices to any desired level and thus increasing the cash returns from farm sales of crops. For example, the Government's lending agency, the Commodity Credit Corporation, makes loans on the security of cotton, corn and wheat at certain percentages of their parity prices within limits fixed by law. The market price of these commodities cannot fall much below the loan values because, if they do, farmers will pledge their produce for loans instead of selling it in the open market. As these loans are made without recourse to the borrowers, farmers are under no obligation to repay them unless they find it advantageous to do so. The CCC has nothing but the pledged commodities as security for payment of the loan. This ingenious system of price-fixing, which its advocates call "putting a floor under prices," is made effective by withdrawing a certain proportion of current supplies of a commodity from the market and storing them—thus creating artificial shortages that raise prices to the desired level.

THE IMMEDIATE attainment of parity prices for our major crops via the loan route would entail serious disturbances to our domestic economy, since it would mean higher production costs for textile manufacturers, higher costs for foods and various resulting price adjustments of a troublesome nature. Nevertheless, the loan program is especially enticing to some of our Congressmen because it costs comparatively little at the start, and stored stocks can always be pointed to as evidence that the Government has gained assets in exchange for what it has paid out in loans. Emphasis is also placed on the fact that the Commodity Credit Corporation has suffered only negligible actual losses on sales of commodities—$26,000,000 in seven years. To be sure, that means nothing because the corporation's holdings of stored wheat, cotton and other products owned and held as security for loans are of indeterminate value. Their appraised value is based on prevailing market quotations as of a given date. The result has been that Congress has voted $214,000,000 to make good capital impairment on paper. On the other hand, the CCC has returned a "surplus" of $44,000,000 to the Treasury resulting from a later mark-up in the net value of its assets. Since officials of the CCC maintain that only removal of surplus stocks has prevented catastrophic declines in farm prices, it is futile to try to estimate the actual losses that would be incurred should attempts be made to liquidate CCC holdings of farm products.

It is generally believed that Congress will pass legislation providing for a sharp increase in the ratio of CCC loans to parity prices for cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco and rice. The Senate Committee on Agriculture unanimously approved the Bankhead bill providing for 100 per cent parity loans on these commodities (less the amount received by farmer-borrowers from conservation payments). The House Committee on Agriculture has approved a bill that would make loans for these basic crops mandatory at 75 per cent of parity. The rate urged by the Farm Bureau Federation calls for 85 per cent of parity, and it is not unlikely that a compromise between House and Senate may result in acceptance of an intermediate figure.

TO THOSE who are pressing for passage of this kind of loan legislation the virtual closing of export outlets for our major export crop, cotton, and for wheat as well, is not an unmixed evil. So long as there was some hope of moving considerable supplies of cotton and wheat with the aid of moderate export subsidies, proposals to give a further boost to domestic prices that would bring them close to parity would have encountered determined opposition. But with the war forcing us to rely on domestic markets, it is easier to argue that the domestic price for farm products should be fixed at "fair" levels without considering the effect on a moribund foreign trade. The farmer—so the argument runs—has as much right to fair (parity) prices for the fruits of his labor as the factory worker to the minimum wages guaranteed him under the Federal wage-hour law. Advocates of parity prices further contend that it is possible to raise prices of cotton, wheat and other commodities much higher without causing any great shrinkage in consumption. The belief in the inelasticity of demand for farm products explains the seeming folly of legislative efforts to raise farm prices higher and higher at a time when surpluses are increasing. It helps to explain why Senator Bankhead advocates lending farmers 14½ cents per pound on cotton that has been bringing them about 9½ cents per pound. In its report approving the provisions of the Bankhead bill, the Committee on Agriculture said: "The surplus or carry-over of cotton and wheat when the next crop comes to market will be the largest in the history of the United States. The world surplus of wheat is the largest in history, and the same may be said about the world surplus of cotton. With these staggering surpluses, and especially with cotton, any increase in consumption as a result of our national-defense-production program will be small in proportion to the accumulated stocks. Any increase in consumption that may flow from the defense-production-program cannot materially influence the price of these commodities because of the huge quantities on hand." To the orthodox economist the conclusion to be drawn from these facts would be that forcing prices upward would merely aggravate a very bad situation. Certainly high ranking officials of the Department of Agriculture have expressed grave doubts about the feasibility of parity loans. Secretary Wickard told a House Appropriations Subcommittee that parity loans might place the Government in a predicament, first because more funds would be required for lending purposes, and secondly, because rigid controls over production would be essential to prevent farmers from increasing output and bringing more of their products into the loan stocks. Mr. Wickard has good reason to feel fearful since, with cotton loans at only 57 per cent of parity the CCC owns outright or holds against loans about 10,800,000 bales of cotton, having added over 2,900,000 bales to its stocks during the current marketing year. C. B. Robbins, president of the CCC, also testified that marketing quotas and high penalties for exceeding them would have to be imposed if loan values were raised in order to force farmers to participate in the production control program and prevent excess supplies from overwhelming the CCC.

ADVOCATES of parity or near parity loans are, as a matter of fact, stressing the importance of tightening control by means of marketing quotas. Heretofore marketing quotas have not been applied to wheat or corn, but this year wheat and corn farmers will vote to determine whether quotas shall be fixed for them as well as for cotton and tobacco growers. If the two-thirds vote necessary to make quotas effective is not forthcoming, loans likewise will be eliminated as the law requires.

The Senate has already passed a resolution that would increase penalties for noncompliance with marketing quotas in case of corn and wheat to prohibitive levels, and thus force noncooperators to comply with the entire production control program by making it impossible to sell outside their marketing allotments.

Of course, if higher direct subsidies in the form of parity payments are voted by Congress, the loan rates need not be 100 per cent of parity to give farmers the desired parity income. However, Senator Bankhead's bill provides that sums allocated for parity payments shall be used to reward farmers who voluntarily reduce cotton production below the quantity covered by allotments.

THIS BRIEF REVIEW of the farm relief measures which Congress will soon pass upon shows that we are very far from a solution of our farm problem. More drastic production control, more subsidies and more loans are being relied upon to better the economic condition of the farmer. The farm program has not been all loss to the Treasury without compensating gains; conditions might be as bad as apologists for the program claim they would be if we had pursued a do-nothing policy. While efforts to adjust production to demand at prices believed to be necessary for decent farm living have not solved the problem of surplus disposal, the basis for a better balanced agriculture has been laid by production control methods that take poor land out of cultivation. More intensive cultivation of restricted acreages devoted to growing the problem crops is partly responsible for the continued piling up of surplus cotton and other commodities.

However, the experts in the Department of Agriculture are fully aware of the shortcomings of a program that places such undue emphasis upon securing higher prices for a limited number of products. H. R. Tolley, head of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, defined the real problem very effectively in an address bfore the American Economic Association. He said that "the essential elements in the situation are measured, not in terms of millions of bushels of grain or millions of bales of cotton, but in terms of unused acres, unemployed and underemployed farm workers, and rural standards of living which are too often substandard." He added that "the suggestion is often made that our agriculture could be run with about 50 per cent of the current farm population." Dr. Tolley is really implying that we ought to devise means for moving a large number of people from the land or else provide supplementary non-farm sources of income for them. The difficulties in the way of that solution are obvious. They have been aggravated by the prolonged depression which forced people to return to the farms from the cities by closing employment opportunities in towns and cities.

Recognizing the nature of the problem will not solve it, but it does show that the basis for a sound and flourishing agriculture cannot be laid by simply trying to push prices of farm products higher and higher and thereby closing the consumption outlets that are needed to absorb surpluses. It is significant that the Department of Agriculture is devoting more attention to the development of outlets for farm products by subsidized distribution of food through relief channels. But that, too, is a palliative that does not strike at causes of underconsumption. Moreover, if prices of foodstuffs are sharply advanced by Congressional action the dollar intended to subsidize food purchases will not go so far.

THE VERY FINE and thoughtful articles on various aspects of the farm problem which appear in publications of the Department of Agriculture show that the Government experts realize that there is no crude subsidy route to the solution of the farmers' difficulties. Congress has not kept pace with the advanced thinking of these experts—in large part because of political pressure—but it ought at least to realize that the time has come to take a stand against demands for more and more money to bolster up a price structure that is becoming increasingly artificial.

Capital Parade

Turning The Tables

THE GREAT BATTLE of the Ionian Sea added the final touch of cosmic irony to the sudden turn of events in the Mediterranean. For it is now known here that a grand German-Italian assault on the British position in the Balkans had been planned for the very day when the British cut the Italian fleet to pieces. And it is believed that the Italian warships were driven from their safe harbors by a German ultimatum, requiring Italy's navy to bear its part in the big show that never came off.

Intelligence reports received in Washington give the strategy of the abortive big show in rather clear outline. It was founded on the supposition that the Yugoslav fold-up was final.

The Germans were to make their first attack on the British and Greeks through the difficult Struma Valley in Bulgaria, believing that in a very little time they could bring down reinforcements and supplies through the better serviced Morava-Vardar Valley in Yugoslavia. Mussolini was to direct in person another hastily prepared Italian offensive effort in Albania, which was intended to engage the maximum Greek strength, rather than to achieve victory. Meanwhile, the Italian navy was to harass and, if possible, cut communications between Greece and the British base in Egypt. According to authoritative information here, this grand assault was timed to start on last Friday or Saturday.

IT IS THOUGHT that a German ultimatum was needed to get the Italian navy out of harbor, for the simple reason that, since the British planes struck at Taranto, the Italians have been timid to the point of cowardice. A few convoy vessels were left at Taranto and Brindisi to guard the troop transports going to Albania. The Italian submarines continued to use their Sicilian bases. Some warships clung to the protected harbors of Sardinia, and three cruisers and a number of destroyers were stationed at Pola, in the northern Adriatic, near Venice. But the main units of the Italian fleet did not dare to stir from refuge at Spezia and Genoa, on the northwestern Mediterranean coast of Italy, at the greatest possible distance from the enemy.

The Pola, the Zara and the Fiume, the three cruisers stationed at Pola, left their base on Wednesday afternoon with attendant destroyers. The battleship Vittorio Veneto and its escort are thought to have started rather earlier from Spezia or Sardinia. A rendezvous was apparently planned at the mouth of the Ionian Sea, whence the combined force was to proceed to the attack on the British lines of communication. Unfortunately for the Axis, only a few hours after the cruisers were observed leaving Pola harbor at 2 o'clock Thursday morning, the appeasing Yugoslav government was overthrown by the Serbian army officers' well arranged putsch. The grand land assault had to be put off, since the Germans could no longer count on flanking the British and Greeks through Yugoslavia.

Nevertheless, either by a confusion of orders, or because the Germans still demanded some sort of Italian naval action, the Italian ships did not put back to port. Probably their object was a night attack on the numerous convoys carrying British troops and supplies to Salonika and Volos. Accordingly the three cruisers from Pola proceeded down the Adriatic, followed all the way by British aircraft based on Greece. On Thursday the British fleet steamed out from Alexandria to meet them, and the cruisers were intercepted Friday evening as they reached their rendezvous with the main Italian force southwest of Crete.

The British admiralty communiques tell the story of the engagement that followed, which was the first major test of the night battle plans of modern navies. It is now thought more likely than was at first supposed that the battleship, Vittorio Veneto, a light cruiser and an additional destroyer were added to the known British bag of two destroyers and three cruisers from Pola. Furthermore, there is widespread acceptance of the British admiralty's theory that in the darkness and confusion the battle ended with the Italians firing on one another.

SUCH IS THE remarkable reconstruction made by experts here of the historic battle of the Ionian Sea. It sharply underlines the massive significance of all the recent good news. Had the German and Italian plans gone according to schedule, the Greeks and their British allies would by now have been fighting on two fronts against terrible odds; British Mediterranean communications would have been so strained that, bad as the Italian fleet is, no battle of the Ionian Sea could have been hoped for. And the Japanese might have been encouraged to attack the British in the Far East, for their foreign minister, Yosuke Matsuoka, would have found Berlin and Rome eagerly celebrating anticipated triumphs.

Instead, Matsuoka saw one capital struggling with diplomatic disaster and the other reeling under the shock of a great naval defeat. Thus the danger in the Far East has almost certainly been deferred. In the Mediterranean, meanwhile, there are still reasons for disquiet, such as the German air superiority in the Balkans, and their periodic success in temporarily closing the Suez Canal by mines dropped from planes operating from Libya. But there are also reasons for high hope.

Press Conference

By Mark Sullivan

Taking Stock Of The President

AT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S press conference, the first after his return from vacation, the newsmen entered with an eye for the President's appearance. What they found was assuring. Those who made notes put down such words as "rested," "tanned," "in good humor."

SULLIVAN

The incident reflects how much the affairs of the United States, and the world, are geared into the way one man feels, and the way his state of feeling from time to time may affect his temperament, and hence his utterances and actions and attitudes.

Some two weeks before, on March 15, Mr. Roosevelt had delivered an important speech, the one following passage of the Lease-Lend Bill, the speech in which he told the world, portentously, that "our democracy has gone into action," and used the phrase "until total victory has been won." Mr. Roosevelt, when preparing that speech, knew it was to be important; and wished, therefore, to make it dramatic, to put force into its composition, drive into its delivery. For accomplishing this, in any speech, by Mr. Roosevelt or any other, one of the most needed helps is physical vitality. At the time, Mr. Roosevelt's stores of vitality had been depleted by long strain, the two months of watching the Lease-Lend Bill go through Congress—and watching those things in Europe which made the Lease-Lend Bill tragically desirable. New Deal journalists, and various White House intimates, reported the President during early March as saving his strength, seeing fewer callers and otherwise not showing the exuberance which is his when at his best. But on the evening of the speech that Mr. Roosevelt wished to make great, he made an "all-out" draft upon the deeps of his strength. That March 15th speech was a phenomenal outpouring of all that the speaker had in force and vitality. As Mr. Roosevelt projected it across the ether, those present noticed, and some recited to the public, the tension in which the speaker threw out upon the air the whole of his vitality.

A FEW DAYS LATER he had gone upon his vacation. Now he was returned. The wished-for recuperation had been achieved. His batteries had been recharged. The President at this press conference was himself. Characteristically he began the session with an in-the-family jest; it was something about one of the newsmen who had been drafted.

He had all his usual resourcefulness, and delight, in the game of probe and parry, by which newsmen seek to learn what Presidential wariness prefers not to reveal. He had told us at the opening that some billion dollars' worth of war material had been allocated for abroad under the Lease-Lend Bill. A newsman, wishing to find out the countries to which supplies were to go, asked: "Is it all to go to Britain, Mr. President?" Mr. Roosevelt said it was for various countries. When the newsman pursued, "More than two, sir?" Mr. Roosevelt grinningly replied that he knew where that device of cross-questioning would lead to. Another newsman, taking up the trail, asked a question beginning, "Would it be a fair assumption that——" This question Mr. Roosevelt stopped in the middle, with a gesture and a humorous grunt which said that he was too old a bird to let that kind of salt fall on his feathers.

Only once were those Presidential feathers even faintly ruffled, either by embarrassment or irritation. Only once did it seem that the newsmen were too hot upon him, and too successfully for his equanimity. The questions that faintly disturbed the Presidential poise were in the same field, about labor strikes, and may have had significance.

ONE QUESTION was, "Are you pleased with the record to date of the new Labor Mediation Board?" Mr. Roosevelt, showing a bit of impatience, replied that he could not answer questions as to whether he was pleased at one thing or angry at another thing. Yet newsmen might have recalled that Mr. Roosevelt does like to answer this kind of question on occasions when his answer would have a public effect that he desires, and would not reveal anything he prefers to withhold.

Another question, in the same field, was about the message which OPM Director Knudsen and Secretary of the Navy Knox sent some days ago demanding resumption of operations at Allis-Chalmers. The question asked Mr. Roosevelt was: "Were you acquainted with their action before it was done?" Rather sharply Mr. Roosevelt replied that he regarded this question as almost inquisitorial, that he would not answer this kind of question these days.

On the whole, from this press conference and many other evidences, one gets a definite impression. It is that Mr. Roosevelt wishes to keep the labor situation in suspense, without definite action at this time. And also that he prefers to keep the labor situation within his own orbit, that he wishes to avert any action by Congress.

One wonders. Is the present a time when it is wise for any individual to try to keep too many things within his orbit? Not only are the problems and conditions numerous, complex, sudden and eruptive. Also, every prudent individual must recognize that there are periods when the strongest cannot be immune from fatigue and variations of temperament. Hardly ever was group counsel and group responsibility so desirable.

The Post and Hazel Go Easter Shopping, Look at Some Nifty Bonnets

By Robert Kleiman
Post Staff Writer

Thousands of Washington women yesterday outbutterflied the butterflies.

In the morning, grim and grumpy, they left their homes and came downtown. Their clothes were drab and dull in winter's fading colors. Downtown, they crowded into busy department stores, their minds on Easter, 11 days away.

Once inside, up they perked. They were caterpillars, and the stores were their cocoons. Outside the sun rose to its height and fell away. Amid the shadows and sunglow of the late afternoon, the shoppers emerged, metamorphosed, like butterflies—"stemless, floating flowers."

Pink and peacock yellow replaced the winter gray. Scarlet and brilliant green colored the garments of spring. The homeward trek was a preview of the Easter parade.

A Post reporter and photographer yesterday accompanied such an Easter shopper on her tour.

She was one of Washington's young career women, Hazel Robertson, a 20-year-old advertising copywriter. Like many Washingtonians, Miss Robertson comes "from somewhere else," Columbus, Ohio, where she put in a year at Ohio State University. She lives at 5504 Fourteenth Street Northwest.

Eighty-five dollars were in Miss Robertson's dark brown purse as she entered the department store for her spring clothing splurge. She wore her gray-brown tweed coat unbuttoned over a plaid skirt and tan sweater. On her head was a worn brown hat, on her feet a pair of brown suede shoes.

A Princess fitted dress in lavender was bought on the third floor for $12.95. A stout woman nearby tried on a similar one.

"Could you take it in here," she asked, bunching the dress at the waist. "I'm really much slimmer than you'd think."

Next an airy evening gown for $16.95, striped cotton in a patriotic hue—a red, white and blue flared skirt under a white embroidered bodice.

"Dance in this?" asked Hazel, twinkling her hazel-colored eyes. "I'll float."

Flanked by her entourage, Hazel floated through the coat department, emerging with a single-breated, rose wool model. Her purse was $19.95 lighter.

Hats were another matter. Seated before a circular mirror, she tried on one Easter bonnet after another, tossing each aside as the saleswoman, Mrs. Mary Davis, of 3924 Benton Street Northwest, brought a new one for trial.

"How do you want to look?" asked Mrs. Davis.

"Like a breath of spring."

Pink straw was the answer. Over the brim grew the flowers of spring, crimson and yellow, garnished with green leaves and stems.

Pearls were next, four strands for $2.98.

On to the fifth floor for a hair-do and manicure, and Hazel matched her new clothes against the Vogue models as she sat, her hair in a net and her ears plugged with cotton, under a huge, chromium hair-dryer.

Two dollars were paid out at the beauty parlor, and Hazel, her thick brown hair well-curled, entered the home-stretch. Lavender gloves, $1; a large rose corded bag, $2; unmentionables, $5.

Other women lingered and looked at counters throughout the huge store, but not Miss Robertson. In the shoe department, she slipped her size fives into a pair of $12.75 black patent urbanites with high heels and open toes.

A vision in pink, rose, crimson, violet and yellow, Hazel Robertson skipped out of the store.

Screen Stars Stay Slim By Exercise

Dieting No Longer Depended Upon to Give Svelte Look

By Ida Jean Kain

WHEN you are bent on making yourself over, the fact that the screen stars have gone athletic is something to think about. They no longer keep thin by dieting; they keep slim with exercises. And they have the most beautiful figures in the world.

A beautiful figure depends on a certain difference between proportions. Most of the movie stars are on an ultra-streamlined scale, with waists that measure from 9 to 11 inches smaller than the bust and hips that either measure exactly the same as the bust or only a couple of inches more.

Right Proportions

You probably wouldn't want to be that careful about your curves. It doesn't pay you a thousand a week just to look beautiful. But if you are to have a fairly good figure, your measurements must be within the limits of proportion with weight normal. With excessive weight, even proportionate measurements don't give you a good figure. There is no standard set of measurements that is perfect for your height. Occasionally you come across a chart which says your waist should measure so many inches for a given height. That is ridiculous. As with weight, ideal measurements depend on your structure. The Hollywood "rule of the waist" is based on structure. According to this rule, your waist should be 4¼ times as large as your waist; the hips, 6 times as large; thigh, 3½ times; calf, 2¾ times the wrist measure; the ankle, 1¼ times the size of the wrist.

Average Measurements

This rule is too streamlined for the average woman, but the difference between the pivotal measurements—bust and waist and bust and hips—does tally with our requirements for proportion.

If you are average height, your waistline should be at least 8 inches less than the bust, and the hips not more than 2 or 3 inches longer.

Get out your trusty tape, see how your measurements stack up, and put them on record as the startling point for slimming. Diet won't change your proportions—that takes exercise.

The roadster skidded, hopped into the air, knocked down a post and a fire plug, crumpled three fenders, ran against a wall—and then stopped. A girl climbed out of the wreck. "Darling," she exclaimed, "That's what I call a kiss!"

We can't equal that but many a man who has just tried Wilkins Coffee for the first time has exclaimed with equal fervor, "Darling, that's what I call a cup of coffee!"

Travel Wardrobe on $80 Budget Is Selected Within Two Hours

For the bon voyage, Alyce Winstead, who recently won a trip to Hollywood, wears a sea-green jacket dress of sheer wool. She carries a sheer beige wool coat that is part of a redingote outfit. Her shoes, bag and gloves are matching color saddle tan. The rough straw beige pompadour hat is trimmed with a brown grosgrain bow and brown veiling. Her corsage is of fresias

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor.

In the spring, effeminite fancy lightly turns to thoughts of vacation and travel. Many a spring wardrobe will be planned with the double intent of being suitable for the Easter parade and practical for long-distance trips. Those who have such plans in mind may profit from the experience of Alyce Winstead, who recently won a trip to Hollywood. In less than two hours Alyce had to assemble a wardrobe and be on her way.

With the assistance of radio station WJSV, who helped sponsor Alyce, we selected a complete wardrobe on an $80 budget. We were even able to include an evening dress and slippers—which Alyce will don when she sings next Friday as the guest on a national network program.

With two things in mind—the limited budget and the balmy California weather—we began shaping Alyce's wardrobe. Our first thought was a costume suit, but later it was ruled out. Too much of the budget would be spent on just one outfit, and it would probably prove to be too warm for California wear.

Jacket Dress Chosen

We compromised on a sea-green sheer wool jacket dress. The dress was complete in itself, with just enough fullness to round out a very slender figure. With the addition of the jacket, the dress became more formal and even looked like a suit. This outfit was completed by a redingote ensemble. The coat was sheer beige wool and was worn over a shirtwaist dress in a Mexican beige color.

This basic selection provided many combinations. The coat buttoned down the front and would look like a dress when worn with a little white dicky or a fly-front collar peeking over its collarless neckline. Both dresses would get along nicely on their own. Then, if a chill wind blew, the coat could be worn over the wool jacket dress.

An evening dress had to be included, even if it meant there wouldn't be room in the budget for the girdle—which continually kept popping into the conversation. The cover-up type gown was selected—one of the newest, with an Hawaiian print jersey skirt. The top was white jersey with a shirtwaist front and long full sleeves.

Now we were ready to choose the accessories. After the pros and cons of high-heeled shoes were considered, very slender military heel shoes with open toes and perforations were selected. The shoes were saddle tan. A matching color bag and fabric gloves were bought.

Pompadour Hat

So far, we had spent about an hour and a half on our shopping spree, together with a sizable amount of the $80 budget. Alyce was to be interviewed over the radio in about 5 minutes so quick work had to be made of selecting a hat. Since her hair was arranged in the popular pompadour style, the selection was fairly simple. The first hat tried on proved to be the most becoming. It was a rough beige straw topped with a brown grosgrain bow and feminine veiling.

The rest of the items had to be bought sight unseen by Alyce, while she was on the air. Three pairs of silk hose, a slip and the precious girdle—just a mild little the lace lastex affair. (Even if there are no bulges, a girdle is a necessity to give a neat and trim look and, incidentally, keep the stockings in place.)

After all the items were figured, it was found evening slippers could be included. With the $1.48 left we could even include an inexpensive piece of costume jewelry to be worn at the neck of the dinner dress. Here is the cost of each item purchased:

Hose, 3 pairs	$ 2.22
Evening dress	13.95
Jacket dress	22.95
Redingote	16.95
Shoes	4.95
Slip	1.65
Gloves	1.00
Hat	3.95
Bag	2.00
Girdle	1.95
Slippers	6.95
Jewelry	1.00

Mary Haworth's Mail

Women Readers Have Scant Sympathy With Young Wife Who Admits Indifference to Husband's Love, Yet Resents His Failure to Dance Attendance on Her.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: In church, Sunday morning, I could scarcely listen to the sermon, because I was so busy thanking the Lord for my blessings. Then I came home to read, in The Post, the letter signed "Distraught," published in your column. This woman complained that her husband never offers her any appreciation; and after reading her lament, I found myself wondering what he was supposed to appreciate!

She says it "aggravates" her to do all the housework, while admitting that her husband supports her to the tune of $60 a week. But he lets her go gadding three or four nights a week, to movies or to visit the neighbors, while he stays home, presumably to look after their two small children. She says they have little social life, because most of their friends have small children and can't go out at night. Apparently she alone of all the young wives she knows expects to continue the life of a girl!

If her husband sits home reading, instead of going out by himself, she is a very lucky woman, and might get a book from the library herself and try improving her mind, for a change. If she needs help in the house, some of that movie money would hire a girl one or two mornings a week. Apparently her children don't mean a great deal to her, as her only reference to them is to say that she has them. I have children, and so have most of my friends—and we think the privilege of rearing them is such a blessing that we are continually saying how lucky we are. One of my friends, who has two adopted children, often says: "I'm so happy I don't know what to do!"

Your correspondent, after lamenting the fact that her husband doesn't shower her with little courtesies, remarks that she is bored by the "emotional aspect" of marriage. She says her husband's loverlike attentions seem "tiresomely superfluous." Yet, rightly construed, these attentions are the greatest compliment he could pay her. It seems to me every intelligent wife would understand that, before marriage, a man expresses his love by implication—with graceful compliments, gifts, invitations, etc. And, after marriage, quite simply and naturally in the very manner to which she objects. I think this girl is very young, and probably got married before she was ready to settle down.

The lady's life is dull. She might add interest to it by becoming interested in such things as (1) knitting for the Red Cross while her husband reads; (2) studying books on child psychology; (3) studying cooking, in order to become really expert; (4) going to church and teaching a Sunday School class; (5) learning to sew, for herself, her children or charity; (6) studying interior decorating, with the idea of beautifying her own home, and (7) by learning to play chess, checkers, backgammon and other "games for two" with her husband.

I wonder if her father is living? In mentioning her indifference to the emotional side of marriage, she says, "I am sure my mother felt the same way, although we never discussed it." Maybe her father could tell her something for her own good, if she would have a heart-to-heart talk with him.

And now, Miss Haworth, I want to say that I find your column fascinating reading — mentally stimulating and very helpful. While you deal with individual problems, your comment covers so much ground that every column contains something that each of us ought to know. I never need to write to you about my problems, because you always indirectly answer them in advance. Sincerely yours, M. I. H.

She Appreciates Her 'Taciturn' Husband

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I was both amused and annoyed for six years. I've been married for seven. I suppose you would call my husband "taciturn," too. He isn't given to praise and encouragement; but, then, neither does he quarrel or complain.

of March 30. My situation is very like hers, but my reactions are different. She has been married by the letter signed, "Distraught," published in your column

When he helps me with the housework, I don't care whether he does it my way or not. What difference does it make, so long as it is done and I don't have to do it. "Distraught," you remember, said "the limited help her husband gives her around the house is really no help at all, for he insists on doing things his way."

My husband is content to sit home, too. But at least he isn't running around with other women while I tend the baby (as sometimes happens, you know). We have one child, and we live hundreds of miles away from our respective families. I have no time to make friends—other than just being "neighborly" with our neighbors. We haven't been to a movie for over a year. But what is a movie, after all, except a few hours' entertainment? What have you got to show for it after you've seen one? I would much rather be knitting for the Red Cross. I have a feeling that I am really accomplishing something here.

My husband, too, attaches great importance to his job, and why not? It provides a living for his family. And if "Distraught's" husband cannot afford the education which would help him advance professionally—why should his wife expect him to provide her with a varied social life? I think she is just a selfish, self-centered girl who has never really grown up. But I also think she has the makings of happiness right in her grasp. With two children, a loyal husband and a secure income, she has everything to be thankful for—and my advice to her is to start counting her blessings. Sincerely, HAPPY WIFE.

Tell Fortunes By Tea Leaves

A PERFECT time for fortune-telling, when you and your beau have a cozy cup of tea after a drive. And it doesn't do a bit of harm that you find so much in the tea leaves about romance!

"Leaves grouped fan-shape—aha! a flirtation. A comet? A soul-shaking event and, coming close to a fan, I suspect it means you're really going to FALL. Yes, here's a ring—true love!"

Good luck or bad, it's all there in the leaves and easy to see. A triangle pointing toward the rim of the cup? The future's rosy. But watch out if the triangle points down!

"Card Oracles" gives you a chance to play seeress, answer questions such as "When will I be married?" Have the inquirer shuffle the pack with his left hand, cut and draw four cards. The total of the spots is the number of weeks until the wedding. A king or a queen? A wealthy mate.

Green and Pink Color Scheme Pet of Decorators This Season

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

Green and pink is the color scheme that the decorators are excited about this year . . . . a bright pink and clear leaf green. And they're doing unexpected, fresh crisp things with this bright and gay combination—especially when they build the picture around the rose patterned fabrics so fashionable now.

The prettiest of these new rooms was a bedroom for a young girl. In place of a big bed, a daybed with mahogany ends was set longwise against the wall, then a highboy was added along with a small kneehole desk to make the room into a sort of sitting room for its young owner.

The walls were painted white, and the windows were curtained in swirls of white organdy and finished with valances and tiebacks of rose design chintz on a white ground. One wall was slipcovered in this chintz against which the daybed was placed with a drape wall canopy of the same material. A pair of small archairs were slip-covered in the rose splashed chintz, while a small under-the-window dressing table had a petticoat of the same chintz with a drapped overflounce of white organdy.

A rug of light green broadloom looked fresh and pretty for the floor, and yet, being a texture weave, it was as practical as you please. For lamps, crystal bases were selected and used with shades made of the rose chintz. Just for gayety, folders for magazines were made of the chintz and so was the desk pad. Waste baskets were slip-covered with rose chintz and picture frames for the white walls had mats of the rose patterned chintz. In short the room ended up looking like a flower garden—and almost as pretty as its young owner.

Gloves Match Jewels

Hollywood, Calif. — Matching gloves to jewels is a spring color thought from Brenda Marshall, movie actress. Wristlengths of ruby suede conspire with a ruby brooch to lift a simple black dress into the intriguing class. White silk pique formal gloves, a gray wool jersey dinner dress with cap sleeves, and two diamond crystal stars on the unadorned bodice are another interesting threesome.

Two Suppers Follow Final Festival Concert

By Hope Ridings Miller.

TWO SUPPER PARTIES gathered in a sizable number of music-loving Washingtonians last night after the final concert of the Beethoven-Brahms-Sibelius festival. Mr. and Mrs. George Hewitt Myers entertained at their home, 2310 S Street, and Mrs. Martin Vogel was hostess at her home on Kalorama Circle. Mlle. Ania Dorfmann, guest artist with the National Smphony Orchestra, put in an appearance at both parties—going first to the Myers fete and then to Mrs. Vogel's. Still later, she boarded a train to return to New York.

Mlle. Dorfmann, who has been staying with Mrs. Vogel since Monday, had to be back in New York in time to get to an early rehearsal this morning. She is scheduled to play at Carnegie Hall Saturday night.

Small and informal was Mrs. Vogel's party, at which Baron and Baroness Stackelberg received with the hostess. Mrs. Vogel is planning another party soon in honor of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Vogel, jr., who will return to Washington this evening after a trip to Florida, Cuba and New York.

Luncheons for distinguished visitors took over yesterday's social calendar. Mrs. Wendell L. Willkie, who came to town to be an honor guest at the annual dinner of the Women's National Press Club, was feted at a luncheon given by Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, at her home on F Street.

Last evening Mrs. Bacon and Mrs. Willkie attended the National Symphony concert and later went to the Myers supper party. Mrs. Bacon will be hostess at a dinner tonight.

Mrs. Patchin Is Luncheon Hostess

Celebrities were all over the place at the 1925 F Street Club where several luncheon parties accented the day's round. Mrs. Edna Woolman Chase, editor of a nationally known fashion magazine, and her daughter, Ilka Chase, of radio and stage fame, were among the guests at the small luncheon given by Mrs. Robert H. Patchin, of New York, who is spending some time here at the Anchorage.

Miss Chase, whose smart beige wool suit was accented with a natty brown hat perched atop her dark hair, and her mother returned late yesterday afternoon to New York. "Got to get back and finish some radio script," said the attractive Ilka, whose "Luncheon at the Waldorf" program is a popular network attraction.

Senora de Michels, wife of the new Chilean Ambassador, was ranking guest at Mrs. Patchin's luncheon. Others there were Mrs. Cordell Hull, Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, and Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt.

Mrs. Vincent Sheean At Patterson Party

Meanwhile, Mrs. Joseph Medill Patterson, of New York—she's another who came to town especially for the Press Club shindig—also entertained at luncheon at the F Street Club, Diana Forbes-Robertson (Mrs. Vincent Sheean), wearing a floppy-brimmed yellow felt hat, banded in green, was among the guests; as were Princess Alexandra Kropotkin and Mrs. Antoinette Donnelly, of New York.

Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, whose friendship with Mrs. Patterson goes back to the days when they were both newspaperwomen in Chicago, was ranking guest in a company that also included Mrs. Howard Ellis, of Chicago; Mrs. Maude Williamston, of Baltimdre; Mrs. Guy McKinney,, Miss Loretta King and Miss Lulu King.

Mrs. Breckinridge Long had several guests with her, and others seen at the same club were Miss Dorothea Villard, who was in a luncheon threesome, and Donna Julia Brambilla, who had a couple of friends with her.

Dr. Brin Fetes Panamanians

The Ambassador of Panama, Dr. Carlos Brin, entertained at a men's luncheon yesterday at the embassy for the minister of finance and the treasury of his country, Enrique Linares, jr., and the comptroller general, Guillermo Arango. The visitors were in Washington for a few days several weeks ago but have spent most of their time in New York. They will return there shortly.

Guests at the luncheon were the Mexican Ambassador, Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera, the Ecuadorean Envoy, Capt. Colon Aloy Alfaro, the Colombian Ambassador, Dr. Gabriel Turbay, the Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, Dr. L. S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union; Nelson Rockfeller, director of the Committee on Cultural and Commercial Relations with Latin America, Dr. Charles Stanley White, Julio Briceno, counselor of the embassy, and the First Secretary, Juan Ehrman.

Dinner Is Given By Bruggmanns

The Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Bruggmann entertained at a dinner last night in their apartment at Wardman Park.

Ranking guests were the Dean of the Diplomatic Corps, the Peruvian Ambassador, Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander, and the Minister of Sweden and Mme. Bostrom.

Engagement Announced

MISS JANE KELLEY,

whose engagement to John Thomas Caskey is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kelley. The bride-elect is a graduate of Duke University and is a member of Pi Beta Phi. Mr. Caskey, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Caskey, attended St. Alban's school and was graduated from Duke University. He is now studying law at Georgetown University. The wedding date has not been set

Capt. Hinkamp And Wife Honored By the Windsors

Commander and Mrs. Charles Windsor entertained at a small cocktail party last evening in their apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel, in honor of Capt. and Mrs. Clarence Nelson Hinkamp, later taking their guests to the supper dance at the Army and Navy Country Club. Capt. Hinkamp, who is commanding officer of the U. S. S. Texas, is in town for a few days' visit with Mrs. Hinkamp.

Commander and Mrs. Windsor's other guests last evening were Mr. and Mrs. George Bean, Mrs. William B. Shearer, Mrs. Mattie Wyatt Porter, Miss Marguerite Ames, Capt. Herbert Babbitt, Amor Smith, Tilgham Bunch and Daingerfield Addison.

Mary Coleman Sets June 7 As Wedding Date

Miss Mary Eugenia Coleman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gravatt Coleman and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Evans Mauldin, has selected June 7 as the date of her wedding to Ensign Louis Roddis, jr., U. S. N. The ceremony will take place at St. Alban's Church, the Rev. Charles T. Warner and Commander William N. Thomas, chaplain of the U. S. Naval Academy, officiating.

Ensign Roddis has just returned from Honolulu and is now on the West Coast. His parents, Commander Louis H. Roddis, U. S. N., M. C., and Mrs. Roddis have recently arrived for duty in Washington. The engagement of the couple was announced in December.

Mrs. Nat Patton To Entertain 35

Mrs. Nat Patton will entertain at a luncheon today for 35 guests at the Congressional Club. This is the first in a series of luncheons she will give this season.

Tomorrow Representative and Mrs. Patton, with their daughter, Miss Bonnie Patton, and guest, Miss Jennie Lacy, will leave for Crockett, Tex., to spend the Easter holidays.

Greek Envoy and Wife To Entertain Sunday

As a gesture of appreciation for the interest that has been shown in Greek relief, the Minister of Greece and Mme. Diamantopoulos have cards out for a gathering at the legation on Sunday evening. A travelogue of Greece, which a friend of the Minister's made, will be shown, and there will also be a program of songs.

The party is scheduled to begin at 9:30.

Miss Stapleton, Fiance, Will Be Widely Feted

After declining all invitations during Lent, Miss Stellita Stapleton and her fiance, George Rencharď, are set for a round of parties, every day, beginning when the Lenten season ends and continuing up to the date of their wedding, April 19, is dotted with parties for the couple.

To name just a few—Mrs. Mae Hamilton, aunt of the prospective bride, will give a dinner dance for her on Thursday night, April 17, at the Sulgrave Club. Mrs. Patrick Hurley, wife of the former Secretary of War, has planned a tea in their honor on Easter Sunday. Miss Dolly Corbin and Mrs. Robert Knowlton, the former Rebecca Trucco, will honor Miss Stapleton and her fiance at a cocktail party on Saturday afternoon, April 12. From there they will go on to a dinner to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Willcox.

Miss Stapleton is limiting her attendants to "family only." Her matron of honor will be her cousin, Mrs. Arthur Mullen, for whom Miss Stapleton served as her only attendant when she was married several years ago. Two other cousins of the prospective bride, Mary Anne and Louise Hamilton, will be bridesmaids. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. George Hamilton and will be presented to society next year.

The wedding will take place at St. Matthew's Cathedral. It will be followed by a reception at the Stapleton home on Massachusetts Avenue.

Junior League Scene of Tea

Mrs. William B. Kerkam and Mrs. Oliver Walker entertained at a tea yesterday at the Junior League headquarters on Massachusetts Avenue for members of the Thrift Shop committee. Another tea was given by the Junior League on Tuesday.

Among those at yesterday's tea were Mrs. Murray Borden, jr., Mrs. Matt Meyer, Mrs. Alfred Hand, Miss Helen Diggs, Mrs. Joe Hume Gardiner, Miss Marjorie Souby, Mrs. Weston B. Grimes and Mrs. Percy Hoffman.

On Tuesday Miss Sydney Beall, chairman of the Instructive Visiting Nurses Society committee, and Mrs. H. Lee Boatwright, jr., chairman of the Braille committee, entertained members of their committees. Attending the party were Mrs. William R. Backer, Mrs. Carl Farbach, Mrs. Stuart Gayness, Mrs. Frank S. Goodman, Mrs. Harold McGuire, Mrs. Leslie Clifford, Mrs. W. Thacher Winslow, Miss Elizabeth Sladen, Mrs. Lewis Lind, Mrs. John B. Ecker, Mrs. Henry Barnard and Mrs. John G. Pollard.

Concert to Mark Pan American Day

To celebrate Pan American Day, the director general of the Pan American Union, Dr. L. S. Rowe and Dr. Pedro de Alba, assistant director, have issued invitations to a concert of music of the Americas, by the United States Navy Band on Monday evening, April 14, at 9 o'clock.

Assisting artists will be Lila Cerda, Chilean soprano, and Angelo Reyes, Cuban violinist. The concert will be held in the Hall of the Americas at the Pan American Union.

John Connell to Wed Miss Boylan April 14

Miss Eleanor Frances Boylan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Boylan, of Cumberland, Md., and John M. Connell, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Connell, of Washington, whose engagement was announced recently, will be married April 14.

The ceremony will be performed at St. Paul's Church, with the Rev. Cornelius Dacy officiating. Only members of their families and intimate friends will attend.

Mme. Ertegun Feted

Mme. Ertegun was ranking guest at the luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Peyton March at the Army and Navy Town Club.

Donald Richberg Is 'Belle' Of All-Feminine Tea Party

It was technically an all-feminine tea yesterday afternoon at Mrs. Raymond Clapper's, but one lone man—Donald Richberg, in fact—accompanied his wife to the party and was immediately the center of attention and definitely the "belle" of the afternoon.

The event was in honor of Mrs. J. Fred Essary and her two house guests, Mrs. Theodore Allen Dees and Miss Emma Michie, of Lake Charles, La., who came to Washington to attend the Women's National Press Club stunt party. They will be here until the end of the week. Mrs. Dees is a sister-in-law of Mrs. Essary.

Mrs. Clapper received in the drawing room of their newly built modernistic home. The house, located on Chain Bridge Road, is one of the loveliest in Washington, and many guests took advantage of the opportunity and went on a tour of the exquisitely furnished rooms.

Generally assisting her mother during the afternoon was Miss Janet Clapper, who looked like a jonquil, in a suit of pastel yellow. Mrs. Clapper had chosen a floor-length tea gown of beige crepe for the occasion, fashioned with a front panel of watermelon shade.

In the dining room a most unusual table centerpiece intrigued the guests. From the glossy purple surface of a large eggplant extended sprays of rich, pinky-red rhubarb stalks (the rhubarb, incidentally, matched the tone of the draperies and upholstery in the room); large bunches of green grapes and the white of casually sprinkled gardenias completed the stunning arrangement.

Assisting at the tea table were Mrs. Oscar Chapman, who wore a soldier-blue covert suit with navy accessories; Mrs. Thomas Stokes, Mrs. Barnet Nover and Mrs. Frank Waring.

Mrs. Claude Wickard, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, dropped by early in the afternoon. She was, by the way, also celebrating her birthday yesterday. Mrs. Thurman Arnold, wife of the Assistant Attorney General, accented her black frock with heavy and intricately wrought silver costume jewelry.

"Smart as paint," was the comment about the frock of Mme. Lombard, whose husband was formerly military attache of the French Embassy here. Her frock, also of basic black, was frothy with lace and ultra feminine in effect. Mrs. James Cope and Mrs. Samuel Bledsoe were two others who looked especially springy.

Mrs. Claude Pepper, wife of the Florida Senator, achieved a most military affect by tossing a blue cape over her suit with its scarlet coat and blue skirt; Mrs. E. Brooke Lee turned out in a tweed ensemble and Mrs. Frank Buck was a symphony in blue. Miss Genevieve Hendricks accented her black outfit with a real lace yoke and the list could go on indefinitely.

LOW-DOWN on some high-ups:

"A woman needs only two (good) dresses." It was Mme. Valentina speaking in the faint accent left over from her Russian birth. No, she didn't go into the traditional designers' line of little basics and a "black fundamental." She just thinks that any woman is much happier with two really smart numbers, varied with different accessories, than with lots of $17.95 things. She says that several school teachers are among the clients of her New York shop—spending their spare cash on "two really good dresses."

AS EVE CURIE was bumping along in a taxi with your reporter after the Press Club dinner, she said she would return to England in May. "I made my return reservation on the Clipper when I left London last winter," she explained. Slender, dark-haired Mlle. Curie will receive an honorary degree from Troy College, in Troy, N. Y., next month. She says the only thing she doesn't enjoy about her lecture tours are the nights on a train. "They always arrive places at 6 a. m.," she sighed.

MARJORIE KINNAN RAWLINGS ("The Yearling") was a White House guest during her stay here. A former Washingtonian, she attended Western High School . . . Mrs. Roosevelt forgot her ticket when she arrived at the Willard for the dinner . . . Mrs. Vincent Sheean (Diana Forbes-Robertson) showed friends an exquisite cloisonne compact—the only possession left after the fire which destroyed the Sheean home in Westchester . . . Shy Josephine Johnson, who looks like a schoolgirl, confessed she has written another book, but it "needs a lot of working." She does her writing between 2 and 4 in the afternoon, when a little maid comes in to look after her 14 months old baby. Miss Johnson does all the cooking for her family—and loves it . . . Friendly Margaret Webster, the Shakespearean director, confided she was doing Euripides' "Trojan Women" shortly. Mrs. Myron Taylor, seething with excitement at the stunt party, said she'd flown all the way from Palm Beach just to be present.

YOU WOULD hardly associate either economics or warfare with gentle, soft-voiced Miss Craig McGeachy, who represents the Ministry of Economic Warfare at the British Embassy. When she lived in Geneva, Miss McGeachy was famous for her hospitality. "Her apartment, which was in the oldest house in the city, was the place you went as soon as you parked your bags at the hotel" said one Geneva friend of hers. One of the guests at Miss McGeachy's tea the other day for Professor Winifred Cullis was Miss Mary Anne Mills, of the International Y. W. C. A. "When I left Geneva," she said, "I took my 'office' along with me—in one small box. I had to leave it in Bordeaux when France fell, but somehow, miraculously, it turned up in New York a few months later."

Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss will rejoin Mr. Auchincloss here today or tomorrow. She spent most of the winter at Hobe Sound, where Mrs. Mondell Gregg, also of Washington, has been visiting her . . . Mrs. Donald Hiss and Mrs. George Rublee have joined Mrs. Hugh Butler's class in public speaking . . . Witold Wankowicz, former Counselor of the Polish Embassay here, now has a job with the British Purchasing Commission in New York. He resigned from the embassy shortly after the war began and for a time was Polish Commissioner at the World's Fair. Noel Trentham, once with the British Embassy here, was describing the life of a Bermuda censor the other day. "There are 600 of us," he said, "and we have taken over an entire hotel."

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Mrs. Roosevelt has gone to New York to attend several meetings of women's organizations and will spend the weekend at Hyde Park. Now at the White House are James Roosevelt and Capt Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr.

The Minister of Finland, Hjalmar Procope, has gone to New York, where he is staying at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Henry D. Munnikhuysen will have as their guests for the weekend, Brig Gen. and Mrs. Robert Eichelberger of West Point, N. Y. They will entertain at a buffet for them on Sunday.

Mrs. Reginald S. Huidekoper and the Misses Ann and Elizabeth Huidekoper, of Washington, are at the Biltmore Hotel in New York.

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. F. D. Karns, jr., of Norfolk, Va., are at the Martinique.

Mrs. Webster Ballinger has opened her home at 4605 Langdrum Lane for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Distler have issued invitations to a party on Tuesday, April 15, from 4 to 7, at the 1925 F Street Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin and their children have returned to Washington after spending two weeks at Miami Beach, Fla., where they visited Mrs. Erwin's mother, Mrs. Delos A. Blodgett.

Miss Lois Garlock will entertain at a dinner and bridge party tomorrow at the Silver Bowl. The guests will include Mrs. Paul Grove, Mrs. Josephine L. Jacobs, Mrs. James Corridon, Mrs. Harry M. Wells, Mrs. Maysie Borland, Mrs. Mary K. White, Mrs. John Dower, Miss Jessie G. Lane, Miss May Belle Raymond, Miss Ruth Bennett and Miss Elva McNamara.

Montgomerys Expected Soon In District

Expected in Washington shortly are John F. Montgomery, United States Minister to Hungary for the last eight years, and Mrs. Montgomery. They arrived in New York on Tuesday, on the Dixie Clipper.

Mr. Montgomery recently resigned his post because the climate of Hungary did not agree with his wife. The couple will spend a few days in Washington before going to San Francisco, where they will make their home.

The same Clipper brought an imposing number of Englishmen, most of whom are coming to Washington on official business. They include Sir Quintin Hill, deputy secretary of the Ministry of Food for the British Government, and his assistant, Maurice Hutton. Another passenger was Ronald Tree, parliamentary secretary to Alfred Duff-Cooper, Minister of Information, who will visit Washington and the Midwest. Arthur W. Coles, former Lord Mayor of Melbourne, Australia, and now a member of the Australian Parliament, was also a passenger.

Jane Bell Sets Wedding Date

Mr. and Mrs. Brian Bell have issued invitations for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Jane Bell, to Joseph William Magee, which will take place April 16 in St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Arlington. A small reception will follow at the Bell home.

Many parties are being planned for the young couple. Next Tuesday Mrs. Ernest Warren will entertain at a tea in their honor. Mrs. W. R. Hudgins will be hostess at a buffet supper on April 14 and following the rehearsal on April 15 Mrs. Morgan Beatty will give a supper party. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Short entertained at a tea recently for the couple. Mrs. Max Boyd was luncheon hostess in honor of Miss Bell last week.

The bride-elect has chosen as her attendants Miss Edna Earl Allen, of Mullins, S. C., as maid of honor, Mrs. Walter Levis and Miss Juddy Latta. On Sunday evening Miss Latta entertained at a buffet supper for the couple.

R. T. Carr to Wed Miss Dorothy Ford

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Virginia Ford and Roland T. Carr will take place at 4 p. m. Saturday at the Hamline Methodist Church. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Donald Ford, of Annapolis.

Miss Ford has selected Miss Eleanor R. Mitchell as maid of honor. Miss Jean E. Blanchard will be soloist. Frank Gibbons will be best man. A reception will follow at Wardman Park Hotel. On Saturday Mr. Gibbons entertained at a party at Wardman Park for members of the bridal party and a few additional friends.

1,400 Jam G. O. P. Reception and Tea Here for Mrs. Willkie

Admirers Wait in Line, Some as Long As an Hour, to Shake Her Hand, But No One Seems to Mind It

By Jessie Ash Arndt

The Post Club Editor

"Line forms to the right, in the ballroom"—And what a line!

Republican women and a scattering of Republican men with not a few Democratic admirers of Mrs. Wendell Willkie among them, thronged into the Mayflower Hotel nearly 1,400 strong yesterday afternoon to attend the tea given by the League of Republican Women in her honor.

The affair was from 5 to 7 and during the entire two hours there was a lineup three-deep extending from the center of the ballroom to the far side of the Chinese Room, where Mrs. Willkie received with Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, president of the league, and Representative Joseph W. Martin, chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Most of the guests, after surveying the length of the slow-moving line, went into the ballroom for tea before taking their places at the end of it and inching up toward the guest of honor. The line was about an hour long—if you stepped into place at 5:30, you shook hands with Mrs. Willkie by 6:30. But no one seemed to mind and the graciousness with which she greeted them when they finally reached her appeared to make the long wait worth while.

She wore a redingote frock of blue and white print with a navy coat and a perky little white hat, the front of which was formed by two large dogwood flowers with navy blue centers, and a shadow of navy veiling standing up behind them. Her corsage was of lavender orchids.

Mrs. Gann wore a floor-length gown of violet chiffon with a design in velvet. Her small violet-colored straw hat had a crown formed by a spray of lilies of the valley with a single purple rose, and with it she wore a veil that came down over her face. Her corsage also was of orchids.

In the throng of guests was Mrs. Charles L. McNary, wife of Senator McNary, of Oregon, who was Mr. Willkie's running mate in the November election. She wore a large black hat, with a veil and a black dress.

Mrs. Virginia White Speel, Republican National Committeewoman for the District and founder and former president of the league, was another noted in the crowd. She wore a costume of purple, her straw hat, matching her dress, trimmed with flowers.

There was music by an orchestra during the tea and many of those who had successfully gone down the line sat for a while to enjoy it and watch others who were still moving up.

Mrs. William S. Culbertson, general chairman of the affair, wore a navy blue frock with accents of peach color.

Those alternating at tea tables were Mrs. Harry L. Engelbrigt, Mrs. U. S. Guyer, Mrs. John M. Robsion, Mrs. Albert E. Carter, Mrs. Francis D. Culkin, Mrs. Charles W. Tobey, Mrs. Roy O. Woodruff, Mrs. John Taber, Miss Marion E. Martin, Mrs. Harold H. Burton, Mrs. Ralph A. Harris, Mrs. Hamilton Fish, jr., Mrs. A. H. Andresen, Representative Edith Rankin, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers and Representative Margaret Chase Smith.

Also Mrs. John Thomas, Mrs. George D. Aiken, Mrs. C. Wayland Brooks, Mrs. Alexander Wiley, Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Mrs. William E. Borah, Mrs. Joseph H. Ball, Mrs. John A. Danaher, Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, Mrs. Chan Gurney, Mrs. Warren R. Austin, Mrs. Richard B. Wigglesworth, Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Mrs. Wallace H. White, Mrs. Robert A. Taft and Mrs. Charles A. McNary.

Underwood & Underwood

Leader Here For Camp Fire Girls' Training

Miss Catherine Wahlstrom, a national field executive for the Camp Fire Girls, is here from New York to have charge of the regular spring training course being sponsored by the Potomac Area Camp Fire Girls' association today and tomorrow, at the Universalitst National Memorial Church. Mrs. Paul Ledig, former chairman of the association, has planned the two-day program.

Following registration at 9 o'clock this morning, the session will open with the invocation by Dr. Seth R. Brooks, pastor of the church. There will be a discussion of health craft by Dr. G. J. Barger; "Camp Fire Symbolism," by Mrs. Harold Purvine, chairman of the Potomac Area, and "Citizenship Opportunities," by Mrs. Ledig. Conferences for Camp Fire leaders and a conference for Blue Bird leaders, led by Miss Wahlstrom, will follow.

After luncheon, served by the women of the church, Mrs. William Trail will discuss and illustrate spatter printing; Mrs. Harold Hand, wood carving, and Mrs. Virginia Parkman, leather work.

Tomorrow Mrs. Irene Caldwell, president of the Potomac Area Council, will make an announcement regarding Chinese relief; Mrs. Walter Young will discuss Pan American Day. The invocation will be given by Dr. Oris G. Robinson, pastor of Calvary Methodist Church. There will be music, with Mrs. Robert Laughlin at the piano; a talk on business lore by Mrs. Marvin Simmons; week-end camping, Mrs. Martin Jansson, Washington chairman; home craft, Mrs. Fred C. Schmucker, Langley, Va., and "Nature for City Slickers," by Mrs. F. Norman Hearn, chairman of the Montgomery County Camp Fire.

In the afternoon Miss Wahlstrom will talk on "The Relation of National Camp Fire to Local Groups" and will lead the closing ceremonial.

P.-T. A. Board Gives Tea Today

The Board of managers of the D. C. Congress of Parents and Teachers will entertain the membership of this organization this afternoon at tea in the studio in the Grafton Hotel, from 2 to 5 o'clock. Mrs. Edward R. Seal, general chairman, has as her assistants Mrs. Andrew A. Stewart, Mrs. Richard Alexander, Mrs. B. M. Eldred, Mrs. Clinton Ward and Mrs. Charles Sinclair.

A program of songs will be presented at 4:30 o'clock by Miss Sonia Berman, young coloratura soprano, who will sing two arias from "La Boheme," and two duets with Joseph Zeis, tenor. They will be accompanied by Clara Moran Bernheimer, with whom Miss Berman is studying. Incidental piano music will be played by Mrs. Gail Richter, a member of the faculty of Stuart Junior High School.

NEW ROCHELLE CHAPTER, Daughters of the American Revolution, has just contributed a valuable addition to the genealogical records of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution. It is a 165-page volume, containing the records from the graves of the Huguenots in seven New Rochelle cemeteries.

The book represents two years of careful work on the part of the genealogical committee of the New Rochelle Chapter, headed by Mrs. William H. Lough who brought it to Washington to present to Dr. Jean Stephenson, chairman of the Geneological Records Committee of the national society.

In addition to the records, there are drawings of the cemetery plots, showing the location of the various graves, which are the work of Mrs. Mary G. Hubbell, sister of Representative Caroline O'Day, of New York. Other members of the committee are Mrs. R. W. Barrington, Mrs. J. F. Bennett, Mrs. George Fuller, Mrs. R. B. Kershaw, Mrs. J. I. Snyder, Mrs. Arthur H. Titus and Mrs. W. H. Weiher.

The contribution of this chapter, of which Mrs. Harold B. Gardner is regent, is typical of work being done by D. A. R. groups throughout the country, in preserving records which would otherwise be destroyed. It is part of a project of the national society.

Mrs. Lough, with members of her committee, located and visited the old cemeteries, consulted old records and conferred with local historians to prepare the volume with absolute accurancy. It includes not only the individual records but also histories of the cemeteries, how they were started and how they are administered.

In the beginning of the book this appropriate Proverb is quoted: "Remove not the old land mark; and enter not into the fields of the fatherless." (Proverb 23:10).

JASPER UNIT DINNER—Sergt. Jasper Unit, of the American Legion Auxiliary, will hold a dinner on Saturday at 7 p. m., at the New Colonial Hotel in celebration of its fourteenth anniversary. Dancing will follow. Mrs. Edythe O'Connor and Mrs. Mary McMillin are in charge.

MOUNT HOLYOKE CLUB—of Washington will meet Saturday at 2:30 p. m. at the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women, 1634 I Street Northwest.

Mrs. Harold D. Krafft, president of the club, will preside at the meeting. The business will include the report of the Alumnae Councilar, Mrs. Lennig Sweet, who has recently returned from a visit to the college.

Hostesses for tea which will be served after the meeting are: Miss Elsie Brown, Miss Margaret V. Buffum, Mrs. Roy Jackson, Mrs C. W. Lowry, Miss Evelyn R. Thompson, Mrs. Maynard O. Williams and Mrs. William E. Woodruff.

FINAL DANCE—The Minnesota State Society's annual Army Day Dance will be held at Hotel 2400 Saturday night from 9 to 1.

All commissioned officers now stationed in Washington and vicinity who are from Minnesota are invited to attend this party as guests of the society. The society's first Army Day Dance, held last year, was such a success that it was decided to make it an annual affair.

This is the last social event of the Minnesota Society this season. Admission will be by membership card, or tickets may be obtained at the door.

A. A. U. W. Hears of War Roles Played by Women of England

Unity and intense conviction of an ultimate victory are the two striking features in England today, Dr. Winifred Cullis, outstanding English educator and past president of the International Federation of University Women, told members of the Washington Branch of the A. A. U. W. last night.

Dr. Cullis, who was introduced by Mrs. William C. Van Vleck, branch president, is in this country on her way home from the Far East, where she was sent to tell the British women there what those at home were doing. She expressed the gratitude of the English for the help from the people of America—"the goods and comforts that are going over in a stream," which are of inestimable value in helping in the raids, and for the sympathy and work they represent."

She declared that England was united as she had never seen it in her lifetime. "This may be," she said, "because our people realize it is not only for our own freedom and safety, but for something much greater than that, for a way of life based upon fundamental principles of truth and justice and honor and freedom. We have made our decision. We know we may be buying these things at the cost of life, but we have from that decision, peace of mind and that, paradoxical as it may seem, has brought to the nation, happiness."

"We are convinced of victory and we know that it is likely to be a hard task. We are not deceiving ourselves," she said.

Conviction of victory is based, first, on the quality and performance of the fighting services, said Dr. Cullis, and first among these she put the navy, both the royal navy and the merchant navy. "As an example of what I mean by quality is given in the Pawal Pindi and Jervis Bay, two armed merchant ships acting as convoy which were sunk engaging the enemy while the other convoys escaped," she said. "They did this, knowing there was no chance of escaping themselves, but, although they were sunk, 32 out of 39 ships were saved.

"Contrast that," she added, "with the episode of the Graf Spee. That is an illustration of what I mean by spirit."

England now has an army larger and better equipped than any she has ever had, with spirit equal to any—an army showing its quality in the present war in North Africa, said Dr. Cullis.

Referring to the Royal Air Force and its gallant exploits, she stated that the reports of the air ministry "are completely accurate as regards our own losses and probably underestimate those on the other side, because of the very severe criteria demanded by the air force to establish the fact that an enemy plane has been downed."

She also elaborated the point that women are serving in all three of those forces. A woman in uniform means a man set free for more active service, she said. The women in the services are largely doing clerical work and that in connection with canteens.

These, as well as a large number of women in other organizations, are doing transport work of all kinds, she added.

When she was in Australia she was told, she said, that a large number of the tanks now being used in Libya were driven from the place where they were manufactured to the place of embarkation, by women. About 100,000 women in England are driving ambulances. There are also the ferry pilots who take the planes from the aircraft factories to the airdromes.

On the defense side, she mentioned the Home Guard of about 1,500,000 men, now all trained and equipped.

The second reason for conviction of victory given by Dr. Cullis was the spirit of the civilian. In the Air Raid Precautions and the Auxiliary Fire Service, people are giving magnificient and oftentimes dangerous service, she declared. She gave special recognition to the woman in the home who has to carry on by herself without the stimulus of companionship that those have who are in the military services and factories. She is bearing a large part of the disabilities of the war, blackouts and rationing and she has taken into her home by hundreds of thousands first children, and now whole families from bombed areas. She has done it willingly and generously, said Dr. Cullis.

She told of a Dutch woman in Dutch East Indies who came to her with tears in her eyes and said: "Every night when I put my children safely in bed, I think of the women and children of England and go down on my knees and ask God to help them."

Writers Hear Miss Anderson

Jobs for women are opening up steadily in the defense industries, Miss Mary Anderson, chief of the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor, told members of the Washington Branch of the League of American Pen Women yesterday. She was guest speaker at a tea given at the Grafton Hotel Studio.

Among the types of work for which women are in demand, she said, are inspection, in which employers say women are more exact than men; packing, operating punch presses and welding. These jobs often were filled by women prior to the defense program, but now to a much greater extent, as men are being advanced to other positions and women are taking those they have previously filled.

A survey was made of 40 New England factories last October, Miss Anderson said, and these were checked again just a week ago. In every instance they were found to be employing almost double the number of workers now that they had in October, she said.

Inquiries from women as to what they could do in the defense industries are pouring into the Women's Bureau, Miss Anderson told her audience. They are being told to register with the employment office in their own localities, where they will be given advice as to what to do.

D. C. Heads Ask Bridge, Tube Study at Once

Immediate authorization by Congress of a study into the needs of a tunnel or bridge over the Potomac River connecting the District and Alexandria was urged yesterday by the District Commissioners.

Although the Commissioners already have requested authorization for such a study in the 1942 budget estimates now awaiting Congressional action, they stressed the increasing traffic congestion over the present Potomac spans and the possibility of the proposed crossing in connection with the Nation's defense efforts.

Similar problems were discussed Tuesday night at a conference in Alexandria between representatives of the District government, Federal Government, Arlington County and Alexandria city governments.

Engineer Commissioner David McCoach, jr., said the proposal to build a bridge connecting Shepherd's Landing, at Blue Plains, D. C., to Alexandria, must take into consideration possible interference of the span, if it is built too high, with planes at the nearby fields and with warships, if built too low, coming to and from the Navy Yard.

Estimates for a tube, in case the bridge proposal is defeated, run into considerable expense. It has been estimated a two-lane tube would cost about $10,000,000 and a four-lane tube, $16,000,000. On the other hand the bridge crossing would run about $8,000,000.

Complacency Imperils U. S., Rotarians Told

Complacency on the part of Americans is a doughtier foe than any fifth column, foreign agent or saboteur Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson yesterday told more than 100 members and guests of the Rotary Club of Washington.

Speaking at the annual Army Day luncheon in the Willard Hotel the Undersecretary classified the complacency of the Nation as "public enemy No. 1."

"We Americans have the habit of liberty. We think it is a pretty good habit. We have another habit which is not so good—the habit of complacency. Because we have always enjoyed liberty, we assume we shall go on enjoying it indefinitely. But there are those in other lands to whom the thought of an enduring free America in a totalitarian world is repugnant and loathsome.

"So let us beware of complacency. Complacency wrecked France and tore French liberty to tatters and left French stomachs empty. Complacency delayed England's defense program for three years.

The people, he said, have heard much of the delays in the program but "little of the projects that are ahead of schedule." The delays are serious to the extent that any lost moment is serious and "when I have said that I have said the worst."

India United in Desire to Speed Axis Downfall, Says Its London Representative, Here on Visit

Some Differences, But Nothing Thwarts War Effort, He Asserts

By Edward T. Folliard

Post Staff Writer

Whatever be her political differences, India is united in her desire to hasten the downfall of the totalitarian powers in Europe. India has increased her army to a half-million men, and thousands of her turbaned warriors are now fighting under Gen. Archibald P. Wavell in Libya and East Africa. Her navy and air force have been quadrupled since the start of the war. Her iron mines and steel plants are going full blast. She is building torpedo boats and armed sloops, and soon she will be turning out warplanes in a plant in southern India.

This is the picture of India that has been brought to Washington by Sir Firoz Noon, K. C. I. E., Indian high commissioner in London. Sir Firoz recently came over on one of Pan American's clippers to discuss American-Indian trade relations. Through his office in London is cleared the trade of India with Europe and both the Americas.

Sir Firoz said that of India's population of 400,000,000—more than three times that of the United States—1,500,000 now labor in modern industrial plants.

"Nothing to Thwart War Effort"

In the precise English which he learned at Chiefs' College, Lahore, and Wadham College, Oxford, Sir Firoz talked about India's attitude toward the war and India's part in fighting it. He said:

"So far as the people of India are concerned—and that includes the All-India Congress under Mr. Ghandi—they are unitedly against raziism and fascism. The All-India National Congress has adopted resolutions expressing the desire to see the downfall of the totalitarian powers in Euroupe.

"In spite of certain political differences, the All-India National Congress has done nothing to thwart the war effort. There have been no strikes in war industries.

"People outside of India have no idea of the industrial strength which India already has achieved. Ninety per cent of India's war requirements are being produced within India.

"We have recently—that is, since the war began—increased our standing army from 160,000 to 500,000. These men have been fully trained and fully equipped from within India, and they already are taking part in the war. Indian troops had a prominent part in the conquest of Libya. Now they are taking their full share in the conquest of Eritrea and Abyssinia."

"Enthusiasm for War"

He said the Indian troops serving under Gen. Wavell included all groups—Hindus, Moslems and the bearded Sikhs.

"To give you just one example of the enthusiasm for the war in India," continued Sir Firoz, "our government the other day wanted 300 recruits for the air force, and they received 27,000 applications.

"Since the war began our navy and our air force (India now has an Indian Royal Navy and an Indian Royal Air Force) have been quadrupled, and all the convoying of all supply ships from India to the Middle East is now carried on by the Royal Indian Navy.

"We have four ordnance factories in India which have existed for over 70 years and whose capacity has already been doubled since the war. We have always produced our own rifles, machine guns and artillery up to 9-inch caliber, and we are now producing antiaircraft guns.

"Tata is among the first six steel firms in the world. We not only meet our own requirements but we help our allies with steel. India has the largest iron ore reserve in the world.

Buying Tools Here

"The Far East Convention, which was held in Delhi, has made India the central point for coordinating the war effort of the whole British Empire beyond Suez.

SIR FIROZ NOON

"We are building torpedo boats and sloops in Indoa, and we are also setting up an airplane factory in southern India, which will come into production this year. We are buying machine tools in the United States for producing motors in India."

The Indian knight, who is going from here to California and thence to Canada, said that he felt like a fish out of water here in peaceful Washington. He said he missed the excitement of London, and was reminded of it only when he heard the sirens of ambulances or fire engines.

"It is really a great joy taking a personal part in the great fight for the freedom of humanity," he said. "When I am away from the theater of war, I feel that as a man I am not doing my bit."

"Sacrifice and Bravery"

Every bomb that falls on England, he said, increases the determination of the British to fight through to victory. He continued:

"I cannot see how, with our supremacy on the sea, we can be beaten. The British Empire is a wide area. The spirit of sacrifice and bravery and the unity even of the women of England will remain a source of great encouragement and pride to the rising generation, and if the manhood of the British Empire succeed—as I am confident they will—in securing for the world their freedom for the future, we shall be very proud for generations to come of our sacrifices and achievements."

He was asked how the British felt about America's status in respect to the war. Did they expect the United States to come in?

"Great Britain and her allies are happy to realize," he said, "that we who are fighting the war and yourselves stand for the same ideology—democracy and freedom for all the world. We are very grateful for all the material and moral support which we are receiving from the United States in prosecution of this aim.

Sir Firoz Noon Tells Of Big Expansion In Industrial Plants

"Fills Hearts With Pride"

"The British Empire has unlimited manpower. We need airplanes and tanks, and these you are supplying us in your full generosity.

"How far further your assistance should go it is for your own people to decide. Of course our greatest need is shipping and the safety of our vital supply routes.

"The part played by the British Navy in fighting the enemy's battleships and in serving as the watchman of the world's commercial navigation is commensurate with the high traditions of that great service. Their successes at Taranto (at the heel of Italy), at Lofoten Island, and in the recent battle in the Ionian Sea fills our hearts with pride and hope. In short, the men of the British Navy and of the Royal Air Force will be able justly to claim that they saved the world from subjugation."

During his sojourn here, Sir Firoz is talking with State Department officials about trade matters. He said that there is a feeling in India that trade relations cannot be fully developed unless big businessmen in India are allowed to come here and reside with the same freedom that is granted to all American citizens in India.

In 1940, according to Department of Commerce figures, the United States sold to India articles valued at $68,428,000 and imported from India articles valued at $102,187,000. That makes the United States India's second best customer.

The United States sells to India lubricating oil, motor trucks, buses, passenger automobiles, parts for replacement, leaf tobacco, raw cotton, petroleum and gas-well drilling apparatus.

The United States buys from India such articles as burlap and other woven fabrics, goat and kid skins, cashew nuts, tea, jute, wool and manganese ore.

British Benefit Sale Opens Today at Piccadilly Arcade

Treasured and rare objects will go on sale today as the Piccadilly Arcade opens its sale for the benefit of the British Royal Air Force.

The doors will open at 10 a. m. at 1423 F Street Northwest and remain open until 6:30 p. m. The sale will continue through Saturday with a special auction at 7:30 p. m. Saturday.

Lady Halifax, wife of the British Ambassador, is honorary chairman of the benefit sale, which is being held under the auspices of the British War Relief, Inc. Mrs. Truxtun Beale is chairman of the committee.

Ten separate shops will display a variety of objects. Antiques, china and glassware, books, a dress shop, and children's, accessory and food shops will be housed in the F Street headquarters.

The work of noted artists, including a print by George Biddle, will be for sale for the benefit of the R. A. F.

Pierre Bardet, former chef of the Normandie, has contributed 16 different kinds of relishes and preserves for the food shop, which will be presided over by Mrs. Warren Austin, wife of the Senator from Vermont. Mrs. Austin has contributed 51 pails of maple sugar.

Mrs. Kent Legare, voted one of the ten best dressed women in the world, will preside over the dress shop. Noel Coward has presented shirts and ties to the men's shop.

Justice Felix Frankfurter has given a letter written and signed by the late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. Several first editions of his own verse have been given by Archibald MacLeish, the Librarian of Congress.

Miss Mabel Boardman has donated several antiques to the shop headed by Mrs. Gifford Pinchot. Mme. Martins, wife of the Brazilian Minister, has given a figure of a woman and child carved by herself.

Tickets on Sale Today For Robeson Concert

A total of 7,000 tickets will go on sale today for the Paul Robeson concert to be held April 25 at the Uline Arena under the auspices of the Washington Committee to Aid China.

Mrs. Roosevelt and Dr. Hu Shih, the Chinese Ambassador, head the sponsoring committee. Robeson will be featured in "Ballad for Americans," supported by a chorus of 150 voices.

Leahy Blames G.H.A. Founders For Medical Prosecution

By Gerald G. Gross

Post Staff Writer

Following the sports maxim that the best defense is a good offense, William E. Leahy yesterday waded savagely into the prosecution and the laymen founders of Group Health Association.

Opening arguments which defense counsel expects to save organized medicine from conviction under the Sherman Act, Leahy laid full responsibility for the criminal action to two G. H. A. trustees and told the jury: "To bring these doctors to the humiliation of this trial is criminal."

He began his argument immediately after the Government, through Grant W. Kelleher, special assistant to the Attorney General, had pleaded with the jury to "let your verdict be the answer to these defendants, who would hide those (commercialistic) purposes in the shelter of the Hippocratic oath."

Both Kelleher and John Henry Lewin, his associate in the prosecution, who opened the Government's arguments yesterday morning, challenged the motives of the defendant doctors, who maintain that their opposition to the Federal workers' health cooperative was solely in the public's interest.

Courtroom Is Filled

"These defendants were seeking to drive out this threat to private practice in the District of Columbia," said Kelleher. "They feared it (G. H. A.) would succeed, would give adequate medical care, would hurt their private practice."

Bitterly, passionately, the veteran lawyer, Leahy, denounced the accusation of his 28-year-old courtroom opponent. In a crowded chamber, with the ears of many listeners glued against the courtroom door because every seat inside was taken, the chief defense counsel fiercely applied his searing rhetoric to William F. Penniman and Raymond R. Zimmerman, key men in the founding of Group Health Association.

The former now is deputy governor of the Federal Home Loan Bank System. Zimmerman, HOLC chief when G. H. A. was launched in 1937, is now an official of the Civil Service Commission.

If they had not interfered with Dr. Henry Rolf Brown, first medical director of Group Health Association, the doctors at the bar would not have been "condemned as if they ought to spend the rest of their lives in disgrace," Leahy argued.

"Don't you think they (Penniman and Zimmerman) should have consulted with some District doctors when they were planning to start up Group Health Association?" he demanded.

They consistently refused to take the local medical profession into their confidence, "though all D. C. physicians are rightly interested in a group that aims to take care of thousands."

Whereas hundreds of letters and other documents of the American Medical Association and District Medical Society were available for introduction in the trial, what happened to those which Penniman and Zimmerman wrote or received? Leahy shouted.

"There isn't as much evidence in this case as there is out of it," he charged, adding that the prosecution is depending on suspicion and inference to make its case.

When Penniman, whom he described as "a marvelous witness for the Government, fine-looking and well-schooled and who knows how to make a sale," wanted to communicate with Dr. Francis X. McGovern he did not write, but telephoned, because a call is not recorded, Leahy said.

"This business of restraint has been a bugbear in the minds of Penniman and Zimmerman from the beginning," he told the jury.

16 Defendants Present

Real restraint of G. H. A. would have been campaigning against enrollment of members, interfering with procurement of space for the clinic or going directly to staff physicians and demanding that they resign, according to Leahy.

"They're asking you to convict on suspicion, when they won't supply you with the proof," he taunted Government counsel.

Sixteen of the 18 individual defendants were in the courtroom to hear themselves first castigated and then eulogized. Dr. Thomas A. Groover is dead. Dr. Arthur C. Christie, who for many years was associated with him in the practice of radiology, is seriously ill at home.

The American Medical Association and District Medical Society are the other defendants. Drs. Leon A. Martel and J. Rogers Young, who were freed last month by directed verdicts of Justice James M. Proctor, along with the Washington Academy of Surgery and Harris County (Texas) Medical Society, also sat through yesterday's arguments.

Lewin, opening for the Government, deprecated the "calculated pressure backed up by real power" which the organized physicians allegedly exercised against Washington hospitals to keep G. H. A. doctors off the staffs.

He accused the defendants of throwing a smoke screen of "ethics" around their assault against G. H. A. Upholding the qualifications of Dr. Raymond E. Selders, former surgeon of the cooperative clinic and who was denied courtesy privileges by Washington hospitals, Lewin excoriated the defense for introducing a "miserable, muckraking letter, piling hearsay on hearsay," which aspersed the surgeon's character.

Kelleher said there is "nothing to show that private medical practice has been able to cope with this serious social problem," namely, the uneven distribution of medical care.

Defense Employes' Status Temporary

New defense employes at State, Justice and Commerce would be given temporary appointments "with the understanding that when the present emergency is over they will immediately be separated from the rolls" under a recommendation made yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee. The committee also ordered heads of the three departments to study overtime "with a view of equalizing the burden of after-hours work" until adjustments can be made. Some officials in the three agencies testified that they were compelled to work their employes many hours of overtime. In other divisions very little overtime is worked. The committee suggested detailing employes from one division to another to equalize the work.

The committee took a crack at President Roosevelt for refusing to give Census Director William L. Austin a one-year extension to allow him to complete the taking of the 1940 census. Austin was forced recently to retire at 70 which was of "considerable regret" to the committee.

The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce was given a dressing down by the committee. The report stated that "some of the studies being conducted give the impression that it is a question of laboring to find something to do." The committee went on to say that "all theoretical studies must be dispensed with" . . . Defense Homes Corporation is considering several plans for Federal employes' dormitories here. All the dormitories planned would be confined to women, but one for men may also be built.

Weather Bureau has 10 of its employes in colleges and universities studying meteorology. It proposed that 10 more be sent next year but the House committee knocked out the appropriation. The committee said it wasn't "impressed with the philosophy underlying the whole scheme of paying the salaries of Government officers while they are permitted to attend universities for the purpose of enhancing their knowledge of technical subjects." Instead, the committee suggested that ambitious youths should be told of the openings in the meteorological field.

Civil Service Commission was ordered to report criminal records of persons it investigates to the FBI . . . The House committee ordered the Public Buildings Administration to obtain adequate space for FBI without delay. It suggested that FBI be given a building to itself where it would have a reasonable opportunity to expand . . . The committee put its finger on a sore spot when it revealed that Immigration and Naturalization was losing many of its best employes to other departments. It demanded a halt to this practice, but it didn't say how it was to be done.

Two REA officials have discovered the famed Southern hospitality isn't what it's cracked up to be. Sanford M. Stoddard and Fred Jordan were in Baton Rouge last week minding their own business when four tough deputies crashed into their room and began to push and kick them around. Handcuffs were slapped on them before they were allowed to identify themselves. Jordan was even taken to the jail and fingerprinted. State officials from the Governor down have apologized. The officers made an excuse about hunting for a gang of robbers.

Civil Service registers and the number of eligibles on each: Senior stenographer, 6,309; junior stenographer, 11,180; senior male typist, 2,204; junior male typist, 3,495; senior female typist, 25,883, and junior female typist, 32,126. Despite the vast number of eligibles, the commission is finding it difficult to get junior stenographers and senior typists to accept Federal jobs here . . . UFWA yesterday distributed 60,000 leaflets announcing a "Pay Raises Now" mass meeting tonight at South Interior Auditorium.

"Witch Hunt 1941 Hits Government Workers," a 24-page pamphlet published by the Washington Committee for Democratic Action is being distributed among Federal employes. It blasts the Dies Committee, Civil Service Commission and FBI among others. It defends Margaret O. November and Julius Schlesinger, recently ousted from the Federal service. Meantime, it's rumored on Capitol Hill that the Dies Committee will soon release the names of more than a score of Federal employes it believes to be Communists or to be following the party line.

... But He Gets a Badge!

He had a low draft number and a wife who was self supporting. He also had an aversion to serving his year as a selectee. To escape it, he pressed his application to become an FBI agent and was duly appointed.

His first undercover assignment was to serve a year in an Army camp as a selectee.

Witness Cited for Contempt

Earl J. Watkins, 41, 1632 Lincoln Road Northeast arrived late at District Court, where he was called as a witness yesterday. Justice Jennings Bailey found his explanations misleading and decided also that Watkins was drunk.

Justice Bailey ruled that it all added up to 10 days in the District Jail.

U. S. Offices May Occupy School Site

Homes for Defense Workers on Property Of Boys' Institution Also Proposed

Homes for defense workers or a new Government office building may be built on the present site of the National Training School for Boys, Federal officials said last night, but the undertaking must be delayed until the Bureau of Prisons completes its study of the 71-year-old institution on Bladensburg Road Northeast.

The House Appropriations Committee virtually sounded the death knell of the school yesterday in a report to the House citing overcrowding and hazardous steam-heating and electrical installations at the school and recommending its abandonment.

Until "definite conclusions" about the future of the school can be reached, the committee declared in its report on the $212,087,300 appropriation bill for the State, Justice and Commerce Departments, that a $100,000 estimate for major repairs at the school should be slashed to $20,000.

The budget estimate called for repairs and alterations to the school's power plant, utility tunnel and utilities. The committee urged that the facilities merely be patched up temporarily.

"Very Dangerous Situation"

In hearings conducted by a subcommittee headed by Representative Louis C. Rabaut (Democrat), of Michigan, last February, James V. Bennett, director of the Bureau of Prisons, cited steam pipes at the school that were "leaking very badly" and in a "very dangerous situation." He added:

"The wiring is all worn off the electric cables and is in a hazardous situation. And, according to our engineers, we cannot go through the winter with it. It was only by virtue of a great deal of patchwork, and quite expensive, patchwork it was, that we were able to continue through the present year."

Bennett told The Post yesterday that school officers exercise particular caution against fire outbreak and that thus far there have been no serious fires.

Bennett denied published reports of disorders, riots and misconduct at the training school. He described the institution as "one of the very good schools of its kind," but he asserted that with modern buildings and equipment it would be possible to segregate various types of juvenile delinquents.

100 Boys From D. C.

The Federal prisons chief contended that reports of wholesale escapes from the school failed to give a fair picture of conditions. While admitting that a large number of inmates get away, he cited his testimony before the House committee to the effect that all but a very few of those who escape are recaptured.

Bennett said that his report on disposition of the school by providing a new one within the framework of the Federal penal system, but not necessarily near the District, would not be ready before August or September. The report was requested by the committee, which contended:

"The District of Columbia should care for its own delinquent youth and the Federal Government will make provision for its Federal wards."

It was brought out at the hearings that of the institution's average population of 400 boys, 100 are from Washington.

Proposals Fit Board's Desires

The committee declared that the 325-acre site "should be used for other more important purposes." The site, it stated, "would be ideal for some of the proposed new Government buildings, or it might be sold for residential purposes."

Use of the site for either purpose would be entirely in accord with desires of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission which nearly two years ago named a special committee of W. E. Reynolds, commissioner of public buildings, and Col. David McCoach, jr., District Engineer Commissioner, to make a study.

The committee was asked to consider, among other things, that growth of the city around the school had made desirable a change of location and that a portion of the site is needed as a link in the commission's projected parkway connecting Civil War forts on the outskirts of the city.

The commission also pointed out that a new site might make possible development of a school "more in accordance with present and prospective requirements of this type of juvenile training."

The House committee observed that construction of a new training school probably could not be undertaken during the defense emergency.

Ihlder to Testify On Rent Control

John Ihlder, executive director of the District Alley Dwelling Authority, is expected to be the first witness today at the opening of public hearings on the Randolph bill to establish a rent-control commission here.

The hearings will start at 10:30 a. m. in the House District Committee room. They will be conducted for several weeks by the Special National Defense Subcommittee of the House District Committee. Chairman Randolph of the District Committee also heads the committee.

Woman on 7th Floor Tries To Hang Clothes in Sky

A 31-year-old woman was in Gallinger Hospital last night after she had thrown most of her belongings out of a window of her seventh floor room at the Mayflower Hotel.

Hotel officials broke into the room and attempted to calm the woman. Police took her to Gallinger where she was held for mental observation.

Drive Planned On Venereal Diseases Here

A vigorous program to control venereal diseases in the metropolitan area was announced last night by Dr. George M. Leiby, director of the venereal diseases bureau of the District Health Department.

Dr. Leiby revealed, in a speech before the District Medical Society, that the campaign against the diseases would take in nearby Virginia and Maryland as well as neighboring Army and Navy detachments.

He disclosed for the first time that almost nine out of every hundred District selectees given physical examinations were found to be afflicted with syphilis. The evidence indicates, he added, that 10,000 Washingtonians between the ages of 20 and 30 are syphilitics.

To Increase Staff

This average, he said, ranks among the Nation's highest and compares with that of Mississippi, Alabama and North Carolina.

Many of the cases, Dr. Leiby predicted, would be aided by the campaign about to be launched. The medical staff of 14 doctors will be doubled, he said, and additional nurses and medical social workers will be added.

The drive will be financed from defense appropriations, he added.

Main front of the offensive will be in the field of "epidemiology," Dr. Leiby said, explaining that this involves studying the case histories of syphilitics to trace the chain of infection and locate all "contacts" of the patients. Contacts are individuals who may have contracted the disease from the patient.

Prophylactic Stations

Among the initial group whose "contacts" will be tested, he said, are 800 syphilitics discovered in selective service examinations and 150 individuals whose affliction was discovered when they volunteered as blood donors.

Another control technique will involve setting up prophylactic stations in the District for members of the armed forces. A site on Ninth Street Northwest has already been selected for one such station, he revealed.

Dr. Edward Holmes, director of Virginia's venereal disease control program, attended last night's meeting, which was held at the medical society's headquarters, 1718 M Street Northwest. Dr. Holmes was one of the originators of the plan for a metropolitan campaign, Dr. Leiby said.

17 Traffic Violations Net Driver $17 Fine

Seventeen traffic warrants, an accumulation of a year and a half, were charged against Harold T. Hawthorne, colored, Federal building elevator operator, in Traffic Court yesterday.

The defendant told Judge Hobart Newman that he loaned his car frequently to friends and that they apparently had parked it illegally.

Seven of the charges were dismissed on technicalities and fines totaling $17 were imposed on the other ten counts.

Bandit Fires at Victim In Liquor Store Holdup

One of two colored bandits fired a shot at Julius Weinman, 48, after the pair held up his liquor store shortly before last midnight and took $80.

Weinman, who resides and runs the store at 1201 Fifth Street Northwest, said he thought the shot was fired to frighten him, but police later found a bullet lodged about waist high in a shelf near where the proprietor had been standing.

Held up with Weinman were his son, Benjamin, 23, and a clerk, Julius Taylor, 21, of 1128 Fifth Street Northwest.

Funds Sought For Airport At Beltsville

Completion of an emergency landing field at Beltsville, Md., for primary use of the Army was asked of Congress yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee. The committee urged an appropriation of $968,000 out of $28,500,000 it sought for 250 similar airports throughout the country.

Work on the Beltsville airport already has been started under a $125,000 appropriation made available by Congress this year. The additional funds would be spent during the 1942 fiscal year.

Officials of the Civil Aeronautics Administration which has charge of the Federal Government's program of airport enlargement and improvement pointed out that while the Beltsville field would be chiefly for the use of the Army, it would be available for commercial landings in event weather conditions should bar use of the Gravelly Point Airport.

At the same time, the committee, in approving an appropriation of $290,000 for the first full year's operation at Gravelly Point, described as "extremely small" the landing fees proposed to be charged commercial airlines at the new airport.

"Te whole question of fees to be charged these commercial companies should . . . be reopened with a view to establishing rates somewhat more in keeping with services the Government is rendering," the committee's report declared.

Oil, gasoline, restaurant and other concessions at the airport will provide a gross revenue of approximately $400,000 during the first year of operation, or $100,000 above the appropriation, the committee reported.

Hans Kindler Given Ovation As Symphony Ends 10th Year

Hans Kindler conducts the National Symphony Orchestra in the final concert of the Beethoven-Brahms-Sibelius festival on Wednesday night in Constitution Hall. Soloists: Anya Dorfmann. Assisting musicians: George Washington University Chorus. Program: "Onward, Ye Peoples" (Sibelius), "The Bells of Berghall" (Sibelius), "Finlandia" (Sibelius), Piano Concerto in C major (Beethoven), Symphony in C minor (Brahms).

Terminating the tenth season of the organization which has been his worry and his pride since its foundation, Hans Kindler conducted the National Symphony Orchestra last evening in the last concert of the Beethoven-Brahms-Sibelius festival. During the decade of his directorate, the worry has lessened in direct ratio to increasing pride as the orchestra has grown in artistic stature and organic stability, and it was fitting that the attainment had its celebration with a festive set of programs. The audience arose to the occasion and, apart from other demonstrations of joyous approval, recalled Dr. Kindler five times after the completion of the Brahms symphony.

BROWN

Sibelius was accorded first place in the program with three works in which the George Washington University Chorus of mixed voices ably assisted. Two choral pieces, "Onward, Ye Peoples" and "The Bells of Berghall" were followed by a stirring performance of "Finlandia," with the chorus intoning the lyric section to the "Dear Land of Home" text by Charles F. Manney.

Anya Dorfmann, appearing here for the first time, left an abiding impression of radiant temperament and dexterous keyboard skill as soloist in Beethoven's C major piano concerto. She had both poise and power, both dynamic brilliance and tonal expressiveness, and her reading revealed a sure musical instinct. Her feeling for the Beethoven style was evident in her discerning treatment of the three movements, particularly in the prankish and rollicking rondo.

That the orchestra's farewell for the season was spoken in the moving eloquence of Brahms' C minor symphony is fortunate, for the memory of the admirable performance will remain long as a pleasant retrospect.

McCarran Gets FBI Report on Hankin

A confidential report detailing the career of Gregory Hankin, Federal Power Commission attorney named by President Roosevelt to be a member of the District Public Utilities Commission, was sent to Senator McCarran yesterday from the files of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

McCarran is chairman of a subcommittee investigating the nomination of Kankin, a naturalized Russian.

McCarran declined to disclose the contents of the report until he has had an opportunity to give it careful study. He said he hoped to be able to get together members of his subcommittee Friday for perusal of the report.

Recreation Board Plan Approved

The Board of Education yesterday approved in principle the creation of a board of recreation for the District, at its regular meeting held at the Franklin School.

HOLMES

In taking its action the board joined with the Commissioners, the Park and Planning Commission and the office of National Capital Parks in recommending formation.

A special meeting of the Board of Education will be held Friday at 10 a. m. at the Franklin School to formulate the board's recommendations of personnel

The board yesterday granted leave of absence to Thomas J. Holmes, principal of the Calvin Coolidge High School, who will take up duties as an officer in the Tank Corps at Fort Meade. J. F. Brougher, assistant principal of Central High School, was named acting principal in Holmes' stead while he is on leave of absence.

Mrs. Mary S. Resh was promoted to the principalship of the Dennison Vocational School. Since 1934 Mrs. Resh has been a teacher of commercial subjects at the Abbot Vocational School. She received the degree of bachelor of arts and a teacher's diploma from George Washington University in 1928 and the degree of master of arts in education from the same institution.

MRS. RESH

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, announced that a program is being worked out whereby public school students will visit the National Gallery of Art "systematically and regularly."

In a letter to Dr. Ballou made public to the board yesterday Lieut. Col. Charles D. Carle, acting assistant adjutant general of the Third Corps Area, termed the uniforms and appearance of the Washington High School Cadet Corps as "excellent."

Operator Takes Secret of Fatal Streetcar Crash to Grave

Lloyd Frazier, 32-year-old Capital Transit Co. motorman, apparently carried to the grave the only possible answer as to what caused the midnight street car crash in which he was killed March 25 at Seventh Street and Massachusetts Avenue Northwest.

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of "accidental death" adding the comment: "Facts and conditions existing prior to the collision are unknown to this jury."

According to the testimony of more than a dozen witnesses, Frazier's east-bound car, headed for Benning, ran through a red light and struck a north-bound Alaska-Georgia Avenue car amidships. Frazier was killed outright and 15 passengers were injured.

Investigators for both the Public Utilities Commission and Capital Transit Co. testified that examinations of the wrecked Benning line trolley revealed no defects which would have contributed to the accident.

Deputy Coroner Richard Rosenberg reported that an autopsy on Frazier's body showed him to be physically normal "in every aspect."

Passed Him at "Terrific Speed"

An eyewitness to the crash, Early Giddings, colored, of 734 Girard Street Northwest, who was standing on a loading platform waiting to board the Benning car, said it passed him at a "terrific speed."

"The motorman," said Giddings, "was obviously trying to stop the car, but apparently the brakes would not hold. He was ringing the bell as though he knew the brakes had gone bad."

But John Cone, a transit company trainman, who was riding on a front seat of the car just behind Frazier, said he saw no attempt by the motorman to apply the brakes.

"When we passed up the loaded platform and headed into the intersection," said Cone, "I knew something was wrong and jumped forward and reached over Frazier's left shoulder and tried to work the brake lever. It had not been applied and I think I succeeded in turning it halfway before the crash."

Operator "Slumped Down"

Cone said Frazier appeared to be "slumped down" and was standing about 1 foot back from the controls —not in a "normal position."

"He looked to me like he was frozen," Cone added.

Ardis McDougall, superintendent of automotive maintenance for the transit company, told the jury that he had received one report on March 14 that the brakes on No. 808 (Frazier's car) were "slack and not working properly."

"The car had been inspected on March 10," McDougall said, "and adjustments on the brakes were made immediately following the report four days later.

"In fact," he added, "every street car on the streets is inspected every 2,000 miles and checks are made each night after a day's running. This particular car was overhauled completely in August, 1940, and no major repairs had been necessary since."

Stopped Within 8 Feet

He estimated the car had traveled 22,000 miles since the overhauling, but all motormen to whom it was assigned reported it in perfect mechanical condition.

He said a brake test was made the day following the accident and at 20-miles-an-hour the car stopped within 8 feet.

"This is excellent," he said, "and I am unable to account for the crash."

A. Blane Miles, chief inspector for the P. U. C., said his examination showed the car to be in "fine shape mechanically." When he first looked at the trolley, Blane testified, the power controller was off and the brake lever had not been moved to "stop" position.

This exploded an earlier theory that Frazier had applied the brakes, but neglected to turn off the power.

Unaware of Danger

Curtis L. Van Dornes, motorman of the Alaska-Georgia Avenue car, exonerated of blame by the jury's verdict, said he was proceeding on a green light, looked both ways and saw "no moving traffic." He was unaware of any danger until he felt the impact and was hurled through a front door of his car, Van Dornes said.

Harry C. Walters, conductor on Frazier's car, said he "thought" he heard a hissing sound like air brakes just before the crash, but "the noise might have been a passing automobile."

It was explained by experts at the inquest that brake "hissings" are heard only when they are released and not when applied.

Dies Owing to Own Negligence

In a second inquest, the jury returned an "accidental" verdict in the case of Benjamin Redd, colored, 52, of no fixed address, who was killed March 22 when struck by a streetcar in the 1700 block of Seventh Street Northwest. The verdict exonerated Frank A. Tibbets, 49, of 55 Twenty-seventh Street Northeast, motorman of the car.

It was testified that Redd was crossing in the middle of the block and walked into the path of the oncoming streetcar. He died, said the jury, as a result of "his own negligence." He was the city's nineteenth traffic victim of the year.

A PROUD PAPA is Clifford Kirby, of 1011 Seventeenth Place Northeast, who poses with his 15-month-old twin sons, Clifford and John. Tuesday night Mrs. Kirby, 39, presented him with another set of twins—a boy and girl. Mrs. Kirby is shown above with the newcomers in Sibley Hospital

The stork has been doing a bit of double duty lately at the Clifford Kirbys', and Mr. and Mrs. Kirby are the pleased parents of two sets of twins.

In December, 1939, Mrs. Kirby gave birth to a pair of husky boys, Clifford, jr., and John. Tuesday night they wheeled Mrs. Kirby out of the delivery room at Sibley Hospital again.

"Is it a boy?" she asked the nurse.

"No, it's not a boy," was the reply. "It's a boy and a girl."

Yesterday the 39-year-old mother posed proudly with the new twins, William Matthew, 7 pounds, and Hilda Marie, 6 pounds 6¼ ounces.

At their home at 1011 Seventeenth Place Northeast, Mr. Kirby, equally proud, posed with the 15-month-old twins.

He is minding them while their mother is in the hospital. In fact, he timed his vacation from the Potomac Electric Power Co., where he is a cableman, especially for that purpose.

Laboratory Overrated, Says Dr. Briggs

Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, director of the National Bureau of Standards, not only believes that the District would have a hard time saving money on materials now tested for it by the bureau, but doubts the city's much-advertised testing laboratory is worth $100,000.

The views of Dr. Briggs on the District's cement-testing problem were made public yesterday with release of his testimony before a House Appropriations Subcommittee during consideration of the Commerce Department appropriation last February.

Representative Karl Stefan (Republican', of Nebraska, observed at the hearing that the District laboratory, at 203 Bryant Street Northwest, fully equipped with machinery for testing cement and other building materials, has remained closed since 1933.

Congress declined to appropriate funds for its operation, Stefan pointed out, though District officials repeatedly cited the city's $100,000 estimated investment in the plant.

Dr. Briggs testified that from 1935 to 1940 the District paid the bureau for testing cement amounts ranging from $14,500 to $46,300.

Dr. Briggs pointed out that the bureau tests cement at the plant in large quantities and at cost. He contended that if the District were to make its own tests, the cement would have to be tested as it arrived in railroad cars, and that the process would take a week.

"There has been much newspaper publicity about a $100,000 laboratory," Dr. Briggs declared. "The laboratory was constructed as a part of the District Garage Building. It is well equipped for its purpose. I am advised that the total cost of the equipment was between $55,000 and $60,000.

"The funds which the District transfers to us are used for the payment of the salaries of the men who are engaged in this work," he added. "The District would certainly have to pay the salaries of an additional number of men to do this testing. We probably pay somewhat higher salaries."

Negro Congress Unit Urges Solidarity in Ford Strike

Negro automobile workers in the Ford plant at River Rouge were called on by the Washington Council of the National Negro Congress, in session at Mount Carmel Baptist Church last night, to cease strike-breaking activities and stand with the labor union. The mass meeting also addressed a letter to President Roosevelt concerning discriminations in industry under defense contracts.

Dr. Max Yergan, president of the National Negro Congress, made the principal address at the session, calling attention to the alarming proportions reached by job insecurity among colored populations. He demanded that the Federal Government act to compel airplane companies to employ colored men and women in skilled and white collar occupations.

A demand for 7,000 jobs for colored workers at the Glenn-Martin plant at Middle River, Maryland, was the basis of the letter to the President. The demand will be followed by 7,000 applications from colored men and women to be filed with the company immediately.

Attention of the President was called to the $722,000,000 worth of contracts let to the company by the Government, beside funds being granted by the Government for doubling the size of the plant. While 18,000 persons are now employed there, 20,000 more are soon to be added. The demand for 7,000 jobs for colored workers was based on their proportion of population in the area.

The Federal Government, in another paragraph, was described to the President as the worst offender in discriminatory practices of racial character, and an alleged statement of Chairman Mitchell, of the Civil Service Commission was quoted: "That Negro workers for the Government should be employed on a segregated basis and in segregated units."

The President was asked to issue an order putting an end "to this national disgrace." John P. Davis, secretary of the National Negro Congress, issued the call for the 7,000 applicants, for positions at the Glenn-Martin plant, as well as for administrative workers in the drive which will get under way at a mass meeting in Baltimore, April 27, at Monumental Lodge of colored Elks.

J. Finley Wilson, grand exalted ruler of colored Elks, pledged his support to the movement, as well as that of the Civil Liberties Department of his fraternal organization. Other speakers were the Rev. Arthur Gray, Sterling A. Brown and the Rev. F. A. Hallstorks.

Group Urges Resident Of D. C. for Bench

The Women's Barristers Association last night recommended that a resident of the District be named to fill the vacancy on the District Court bench at its regular meeting held last night at the home of its resident, Miss Etta Taggart, at the Highlands Apartments.

Miss Marie McCatheran was elected secretary to fill the uncompleted term of Miss Nettie Jones. Miss Taggart presided.

Rebuild 'Shattered Faith,' Lenten Service Speaker Urges

The Rev. Edward O. Clark declared yesterday that it is never too late to begin rebuilding one's "shattered house of faith."

"Our pagan world may shatter the ideals of youth," he said at a Washington Federation of Churches' Lenten service at Epiphany Church, but he held that the time would come for a reconsecration to those ideals.

Pastor of Chevy Chase Baptist Church, the speaker was presented by the Rev. Richard Mussen, of Sherwood Presbyterian Church, who presided. Next Wednesday's preacher will be Dr. William R. Barnhart, new executive secretary of the federation. He and Dr. William R. Darby, his predecessor, were in the congregation yesterday.

From the same pulpit earlier in the day, Dr. Churchill J. Gibson stressed the need of obedience to a Divine will. Another large crowd of downtown business, professional and governmental folk attended the service, sponsored by Epiphany Church.

"The Christian creed is a true statement of orthodox Christian belief," he said, "but much more than that—it is a pledge of allegiance to God our Father, to Christ our Saviour, and the Holy Spirit our strengthener."

"For the church is not a society of people who think alike but a family that is held together by personal loyalties and affections."

Pastor of St. James' Episcopal Church, Richmond, Va., Dr. Gibson preaches again today and tomorrow at noon.

Services in Penn Theater

The Rev. Armand T. Eyler, new rector of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, spoke at Southeast churches' Lenten rites at the Penn Theater. Today's preacher will be Dr. Bernard Braskamp, pastor of Gunton-Temple Memorial Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Gordon Palmer, president of the Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Philadelphia, will address Chevy Chase Protestant congregation's weekly Lenten service tonight at 8 at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Connecticut Avenue and Everett Street Northwest.

The Lenten Institute of Brookland Methodist Church will close with a fellowship supper tonight at 6 when Mrs. C. C. Hung, will review Mme. Chiang Kai-shek's book, "This Is Our China." Mrs. Hung is the wife of the pastor of the Chinese Community Church. Dr. Lloyd M. Bertholf, of Western Maryland College, will speak on "Christian Education."

Wilmer, Bishop Head Chest Unit

Richard H. Wilmer has been named chairman of the advance gifts unit of the Community Chest while Randolph G. Bishop has accepted the vice chairmanship.

J. Clifford Folger, general chairman of the 1941-42 campaign, made the announcement yesterday declaring: "This year as never before Chest key positions need the kind of experience and sustained interest in local affairs which Mr. Wilmer and Mr. Bishop bring to the task."

Well known in charity circles, Wilmer was general vice chairman of the 1940-41 campaign and a trustee for five years. Bishop also has been active in the Chest for two years.

6 Replacements Named for Draft

Washington Selective Service headquarters announced yesterday the names of six replacements for registrants in the March call who failed to pass Army induction examinations. They are to be sworn in today.

Their names are Henry C. Collins, from Board No. 1; Daniel Milwit, Board No. 4; and the following colored trainees: El'Ray Johnson, Clarence A. Jackson, and Paul A. Wilson, Board No. 10; and Glover Rice, Board No. 21.

A New Threat Looms—the Browns

Orlando, Fla., April 2.—Travelers from Texas are touting a new American League threat—the St. Louis Browns. They envision the Browns as a first division club for the first time in a dozen years. Back in 1929 the team finished fourth. They've been second division perennials ever since.

POVICH

But this is the Browns' year, it is being bruited about. All of a sudden they have gotten tough, to hear their friends tell it. That is not exactly news to several teams in the league, however. The Browns were no pushovers last season, despite their sixth-place finish. It was their double-header victory over the Yankees in the last week of the season that knocked New York out of the pennant race.

"They can be an amazing sort of ball club this season," a touring correspondent was telling this department today. "Every man on that St. Louis club except the pitcher and catcher can hit home runs. You won't find that situation on any other club in the league. Those Browns are a power club, and they'll show it before the season is many weeks old."

The Browns' power is, indeed, worth looking into. The club was sixth in team batting last year, but it was fourth in total bases. The entire infield is, in fact, a dynamite crew—not in point of batting averages, but in the distance of its wallops. First Baseman George McQuinn, even in a batting slump last season, hit 16 home runs, and he was only fourth among the Browns' power hitters.

Johnny 'Switches' the Power On

The man who may increase the Browns' power this season is not yet 21 years old. He is Johnny Lucadello, a second baseman up from Toledo where he slugged away at a .341 rate. He'll take over Don Heffner's job and the indications are that he won't hurt the club in the batting order. The Browns gave Lucadello a brief trial in 17 games last fall. He batted .317, 8 of his 20 hits were for extra bases, and in one game he did this: He hit a home run in the first inning batting right handed, and two innings later he hit a home run batting left handed. He seems to be a potent kind of switch hitter.

At shortstop, young Johnny Berardino last year blossomed as a home run hitter with 16 circuit wallops to his credit, and at third base Harland Clift has long been acknowledged as one of the prize home run men of the league. Despite his size, Clift in one season belted 34 homers and last year he found time to slug out 20.

Moving to the outfield, the Browns have a distinct home run and otherwise extra-base hitting threat in Walter Judnich. The wiry southpaw hitter the Yanks couldn't use, cracked out 24 homers in his freshman year in the league last season, plus a generous sprinkling of triples and doubles. Judnich gave definite signs of being one of the finer young ball players to break into the majors in a dozen seasons.

Flanking Judnich in the Browns' outfield are Rip Radcliff and Chet Laabs, who can powder the ball. Radcliff is not the distance hitter that is Laabs, but he was threatening to win the league batting title most of last season; and thus represents power at the plate. If, perchance, Bobby Estalella beats out Laabs for the rightfield job, the power department of the Browns won't suffer. Estalella is up from Minneapolis, where he led the American Association in the homer-hitting race.

Pitchers They're Plentiful

More or less steadily the Browns have been acquiring a respectable pitching staff. Elden Auker, whom the Red Sox strangely decided they could not use after 1939, came up with 18 wins for the sixth-place Browns. Aside from Auker, the Browns' pitchers are not the sparkling sort, but they are something better than mediocre, and they are in quantity. In Vernon Kennedy, Manager Fred Haney has a big right-hander who is never called a bad pitcher, and in Johnny Niggeling he owns a man who owns a knuckle ball that is second in effectiveness only to Dutch Leonard's.

Over the winter the Browns acquired Freddy Ostermueller and Dennis Galehouse from the Red Sox. On occasion they have pitched brilliant ball, and the fact that the Red Sox released them is hardly significant. The Boston club has a long record for letting loose of pitchers who have done well in other communities, and pitchers have thrived under the handling of Joe Cronin, who rushes them in and out of there with great haste. Haney will never have to overwork his staff. He has also Bob Harris, Jack Kramer and Roxie Lawson, who would be snapped up quickly if their names appeared on the waiver lists.

The disturbing factor in any appraisement of the Browns is their catching staff. They own only two catchers, Joe Grace and young Bob Swift, neither of whom is proficient at the plate or behind it. The Browns' ultimate position in the American League race will probably be determined on the degree in which their catchers fail them.

Blame Nova's Antics on Yoga

CONSIDINE

The intelligent young heavyweight does not let a day go by without "eating" great gobs of air, standing for long periods on his head, contracting his stomach muscles and composing his mind into a serene contemplation of the mysteries and magic of this ancient Hindu and Tibetian philosophy.

His beliefs are sincere. This is not a pose adopted for the sake of publicity. Yet, perversely enough, Nova became a Yogi as the result of a publicity stunt. The Nyack, N. Y., estate of Dr. Pierre Bernard, who calls himself Oom the Omnipotent, was chosen as the site of Nova's training camp for the first fight against Baer in the summer of 1939. Ray Carlin, Lou's manager, selected the place because he knew that with Baer around, popping off, not much attention would be paid to the mannerly, self-effacing California collegian, Nova. The exotic background of a Yogi's estate, with its aura of mystic practices behind closed doors, looked like a great bet for ballyhoo.

Nova dutifully went to camp, and he was given more than the usual amount of publicity. But on the night of the fight Carlin came into his dressing room and found Lou standing on his head in the corner of the place, apparently in an acrobatic swoon. Horrified, the manager went over and shook him. And learned then and there that Nova had become attached to the ancient physio-philosophy.

The Mystic God Protected Nova

Nova stopped Baer that night in the eleventh round, after deliberately sticking out his jaw earlier in the fight and letting Baer hit him with everything Max had. Nothing seemed able to hurt Nova that night, and a possible reason for that might be in the Encyclopedia Brittanica's description of Yoga, ". . . a diversion of the sense from the external world, and concentration of thought within."

Lou has none of the commonly accepted appearances of a mystic. He is a rugged, good-looking, tweedy, cheerful married man with a pretty wife (a professor's daughter) and a fine young baby. He prefers to be around the fight mob for it talks his language, but he has no shyness or apologies for his unusual practices. "Yoga did a lot to bring me back to the fight game," he told us today. "I developed a strep infection after Galento beat me and got so bad I didn't recognize myself in a mirror. Fell off from 215 to 170. But when I was able to get up, through the regimentation of my mind, I'd go out into those California hills and walk ten miles every day, eating air.

"Maybe 'eating' air sounds strange to you," he chuckled, while his tiny daughter yanked on his tie at his Broadway hotel suite. "But we believe that air is food, and it's known of course that it develops red corpuscles. You yourself breath air, so that it goes only into your lungs. We eat air, so that it goes through your entire system.

Maybe Mr. Nova Has Something Here

"There a good, sound reason for every Yoga exercise," Lou continued, "even though Yoga had its beginnings before our civilization. For instance, it's sound to stand on your head a while every day. It puts blood back in the brain and it tends

Omission Captures Rowe 'Cap at Bowie

Don Meade Rides $5,000 Purse Victor

Son of Jock Pays $13.50; Second Goes To Clyde Tolson; Catapult Is Third

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Writer

Bowie, Md., April 2.—Almost running out from under Jockey Don Meade, Victor Emanuel's Omission charged through the Bowie stretch this afternoon to add his name to the list of horses who have won a $5,000 Rowe Memorial Handicap. The son of Jock and Neglect upset the horse players' rule of not playing 3-year-olds against older horses in the spring by finishing in easy fashion and three lengths in advance of E. K. Bryson's Clyde Tolson. Two and a half lengths farther back came Mrs. Anthony Pelleteri's Catapult to be third in the 6-furlong sprint which drew eight starters.

Despite Omission's light weight of 106 pounds against 122 for Clyde Tolson, the crowd of 8,000 was only lukewarm toward the colt, and he paid $13.50 mutuel. Omission was clocked in 1:14 over a heavy track. While the racing surface was holding, conditions otherwise couldn't have been better if the stockholders had written the order.

Omission was making his first start since last November and proved a credit to the training ability of J. P. (Sammy) Smith. He was as fit as hands make horses and boosted his stock as a Kentucky Derby candidate. Omission was racing over the same track where he won the Bowie Kindergarten last year and then went on to win 7 of 19 races for 1940. Today's victory was worth $4,225 and brought his earnings to $23,370.

Joe Ray Scores

Honey Cloud, winner of the Rowe last year failed to show anything that resembled his best form and finished fifth. Alfred Vanderbilt's Good Turn, another Kentucky Derby hope, was squeezed off along the rail.

Meade allowed Omission to pick his own spots when he was in close quarters early. Equistar and Court Dance, stablemates, battled for the early lead and both faded. Omission went to the front with a bold rush approaching the stretch turn and drew out to hold Clyde Tolson safe without effort.

E. K. Bryson cut loose a good looking juvenile in the first race. It was Joe Ray, a son of Infinite, with Jockey Mannie Berg in the saddle. The colt was in the forward contention from the start and developed a stretch drive that carried him to a two and a half length victory over Five-O-Eight, half of the Trainer J. F. Smith entry. The latter nosed Gustave Ring's Smart

Catcher Provides Winning Hit; Hudson Only Allows 1 Blow In Six Innings

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Orlando, Fla., April 2.—Six Washington batters labored at length and pieced together a strange sort of ninth-inning run that lifted the Nats to a 3-2 victory over the Kansas City club this afternoon. The winning run did not cross the plate until the Nats packed three bases on balls and two singles into the inning.

Rick Ferrell produced the climactic blow—a crackling single to center, with the bases full—but up to that point the Nats were having a horrible time of it trying to get the run home.

Al Gearhouser, a rookie Kansas City southpaw, was giving the Nats plenty of encouragement in that ninth inning with his wildness, but he was threatening to pull out undamaged. He walked Bill Mallory to open the inning, and then he picked Mallory off first base. Then he walked Buddy Lewis, and after Cecil Travis flied out harmlessly, he walked Jimmy Bloodworth. Mickey Vernon got a hit, but it was a cheap infield single that merely filled the bases. Finally, along came Ferrell to break up the ball game.

Hudson in Good Form

But before this it should have been mentioned, perhaps, that Sid Hudson pitched one-hit ball in his six-inning turn, showing no ill effects from his recently bruised right thumb. The tall boy gave up a single in the first inning, and then did a hitless and scoreless job of it through the sixth when he turned the pitching over to Alex Carrasquel.

Hudson and Carrasquel held Kansas City to three hits, but the Nats were no slugging outfit, themselves. They made only five hits against four Kansas City pitchers. Particularly were they baffled by a young right-hander named Milo Candini, who pitched hitless ball for four innings and then left the game at the end of the fifth, charged with only one Washington hit.

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., April 2.—The Naval Academy baseball team came from behind today to defeat Harvard, 7 to 6, in the annual game. Both teams used two pitchers and the Crimson outhit the Tars by a margin of three extra base bingles, but the home batsmen came through in the pinches to win.

Hal Harwood produced the winning hit for Navy when he singled sharply to left field with two out in the eighth. His blow sent Bob Martin and Jack Brennan home, and ruined a pretty good job of relief hurling on the part of Harvard's Lefty Mort Waldstein.

Harvard Takes Lead

Harvard got off to a good start and led the midshipmen, 5 to 3, going into the sixth inning. In that frame Tar bats rang out to drive Burgie Ayres, starting Harvard moundsmen from the hill. Sherwood Werner doubled for Navy in this frame to tally Lou Luberda and Jack Stowe who had advanced on two Crimson miscues.

Bart Harvey put the visitors ahead again in the eighth as he tripled and scored on Bill Tully's grounder to first base. Then came Harwood's bingle.

Luberda, who pitched well for Navy after relieving Capt. Norman Smith, retired the visitors in order in the ninth and the Tars had grabbed their eighth win in the 22-year-old series.

Errors Are Fatal

All four of Harvard's errors came at critical moments while bases on balls also kept the Crimson pitchers in trouble. Despite the wobbly defenses the visitors reeled off two fast double plays to get Ayres out of trouble in the early

Bivins Awarded 10-Round Verdict Over Buddy Knox

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, April 2.—Jimmy Bivins, crack Cleveland light heavyweight, tonight jabbed out a ten-round decision over Buddy Knox, of Dayton, Ohio, in the main event of a boxing card watched by 6,347 fans. The loser weighed 190, giving him an 18-pound advantage.

The verdict was unanimous but was roundly booed by the crowd. The Clevelander posted his twenty-third victory in 24 starts through superiority at long range in the early rounds.

The Associated Press score sheet gave the Dayton battler four rounds —the fourth, eighth, ninth and tenth.

Hogan Hard at Work For Masters' Tourney

All-Star Field of 49 Starts 72-Hole Play Today; Ben Grooming Game for Victory

By the Associated Press

Augusta, Ga., April 2.—The almost grim determination with which Ben Hogan has been hunting down flaws in his game served notice on the 48 other starters in the Augusta Masters Golf Tournament tonight that the poker-faced Texan is going to be a tough man to tangle with the next four days.

Hogan came down here from Asheville, where he won to finish in the money for the forty-fifth straight time, convinced there was something decidely wrong with his game. Off his record this sounds like carrying perfection to extremes, but not if you know Hogan.

Mrs. Hogan, who knows him very well, will explain.

Tunes Up With 69

"It's when Ben starts worrying about his shots that I usually stop worrying," she said today, while her husband was out shooting a 3-under-par 69 in his final practice round over the perfectly-groomed Augusta National course.

"When the winter tour started, he was much too confident to suit me. He was taking things too easily. At Los Angeles, for instance, he told me, 'Honey, I feel as good as if I had a 10-stroke lead,' and that was before he'd even played a shot Then he took a 75.

"But it's been different these last few days. Ben may have won at Asheville and finished well up in the North-South and at Greensboro, but he felt he never had played worse golf through a comparable period. Each day now he's practiced long and hard, and each evening he's practiced putting on the hotel carpet and even brought home

Zivic's Refusal To Fight Furr Draws Rains' Ire

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, April 2.—The suspension of Fritzie Zivic, world's welterweight champion, and his manager, Luke Carney, by the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission was disclosed today.

Chairman Leon Rains of the commission announced the two Pittsburghers had been suspended because they refused to honor a contract for Zivic to fight Phil Eurr, of Washington, at Convention Hall here April 21 in a nontitle bout under the promotion of Phil Glassman.

The Pennsylvania Commission has a working agreement with the New York State Athletic Commission.

Steelers Swap Pro Franchises With Eagles

By International News Service

Chicago, April 2.—A complete swap of the professional football franchises in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh was announced tonight as the owners and coaches of the National Football League got together for their annual meeting.

Bert Bell and Art Rooney, co-owners of the Philadelphia Eagles, disclosed they had traded franchises with Alexis Thompson, owner of the Pittsburgh franchise, in what was described as a precedent-making deal.

This will put Thompson, 26-year-old New York millionaire, into Philadelphia as owner of the Philadelphia club, and Rooney and Bell into Pittsburgh as the owners there. There were no players traded, however, Thompson taking with him his Pittsburgh players and Rooney and Bell taking their men with them to Pittsburgh.

Thompson bought the Pittsburgh club from Rooney last December for a reported $165,000. Rooney then bought a half interest in the Philadelphia club from Bell. It was understood that Thompson, because his home is in New York, thought he could operate to better advantage in the less distant Philadelphia.

The rules committee will meet tomorrow and the meeting will be going full tilt Friday when the formal sessions begin.

Neatest Trick of the Week: Fighters Knock Out Each Other in Kansas City

Momentarily puzzled when the two prone gentlemen knocked each other flat in their fight last night at Kansas City, Referee Harry Corbett (center) rose nobly to the occasion by calling it a double knockout. Four Sports Schedules Announced by American University

Eagles Play 6 Grid Games Next Fall

Open Baseball Season Monday With Del. U. Face 15 Teams; Net, Track Cards Listed

Four sports schedules, including a six-game football card for next season, were announced yesterday by Staff Cassell, athletic director and football, basketbal and baseball coach at American University.

The football schedule will find the Eagles playing four games at home and two away. They played only four games last year, winning one, losing two and tying one.

A 14-game baseball schedule, with one to be added, will find the A. U. nine opening Monday with Delaware here in a Mason-Dixon Conference game. Rudy Zimple will probably start on the mound for the Eagles with all-District courtman Dutch Schulze behind the bat.

16 More on Card

Dr. William B. Holton's tennis team, with two matches already under its belt, will play 16 more, including a week-end trip into Virginia, at Bridgewater tomorrow and V. M. I. Saturday.

The Mason-Dixon Conference meet and Penn Relays will be the featured events on the track card. Dick Gentle, Penn grid captain in 1932 and coach of the Eagle trackmen, reports an improved team over last season.

Newcomers to the Eagle grid card over last year will be Allegheny, to be played for the first time in Meadville, Pa., and Swarthmore.

Close With Juniata

The Eagles will open at home with Coach A. A. Stagg, jr.'s, unbeaten Susquehanna team October 4 and on successive weekends will play Swarthmore and Johns Hopkins, at home.

Cassell's team will go to Allegheny on the 25th and come home to play Randolph-Macon November 1, closing the season with Juniata in Huntington, Pa., November 8.

Due to the comparatively small student body in comparison with the athletic schedules, Cassell will not hold spring football practice, to avoid robbing the baseball, tennis and track teams of needed strength.

George Menke will return as Cassell's grid assistant next year.

TENNIS SCHEDULE

April 4, Bridgewater College, away; 5, Virginia Military Institute, away; 10, Bridgewater College, home; 12, University of Richmond, home; 16, Western State Teachers College, home; 24, Randolph-Macon College, home; 25, Western Maryland College, home; 26, Western Maryland College, away.

May 2, Johns Hopkins University, away; 3, Elon College, home; 7, Colgate University, away; 8, Cornell University, away; 9, Syracuse University, away; 12, Georgetown University, away; 13, Catholic University, home; 14, George Washington University, home.

BASEBALL SCHEDULE

April 7, Delaware University, home; 11, Washington College, away; 12, Johns Hopkins University, away; 19, Randolph-Macon College, away; 24, Juniata College, away; 25, Elizabethtown College, away; 26, Western Maryland College, away; 28, Western Maryland College, home; 29, Randolph-Macon College, home.

May 2, Loyola College, away; 7, George Washington University, home; 9, Loyola College, home; 14, Bridgewater College, home; 21, George Washington University, away.

TRACK SCHEDULE

April 23, Gallaudet and Catholic University at Catholic U.; 26, Pennsylvania Relays at Philadelphia.

May 3, Susquehanna and Juniata at Huntingdon; 7, Randolph-Macon and Catholic University at Catholic U.; 10, Gallaudet College at Gallaudet; 17, Mason-Dixon Conference meet at Baltimore.

Galento on Dry Program Until After Baer Bout

The board of censorship which holds forth at Tony Galento's Orange, N. J., beer tavern let down the bars yesterday long enough to let a bit of leaflet propaganda filter through advising the natives what to do between now and the date Tony fights Buddy Baer here at Uline Arena.

"If you want Tony to beat Buddy Baer, don't invite him to have a drink until after the fight. Thank you."

Just like that—terse, straight to the point and without any waste of words—came the leaflet to this sector.

Sticks to Vitamin B

Advices from the Galento front, where Tony is gazing longingly at the various bottled goods surrounding him, stated that the leaflet measure had to be adopted to keep well-meaning friends from luring the Orange Beer Baron off his diet of Vitamin B, etc.

As soon as you get within a stone's throw of Tony now a stern-looking character walks right up to you and sticks one of the cards in your hands, mumbling a polite "thank you."

Works Like Magic

"It is working like magic," Harry Mendel, Tony's manager, informed by United States courier. "In fact, Tony is so impressed by the cooperation his friends are giving in this matter that he has promised not to take a drink of anything stronger than a Strawberry Royale until after he knocks that Baer kicking down there April 8."

The roly-poly fighter whose proud boast is that he almost knocked out Joe Louis, expects to weigh 236 pounds for the 10-round fight here with Buddy, 2 pounds more than he weighed when he fought Louis, Mendel said adding that 500 followers of Galento are going to come to Washington to see Tony make his bid for a second title fight with Louis.

Greenkeepers to Meet At Gibson Island Monday

The next meeting of the Mid-Atlantic Association of Greenkeepers will be held at the Gibson Island (Md.) Club, next Monday, April 7.

A golf match at 1 p. m. will be followed by a dinner at 6 o'clock and meeting at 7. The topic will be "General Golf Course Discussion."

Terps Routed By Dartmouth Indians, 13-3

Maryland's Old Liners sank to their third straight defeat at College Park yesterday afternoon as the Dartmouth Indians combined 12 hits with 7 Terp errors to swamp the Terrapins 13-3.

Dartmouth broke the ice in the opening inning when Billy Burns, Indian leftfielder, singled over third and two Terps errors by McHale and Whipp, Liner portside infielders, aided Burns in crossing the rubber. In the last of the second frame Maryland tallied the first of its three runs on Merle Duvall's single through the infield and a wild pitch perched the Terp catcher on third. Bill Garrett, Liner leftfielder, was safe on a ground single and Duvall scored.

In the third inning Dartmouth evened the count on a hit by Orr, Dartmouth second baseman, and a single by Jones. In the fourth session the Old Liner infield slumped and Dartmouth tallied five runs on five hits, an infield error and a three-base error by Garrett in leftfield. In the final half of the fourth Maryland added two more scores on a walk, an error and a single by Roscoe Whipp, Terp third sacker.

Dartmouth tallied three more runs in the fifth and seventh innings to hoist the Indian's total to 13. In the fifth, three Maryland errors combined with Lendo's triple with the bases packed was good for three tallies and in the seventh an error, a walk, a hit batsman, and another triple by West was enough for three more runs and to boost the Dartmouth score to 13.

Hogan Invited Here For Benefit Match

Hershey Pro's Presence in British War Relief Event Would Aid Gate

Allan Burton, professional at Army and Navy and a member of the British War Relief Match committee, air-mailed an urgent request to Ben Hogan at Augusta yesterday for his presence here next Thursday, at Chevy Chase.

Hogan, the Masters' cofavorite and the leading money winner of the winter tour, is one of the biggest names in golf today and the committee members feel his presence will make the 18-hole exhibition match.

The fact that many Washington golfers play annually at Hershey, Pa., Hogan's new post, and that it is just three hours by automobile, would make it to his advantage to play here, Brown explained in the letter.

Farrell Not to Play

A letter as also been written to Hogan's manufacturing sponsor, while P. G. A. officials have asked the Hershey professional to make the date if possible.

Johnny Farrell, the former Open champion, wired yesterday that his assistant had been inducted into the Selective Service, and thus he would be unable to make the local charity match as he will leave right from Augusta for his Massachusetts club.

Clayton Heafner's appearance has been verified, and now the match shapes up as three foursomes, including one local quartet. Gene Sarazen, Heafner, Wilford Wehrle, Jimmy Thomson, Jim Ferrier, Horton Smith and George Dawson are all sure starters among the big-name golfers.

Beaver Dam to Make Course Par 72

Beaver Dam members voted to make the course par 72 in changing the play back to starting from old No. 1, in a golf committee meeting last night. The course was altered last year, bringing the hard holes into play at the start of a round and the members voted to change back to the old method this year.

Forrest Thompson, golf committee chairman, announced the appointment of the following committees:

Tournament — J. A. Woodside, chairman, C. B. Hartman and Jerry Burch. Handicap—Charles Frownfelter, chairman; R. K. Thompson, J. Hamilton Vance and Dr. William F. Kerr. Prizes—Ralph A. Byers, chairman, and Jess Baggett. Rules—Joe Balestri, chairman, and C. E. Purdy. Caddy—E. B. Heimer, chairman; Edward H. Bean, and M. S. Shahan.

Pro Al Houghton will hold the first drill for his Maryland University golf squad next week.

Earl McAleer Practices First Time Since Injury

Earl McAleer, one of the District's topnotch golfers who was forced to default in the Congressional Championship semifinals last year with an injured knee and hasn't played since, practiced putting at Manor yesterday.

McAleer, who was bothered during the golf season last year by a torn cartilage in his knee, was operated on recently and expects to be back in a week or two. The joint is not yet strong enough for him to hit a golf shot but he stroked a few putts on the practice green at the Norbeck Club.

McAleer's last round of golf was the first week in September, 1940. The southpaw has joined Manor and now when he gets back on his game Manor will have one of the best golf teams in this section. —M. W. W.

Hoyas to Meet Harvard; Md. Plays Vermont

Georgetown's baseball team will make another attempt to open its season today, playing host to Harvard's touring nine on the medical school diamond at 2:30 p. m.

The Hoyas, with a team figured to be the best in Coach Joe Judge's regime, were rained out Tuesday against Dartmouth. Harvard has beaten Maryland, lost to a good Navy team and was rained out against G. W.

Maryland's nine, which has scored seven runs against 25 for the opposition—Ohio State, Harvard and Dartmouth—in three losing starts, will meet Vermont at College Park at 4 o'clock.

Maryland's lacrosse team will make its second start, entertaining Harvard in Byrd Stadium, also at 4 p. m. The visitors lost to Penn yesterday, 5-2.

G. W. in Doubleheader

George Washington University completed arrangements yesterday for the first college doubleheader here in some time, to be played tomorrow on the Ellipse.

The Colonials will meet Harvard at 12:30 in a game originally scheduled for Tuesday but rained out, and will meet V. M. I. in the second game of the double-header. G. W. lost to Ohio State and Vermont in its first two games.

Virginia Beats Vermont, 5-2; Harman Stars

Charlottesville, Va., April 2.—Virginia defeated Vermont here today, 5-2, but the Green Mountain lads threatened in the final frame, when they filled the bases. John Willey, on the mound for the Cavaliers, was struck on the knee by a batted ball and was forced to retire. Alec Cave, who came to the rescue, fanned Conrad, and forced Carlson to ground out to second.

The Cavaliers collected ten hits off Bob Carlson, Vermont's big right-hander. Bill Harman led the Virginia attack with three hits, including a triple and double. Gillette and Willey also contributed two-baggers.

Vermont was blanked except in the eighth frame, when with Carlson on first, Spasyk drove the ball over the left field fence near the foul line. In an effort to snag the ball, Burnes crashed into the fence and was forced to retire.

The fielding feature was made by Dodson, who raced to right field to pull down Wood's long fly. Wood, at third base, starred for Vermont, accepting nine chances.

Eads Wins On Tower Maid At Tropical

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., April 2.—A Tropical Park crowd of more than 7,000 gave Wendell Eads a big ovation today when the slender Illinois rider booted Tower Maid to victory in the first race, scoring his initial win since he was badly hurt in a spill March 7.

Tower Maid ran the 4 furlongs in :47 4-5 and returned $9.50, $4.60 and $3.80. Penobscot paid $10.60 to place and $6.70 to show and the third horse, River Lass, paid $4.80 to show.

Shaun G. scored a clean-cut victory in the featured $1,200 Dinner Key Purse, running the mile and 70 yards in 1:42 3-5 with D. MacAndrew in the saddle. Shaun G. paid $11.70, $5.90 and $3.60 for $2 across the board, while the place horse, Homeward Bound, paid $4.70 and $3.10. Bell Tower paid $3.80 to show.

K. McCombs and Lloyd Haskell each had a double for the day. McCombs scored with Billy Bee, a $9.80 shot, in the second event, and La Joya, at $10.50 for $2, in the seventh.

Haskell's winning mounts were Sasnak in the third and Blumere in the sixth. Sasnak returned $53, $20.80 and $10.20, while Blumere paid $9.30, $6.70 and $4.60.

Newsom Defeated as Buffalo Wins Over Detroit Tigers, 2-1

Bisons Get Eight Hits Off Big Buck

Indians Win Over Giants, 3-1; Yanks Score Easily; Other Baseball News

By the Associated Press

Lakeland, Fla., April 2.—Louis (Buck) Newsom, one of the American League's top-flight hurlers, was just another moundsman today as the Buffalo Bisons of the International League defeated the Detroit Tigers, 2 to 1, in an exhibition game.

Newsom yielded both runs and all but one of the nine Bison hits in the six innings he toiled. Al Benton finished, allowing one hit.

Mickey Roscoe, of Buffalo, pitched the first five innings, blanking the Tigers with five hits and getting credit for the victory. Jim Trexler, who replaced him, gave up four hits and the lone Detroit run.

Tribe Beats Giants

Selma, Ala., April 2 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians captured their fourth victory in five games with the New York Giants, 3 to 1, today as Al Smith and Ken Jungels collaborated in a hurling duel against Harry Gumbert.

A home run by Gee Walker gave Cleveland its first score in the second and an error by Joe Orengo helped the Tribe tally twice in the third. But after that Gumbert was invulnerable and became the first Giant hurler to go nine innings. He allowed seven hits.

Yanks Rout Okla. City

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 2 (AP).—The New York Yankees overpowered Rogers Hornsby's Oklahoma City Indians today, 10 to 4, with a barrage of five home runs and as many doubles.

Joe DiMaggio hit two of the circuit blows, and Twink Selkirk, Joe Gordon and Tom Henrich each contributed one.

Pirates Beat A's

Hollywood, Calif., April 2 (AP).—Bob Johnson's ninth inning home run with a mate on base saved the Philadelphia Athletics from a shutout today as they bowed to Pittsburgh, 8 to 2.

Prior to the big smash the A's had been held to four singles and had not been able to get a man as far as second base. Rip Sewell hurled six innings for the Pirates and Max Butcher the remainder of the game.

Bosox Blank Reds

Fort Bennings, Ga., April 2 (AP).—Errors nullified the neatest hurling stint of the Cincinnati Reds' training season today and the world champions lost again to Boston's American leaguers, 3 to 0.

With his brother, John, receiving him, Elmer Riddle allowed three safeties in eight innings, longest stretch so far for a Redleg pitcher.

The five-hit pitching of Dominic Ryba and Emerson Dickman held the champions helpless throughout the game.

Dodgers Win Pair

Fort Worth, Tex., April 2 (AP).—Joe Medwick and Curt Davis sparked the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 6-to-4 triumph today over the Fort Worth Cats of the Texas League.

Medwick hit successive home runs over the 20-foot wall in left field, 400 feet from the plate and added a single for good measure. The Cats counted only one run in that interim.

Whitlow Wyatt shut out Valdosta of the Georgia-Florida League 3 to 0 on three hits for the Dodgers' second stringers at Valdosta, Ga.

Massachusetts Fighters Win 3 A.A.U. Titles

By the United Press

Boston, April 2.—A gritty trio of Massachusetts youths tonight demonstrated their fistic superiority by winning titles in the finals of the Thirty-fourth National Amateur Boxing championships before 9,061 fans at Boston Garden.

The three titles gave Massachusetts a wide margin in the battle for crowns with no other State gaining more than one championship. Eight new kings acquired titles, with Illinois, Pennsylvania, Oregon, Ohio and Arkansas the other States to earn honors.

Champions Listed

The conquering Massachusetts battlers were Featherweight Francis Leonard, of Taunton; Welterweight Dave Andrews, of Lowell, and Middleweight James Mulligan, of Lowell.

Other new champions were Heavyweight Ragan Kinney, of Hartman, Ark.; Light-heavyweight Shelton Bell, of Wilbeforce, Ohio; Lightweight Tommy Moyer, of Portland, Oreg.; Bantamweight Raymond Brown, of Chicago, Ill., and Flyweight Lawrence Torpey, of Philadelphia, Pa.

Brown, 17-year-old Desable High School senior, scored the only knockout of the finals.

3 Unpopular Decisions

The Chicagoan was awarded a technical kayo when the referee stopped the bout in the first round of his clash with inexperienced Tony De Gregorio, of Boston, the only Massachusetts youth to lose a final contest. Brown had opened a gash over De Gregorio's right eye.

Three decisions proved unpopular with the crowd and were greeted with sustained jeers and boos. The verdicts involved the triumphs of Mulligan, Torpey and Kinney.

Southpaw Mulligan, 19-year-old Keith Academy student, built a commanding lead in the first two rounds, shaking up Johnny Lawer, of Cleveland, Ohio, with head and body punches. Lawer staged a magnificent rally in the closing session, staggering Mulligan with a terrific series of rights and lefts.

Typists Beat Regal for Title

In a close game that wasn't decided until in the closing seconds, the United Typewriters nosed out Regal Clothiers, 27 to 26, last night at Roosevelt gym and won the championship.

The victory gave the Typists the championship of the McKinley Tech division of the District Recreation Department Basketball League. In a preliminary playoff game, the Mails and Files five defeated Pepco, 26 to 23.

At Tech, Air Duct turned back the Silents, 25 to 21, and Fort Hunt downed Civil Service, 28 to 21.

7 Posts Enter Teams In Legion League

Seven posts have entered the American Legion Junior Baseball League, opening April 20, Jack Mulvey, department athletic chairman, announced yesterday.

Teams which will take part include Cooley-McCullough, Costello, Fort Stevens, Jasper, Police and Fire, Potomac and Roosevelt. The athletic committee will meet April 16, at 8 p. m., in the department headquarters, room 416, Denrike Building, and posts which want to enter teams should contact Mulvey at North 0212.

Allie Ritzenberg To Be Tennis Pro At Woodmont

Allie Ritzenberg, former Maryland University tennis star, will take over the duties of net pro at the Woodmont Country Club around the fifteenth of the month, it was announced last night.

Ritzenberg

Ritzenberg, who holds many titles in local tennis play, expects to interest the younger players of the club in the court game.

While at Maryland, Ritzenberg lost only four matches in four years of tournament competition. In 1939 he went undefeated. He is a former junior champion of the District, public parks titleholder for three years and also held joint crowns in the Midatlantic doubles and Southern Conference Intercollegiate doubles.

The Woodmont Club at present has four courts and may expand in the future if the mounting tennis interest warrants it.

Denver U. Athletic Head Seriously Ill

Denver, April 2 (AP).—Lewis H. Mahoney, director of athletics of Denver University, today was granted a leave of absence because of serious illness.

Football Coach Clyde (CAC) Hubbard will be director during his absence.

Mahony is president of the Rocky Mountain Association of the A. A. U. and was elected a vice president at the A. A. U. convention here in December.

Trout, Bass Bills Passed In Maryland

Special Dispatch to The Post

Frederick, Md., April 2.—Bills changing the opening of the trout and black bass seasons in Maryland passed both branches of the General Assembly and now await Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor's signature to become law, Delegate Jacob R. Hamsburg, Frederick, chairman of the house fish and game committee, stated today. He said the Governor has indicated he will sign the measures, one of which would open the trout season on April 15 instead of April 1, and the other which would inaugurate the fresh-water bass season on June 15 instead of July 1.

Ramsburg said a bill closing the deer season in Frederick County for a period of two years passed the House and the Senate and will be signed by the Governor. A county dog law, which permits anyone to shoot a dog found pursuing game outside a legal season also was adopted.

Search Automobiles

Another bill that had the support of local sportsmen is that which prohibits fishing in any stream in the State in which trout have been stocked at any time other than when the trout season is open.

Under another measure game wardens of Frederick, Washington, Allegany and Garrett Counties are empowered to stop and search automobiles suspected of transporting illegal fish or game. Ramsburg said another bill grants the State Conservation Commission regulatory powers. Heretofore the commission has been restricted in the opening and closing of seasons.

All bills will become effective June 1 upon being signed by the Governor.

Beck, Clark Lead Bowlers At Georgetown

Kenny Beck and George Clark sparked the Georgetown Commercial League at Ed Schlegel's Georgetown drives with the former rolling a 157 single as the latter counted 386 for the set. The Chappell Billiards team took 4 out of 6 from C. B. Long on a rolloff with Jim McIntyre's 380 the main help. Hillows Cafe took the odd game from opponents to maintain a three-game top lead and Thompson Welding also took two from Briggs Clarifier. George Clarke's nice set moved him to second average man.

SOLDIER'S HOME

Bill Law, sr., was top single man in the Soldier's Home meet at Petworth with a 148 count which enabled his Scott quintet to win high team game with 574. Runner, Administration, was best for the set with a 359 total that sparked a three-time win over Grant. The Forwood boys rolled high set of 1,591. La Garde still leads the loop.

TAKOMA

The Takoma Duckpin Association at Hap Newman's Takoma drives was led by J. Wilson, Wonder Wheat, whose 159 high single aided his team in taking top game with a 649 count but they lost the odd game to Takoma Ambulance. M. Deffinbaugh, Park & Manor Pharmacy, had 412 for his big effort of the evening. Dome Oil won high team set with a 1,795 total. Youngblood Hardware won all three from Takoma Motor to go into a tie with Takoma Ambulance for league leadership.

ICE PALACE

Hyland's top counts of 144-395 for the Sigma Lambda Kappa boys of the Ice Palace Industrial loop led for the night with Bernard, Table Tennis, sharing in the high game total with his own 144. The Locksmiths had 576 for top single while Better Tires scattered the pins for a 1,643 high.

PREMIER CAB

Waldorf Reed, Rock Creek Church Road team of the Premier Cab League at Penn Recreation, was up to his old form again last night and sparked the league with highs of 144 and 383. The Eighth & East Capitol team took high game with 577 while 1,668 pins earned the big set for Burlington. Nick Kereluk's 141-381 enabled his Du pont boys to win over the Cavaliers 2-1.

WEST. ELECTRIC

The Western Electric boys at Brookland Recreation were congratulating Ned Taggart, their big boss, last night after he set a new high for flat game, a record 96. Eldridge Smith, Warehouse, and Cy Hogarth, Coin Collectors, divided individual highs with 147 and 391, respectively, with Telephone sets taking high game with 562 as 1,577 won the set for Stock Maintenance which also helped them score a sweep over Handsets.

SOUTHEAST

Art Nelson, Shaffer Flower Shops, was the big leader in the Southeast League at Red Megaw's Queen Pin, rolling high single of 147 and set of 384 to lead his team to high totals of 618 and 1,782 although they had to divide the game honors with Chat's Liquors.

INTERIOR

Al Mercer, Wild Life Service, sparked the Interior meet at Penn with his 148 top single, while Frank Updike's 404 led his Grazing-Secretary quintet to team honors with 624 and 1,729. Frank Gartside's near high set of 392 enabled his National Capital Parks team, still on top in the league, to take three from Construction.

COMMERCE

The United States Chamber of Commerce rollers at the Ice Palace found Chester Lord's 152 high game and Lan Leonard's 151 just what the Wildcats needed to post all alltime league record for game with 598. "Curly" Thomas had a 132 single and top set for the night of 354 to enable his Tommyhawks to take the odd tilt from the Wildcats.

Hundley Bows To Howard At Banneker

James Hundley, who upset the favorite the night before, bowed out of the Interdepartmental Recreation Council table tennis tournament for colored Government employes last night at Banneker gymnasium.

Hundley, who defeated Phil Masefield to gain the quarter-finals, was ousted by a smooth-stroking Chink Howard. Howard went on to defeat J. B. Duncan in the semifinals, 21—12, 21—8, to gain the finals. The final round will begin tonight at 8 o'clock at Banneker. Trophies are being presented by The Washington Post.

Howard was the star of the night, teaming with Hayes in the men's doubles to defeat Huggs and Thomas, 21—7, 21—5, and teaming with Mary Gant in the mixed doubles to defeat Mr. and Mrs. F. Barnes, 24—22, 21—13.

1,542 Horses, Record Total, Entered in Saratoga's Stakes

Challedon, Mioland Vie In Feature

Saratoga Season July 28-August 30; Nominees Represent 125 Major Stables

By the Associated Press

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., April 2.—Headed by all of the Nation's turf stars, Saratoga's 17 stakes for flat racers this year have drawn the largest number of entries in history—1,542.

Despite a cut in the number of stakes scheduled for its annual summer meeting, July 28 to August 30, the Saratoga Racing Association announced tonight an increase of 122 entries over 1940, previous all-time high. The horses are from the stables of 125 nominators.

Challedon Entered

One of the outstanding fields of the meeting is in the mile and three quarters Saratoga Cup, one of New York's two weight-for-age distance races. Topping the 55 nominees for the sixty-first renewal of this classic are W. L. Brann's Challedon, Warren Wright's Whirlaway and Charles S. Howard's Mioland.

Other highly regarded turf stars which may start in the cup, an annual getaway day co-feature with the $40,000 hopeful for two-year-olds, are Fenelon, New World, Andy K and Bashful Duck.

Entries Increase

Two other famed Saratoga sakes, the Whitney and the Wilson, have shown a marked increase in the number of nominations. The conditions for both events have been changed from weight-for-age to moderate penalty and allowances. The Wilson drew 73 entries this year, as compared to 50 in 1940, and the Whitney 54 as against 32.

Owners of two-year-olds have taken to the winner-take-all Saratoga Special this year in greater numbers than for the past several seasons. Sven more horses have been named than the 33 originally entered last summer. Entries for the track's 10 steeple chase stakes close in mid-June.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JOE RAY, $13.90, $6.10, $4.40; FIVE O'EIGHT (entry), $4.00, $2.90; SMART, $5.20.

JOE RAY, in the thick of contention from the start, responded gamely when put to pressure in the early stretch and was kept to a drive to the end while drawing out. FIVE O'EIGHT, off in close quarters, came with a bold rush in the closing test. SMART had keen early speed while saving ground and setting the pace, but weakened right at the close. LONG VOYAGE was off alertly, forced the early pace, but ducked in at the eighth pole while racing greenly and was taken up sharply.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:37. Off at 2:37⅕. Winner, D. A. Woods' b. or br. g. (8), by Haste—Change. Trained by L. E. Ogle. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:15⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ADOLF, $4.50, $3.20, $2.80; MAJOR B., $7.30, $6.30; MISS MAKER, $6.60.

ADOLF, slow to begin, gained gradually after leaving the backstretch, responded when shaken up and won going away. MAJOR B., off in the first flight, was closest to the pace of HIBLAZE, took command in midstretch, but could not resist the winner. MISS MAKER moved up gamely in the early stretch, but weakened at the close. BURNER was within striking distance from the start and showed an excellent effort. HAPPY HOSTESS set a good early pace and tired badly.

Daily Double, JOE RAY and ADOLF, Paid $30.70

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,200. For maiden fillies and mares, 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:06. Off at 3:06½. Winner, I. Bieber's b. f. (4), by Peace Chance—Purr. Trained by H. Jacobs. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 1:09.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ETHEL BLUME, $14.40, $5.30, $3.50; HAPPY HOME, $3.30, $2.50; LANTE, $2.90.

ETHEL BLUME, rushed to take command, swung out entering the stretch and came gamely under a strong ride to draw clear in the final stages. HAPPY HOME had good speed, moved up menacingly approaching the stretch, was carried wide by the winner and weakened in the closing eighth. LANTE saved ground while in the first flight and was a tiring third. BUKHARA II closed full of run from a sluggish beginning and appears ready.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:33. Off at 3:34⅕. Winner, W. A. Coleman's ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—JELWELL, $7.30, $4.10, $2.80; GREENY, $5.50, $3.20; MORSTEP, $3.20.

JELWELL, off alertly and taken under steadying restraint while closest to BERWYN'S pace, rallied when placed to pressure to take command and was kept to a drive to the end. GREENY could not keep up early, responded when shaken up and closed full of run. MORSTEP came with good energy in the closing stages. BERWYN set the pace under hustling tactics and weakened.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:05½. Off at 4:06. Winner, G. Feikner's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RELIOUS, $35.00, $15.60, $8.60; OUR FLORENCE, $4.80, $3.40; ALCINOUS, $4.00.

RELIOUS, off sluggishly and allowed to race on his own courage early, rallied when shaken up, came with good energy and was opening a gap at the close. OUR FLORENCE was within striking distance from the start, responded to pressure in the stretch drive, but could not menace the winner. ALCINOUS had speed in spots while racing forwardly and was weakening at the end. PRIORITY was shuffled back on the backstretch and hung after moving up menacingly.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $5,000 added. The Rowe Memorial Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 4:33½. Off at 4:34½. Winner, V. Emanuel's br. or blk. c. (3), by Jock—Neglect. Trained by J. P. Smith. Net value to winner, $4,225; second, $1,000; third, $500; fourth, $25. Time, 1:14.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OMISSION, $13.50, $6.40, $4.50; CLYDE TOLSON, $4.40, $3.70; CATAPULT, $4.90.

OMISSION, steadied when in close quarters early, moved to the top boldly accompanied by CATAPULT approaching the stretch and drew out nicely to win easily. CLYDE TOLSON broke alertly, was shuffled back to last and rallied gamely to close willingly. CATAPULT came around horses to improve his position with a rush and weakened badly in the stretch run. GOOD TURN, off slowly while on the inside in the deepest going, moved to the leaders with a rush approaching the far turn, was pinched off and closed gamely.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:01. Off at 5:01½. Winner, A. H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CANDLE ENDS, $15.50, $7.00, $5.60; IDA ROGERS, $4.90, $3.90; INDOMITABLE, $7.90.

CANDLE ENDS forced to the front in the opening quarter, drew clear and was kept to a strong ride to the finish. IDA ROGERS, sluggish early, improved her position on the inside to reach contention and hung in the final drive. INDOMITABLE was well placed to the stretch and tired. SHORT DISTANCE could not keep up after the early stages.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:27. Off at 5:27. Winner, G. C. Brenton's br. f. (4), by Masked Marvel II—Casino. Trained by G. C. Brenton.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ONISAC, $78.50, $25.70, $17.20; CUCKOO, $5.30, $4.30; SHANSI, $4.40.

ONISAC, allowed to settle into her best stride, improved her position steadily after a half, responded when shaken up and was drawing out at the end. CUCKOO was steadied within striking distance, took command when put to a drive and hung in the final drive. SHANSI was in the thick of forward contention from the start, got to the front and weakened in the closing test. HARRY'S DREAM had good speed and faltered.

Dear Al:

The prospects for a big season in Maryland racing are bright. On last Tuesday's opening program, the crowd of 8,000 wagered a total of $372,738 as compared to $305,349 on seven races last year, when 10,000 customers showed up. This year's opening was staged in the rain while last year the weather was clear. Provided Saturday is a good day, I look for all attendance records for this track to go by the wayside. Henry Erickson, former jockey and now track superintendent at Charles Town, is here with the horses owned by Mrs. Helene W. Boyle, wife of the President of the West Virginia track. Mrs. Boyle's horses were shipped from Oaklawn, where her Harebell was a winner. Apprentice Jockey R. Poteete, who rode Maupeace to victory opening day, is 19 and from Bowling Green, Ky. He rode his first winner last June 20 at Charles Town. Jockey R. Bernhardt is working for the MacThorn Stable. Jockey R. Cardoza got in from Cuba. Jockey Nick Wall, among the first ten riders in the country arrived from a Florida vacation and swung right into action. He won the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap with Bay View. Who ever sent out the publicity on Havre de Grace having minimum purses of $1,200 seems to be all wet. The Graw condition books are out and the $1 000 races are on every program. Bowie is setting the pace with its $1,200 low. William Gillespie, secretary of the Jockey's Guild, left for New York after conferring with Alfred Vanderbilt, of Pimlico, and Maj. Goss L. Stryker, of Laurel. Both men said they would follow Bowie in insurance for jockeys and exercise boys. David (Whitey) Wilson, Baltimore boy who covers racing for the Boston American, received word that his wife has presented him with a son—their fourth child. Alfred Vanderbilt welcomed the newspapermen to Maryland with a dinner at the Belvedere Hotel in Baltimore. Tuesday's rain was needed by Track Superintendent Dick Pending to pack the track and the oval should be at tops for today's program. Jockey Don Meade went back to Florida last night where he has stake engagements. Frank Christmas is going to ship 15 horses to New York after the meeting closes here. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—PONY BALLET has worked well and could be the right one in this field of maiden juveniles. Comes from a good barn and should take care of the opposition. AIRSPRING is from the Pelleteri barn and is by Ariel. Should be right at home if the track is off. GLYNLAND will be saddled by Trainer Guy Bedwell and is highly regarded.

Second race—ISKIE had speed in spots and probably needed that race here on opening day. Promises to improve and I see no reason for mistakes. TENACIOUS has plenty of speed and fits nicely in this company. KING COTTON has shown foot in trials and is dangerous.

Third race—LEONARDTOWN is the best of this gang. Gets only a steadying impost and should get home in this field of maiden Maryland foals. MISS CHEERS is a fair sort and belongs in the money circle. GOLDEN MOWLEE for the show end.

Fourth race—PUNCHDRUNK has been conditioned by Trainer Bonsal and has just about the cheapest opposition that could be gathered hereabouts. Needs only a ride. TRUE WARRIOR and ROUGH EGG probably will fill out the cash bracket.

Fifth race—IRISH MOON should have won by a city block in that last. Needs only to get off the reserve list so he can tie this gang in knots. KAPTIME should go well. ROUGH BRIGADE will be hard to force out of the pay circle in a field of this kind.

Sixth race—INTERLACE ran in spots while in Florida and likes this track. Gets in with a feather assignment and I'm going to string along. TRANSMITTER was bought in by Bedwell for $2,200 at the recent sale and must be considered. CHARLOTTE GIRL for the show end.

Seventh race—GRAND DUKE has worked well since coming North. Likes this route and will be in there knocking. Worth following. DON PECOS probably needed that last and is a threat. MEMORY BOOK has sore pins, but retains some of that old time class.

Eighth race—JACK STING looks like the right one in the day's finale. The distaance and the company seem to be right up his alley. CHIEF CHEROKEE has patched up legs, but will like the track and may surprise. ANTI AIR was long shot second opening day.

Best bet—Irish Moon.

tion in the seventh inning, when they swung for distance against Randy Gumpert, southpaw, Chapman greeted the fellow with a long three-bagger into the left center hedges, and scored on Travis' long fly. A bit later in the inning, Bloodworth improved on Chapman's clout. He hit a home run over the centerfielder's head to put the Nats in a 2-0 lead.

Kearse Hits Homer

Carrasquel, who took up the pitching in the seventh, gave up a run in the eighth that cut the Nats' lead to 2-1. To be exact, it was a home run that he gave up. Ed Kearse slugged one of his pitches into the deep center bushes.

Harry Bassin, former Georgetown University football and baseball star, tied up the game for Kansas City in the ninth after Carrasquel developed a wild spell. With one out, the Venezuelan walked two batters, and then Bassin lashed a single into center field to score the tying run. Carrasquel escaped further damage in the inning.

Hudson was showing a clever fast ball during his six-inning turn. He struck out five and walked only one. He escaped trouble of his own making in the fifth inning when the Blues filled the bases with one out, but were unable to score.

In that inning, Hudson gave up his only walk, and then dismally misplayed two bunts that left the bases filled. He got out of the inning, however, by grabbing a drive off Kearse's bat, and throwing to the plate to start a double play.

several irons to work on his swing in front of a mirror.

Hogan's was only one of several subpar scores as the boys finished warming up for tomorrow's first 18-hole round. United States Open Champ Lawson Little and Jimmy Demaret, the winner here last year, had 68s, Demaret's round bringing his odds down from 10-1 to 9-1.

Horton Smith, only two-time masters winner, got his putter blazing for a 69, as did Amateur Champion Dick Chapman. And Dick Metz, who was playing his first round, Craig Wood, runner-up twice, had a 70 and a 71, the latter score being matched by Jug McSpaden.

P. G. A. Champion Byron Nelson, who won in 1937, had another par 72. That also was the best individual score returned in the four-ball match in which Tommy Armour and Bobby Jones finished all-square with Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen. The gallery which turned out for this replay of last month's Red Cross benefit match saw Armour get the 72, Jones and Hagen 73's, and Sarazen 74. All were approximate, since not all putts were holed out.

Nelson and Snead, in most books, still are listed cofavorites at 7-1, with Hogan and Little at 8-1. Play will start at 1 p. m. (E. S. T.).

Chicago Teams Break Camp

Los Angeles, Calif., April 2 (AP).—Chicago's crosstown rivals, idle three successive days because of inclement weather, broke camp tonight with Cubs heading for Yuma, Ariz., and the White Sox for El Centro, Calif.

Wet grounds prevented an exhibition today between the two, but they will get together again Saturday at Phoenix, Ariz., and will play a daily set of games all the way home. Meanwhile, the Cubs will take on Pittsburgh in a pair of games and the Sox will play the Philadelphia A's.

The condition of Pitcher Johnny Rigney and Coach Monty Stratton was reported improved. A physician discovered a streptococcus infection in Rigney's throat and pneumonia germs in his lungs. Stratton is bedridden with bronchial flu and a cold.

Seeded Table Tennis Players Advance

New York, April 2 (AP).—Led by Lou Pagliaro, of New York, and Sally Green, of Indianapolis, the defending champions, the 16 seeded entries in the men's and women's divisions of the National Table Tennis Championships won all of their matches as the tournament moved into the fourth round with opening-day program of 101 singles matches.

Pagliaro drew a first-round bye and then eliminated Bob Delery, of Somerville, Mass., 21—6, 21—13, 21—19, and William Ablin, of Chicago, 21—19, 21—14, 21—13.

Postscripts . . .

Orlando, Fla., April 2.—Announcement was made before today's game that First Baseman Jack Sanford had been released to Chattanooga on 24-hour option. . . . The contest for first base on the Nats thus narrows to George Archie and Mickey Vernon, with indications that they both will be retained until the team is forced to reduce to the 25-player limit on May 15. . . . Clark Griffith took Sanford aside last night and cheered him with a long pep-talk. . . . "He may yet be the best first baseman we own," said Griffith of the departing Sanford, who has spent only two seasons in organized ball. . . . It was a long walk back to the bench for young Bill Mallory in the ninth inning today. . . . The North Carolina boy had drawn a walk to get on base for the first time this spring, and was picked off cleanly by Pitcher Al Gearhauser. . . . He drew no censure, only a smile from Manager Bucky Harris. . . . Harry Bassin, the Washington lad who is playing first base for Kansas City, won't stay with the team. . . . He will be sent to another club, perhaps Newark, to make room for Mike Chartak who was sent to Kansas City by the Yankees. . . . The Nats recently claimed Chartak off the waiver lists but did not get the player when the Yankees suddenly discovered that they could farm him out without asking waivers. . . . The 400 fans at today's game saw a rare play in the eighth inning—an unassisted double-play at first base in which the first baseman did not figure. . . . Second Baseman Andy Glossop grabbed George Case's linedrive bunt while going far to his left, and then beat Rick Farrell back to first to complete the double-play. . . . The best hitter on the Washington club, Cecil Travis, hasn't made a hit in the last two games. . . . It was a rare sight to see Sid Hudson, one of the fine fielding pitchers of the league, mess up two bunted balls in the same inning today. . . . Joe Beck is now the lone survivor of the rookie crop of 15 pitchers who were in camp with the Nats at the start of training seven weeks ago. . . . Bucky Harris threatens to keep him with the club despite his meager Class D league experience. . . . He likes Beck's fast ball and, just as important, his courage.—POVICH.

The victory was the second in a row for the Midshipmen who are slated to face Vermont on Friday and Cornell on Saturday. It was Harvard's first loss, their only other game this season being Monday's win over Maryland.

Former Army Coach Goes to P. M. C.

Chester, Pa., April 2 (AP).—Col. Ralph I. Sasse, former football coach at the United States Military Academy, has been appointed director of Athletics and assistant to the Pennsylvania Military College it was announced today.

Col. Frank K. Hyatt, president and commandant of the Chester School, said Sasse would take up his duties April 15, when the cadet corps returns after the Easter furlough.

The 51-year-old former Army mentor recently resigned from active duty after nearly 31 years in the Army.

Washington Lacrossemen Face Teachers

A revamped Washington A. A. lacrosse team will start against Westchester Teachers Saturday on the Potomac Park polo field.

Not wholly pleased by his team's showing in their 5-to-1 triumph over Washington and Lee last week, Coach Joe Deckman plans to shift Bobby Brooks from wing to close attack, moving Doug Hantske or Harry Hamilton into Brooks' old position. Doug is a younger brother of the veteran, Leo Hantske, who was out most of last season with a broken leg, while Hamilton has been playing at wing defense.

Jim Loughran's unexpected return to the city will bolster the weak midfield and Deckman also was impressed by the work of Ed Fletcher and Jack Hoskinson, defensively. None the less praiseworthy was Johnny Munck's goaltending. In better physical condition than last year, Munck again is clearing the ball all the way to the attack and snagging enemy shots like a riveter's apprentice.

Former Cubs Hurler Banished to Minors

Nashville, Tenn., April 1 (AP).—Bill Lee, one-time ace of the Chicago Cubs pitching staff who experienced his worst season of six years in the majors last summer, will be sent to Tulsa of the Texas League, Sports Editor Raymond Johnson, of the Tennessean, wrote in his column tonight.

Johnson, with the Nashville Vols in Baton Rouge, La., near Lee's home in Plaquemine, wrote he had learned General Manager Jim Gallagher, of the Cubs, was to "banish" the big right-hander to the minors because of salary disagreements.

Zivic Signs for Nontitle Bouts in Boston, N. Y.

Pittsburgh, April 2 (AP).—Fritzie Zivic, world's welterweight boxing champion, signed contracts for nontitle fights April 18 in Boston and April 25 in New York before he departed last night for Minneapolis to box Freddie Demorey Friday night in an overweight contest.

Zivic will meet Mike Kaplan in Boston and Tony Martineloo in New York, Matchmaker Nat Rogers

to straighten out one's intestines. Humans really aren't bipeds. A lot of their aches and pains are the result of their unnatural upright gait. By standing on my head I help to readjust my sagging anatomy."

We asked him about food. "We have no particular dietary beliefs," Lou answered. "Just good, sound, wholesome food. We don't have what you might call regular hours for Yoga practices, either. I take the exercises when I want to, sometimes when I'm boxing in the gym. They're practically indistinguishable from regular exercises, though of course they're bound up with the spiritual side of the movement."

We asked Lou if Yoga would help him in the actual fight with Baer. "Well, yes and no," he said. "I'll have a Yoga session with myself just before the match, as I always do, but during the actual fighting there won't be time to think of anything except winning. I've scratched only the surface of the spiritual side of Yoga. I've read comparatively few of the books on the subject, because I'm a fighter and I mustn't clutter up my mind too much. But when I'm through with fighting I'm going into this thing much deeper than I now am. I suppose I could pick up a lot of Yogi acquaintances and learn more than I know now but I'd rather be around with the fight mob and the sports writers."

By practicing hypnotism and self-mortification, disciples of Yoga believe they can attain "miraculous powers and control of nature itself." It remains to be seen whether Yogi Nova can control again that fabulous child of nature, Maxie Baer.

Youths' Place in National Scene Discussed

Youth Plays Major Role Now

Youth training under the national defense program has become doubly important since the English experience has shown that young people can play a strategic part in keeping business functioning in wartime, S. Burns Weston, assistant to the chairman of the NYA National Advisory Committee, said last night.

Weston spoke on the elevated place of youth on the current national scene at a "Youth and Democracy Rally" in Central High School, sponsored by the Baptist Young People's Union, the Methodist Youth Group, the Christian Endeavor organization, the Aleph Zadik Aleph (Junior Order of B'nai B'rith) and the B'nai B'rith Girls' Auxiliary.

"We have just witnessed the birth of a new conception of rugged individualism," he told the 50 young people. "The new variety demonstrates that the best interests of the young individual lies in following the best interests of the group."

Following this theory, young people are bettering themselves by preparing to be of service to their country, he pointed out.

Also featured on the program were a presentation of colors by Boy Scout Troop 32, invocation by the Rev. Edwin Tuller, of Calvary Baptist Church; a "rededication of the Bill of Rights," by Thomas Owen of the Methodist group; selections by the First Baptist Church choir, and talks by Ernest Kipnis and Irving Levitas, of A. Z. A.

Saratoga Season July 28-August 30; Nominees Represent 125 Major Stables

By the Associated Press

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., April 2.—Headed by all of the Nation's turf stars, Saratoga's 17 stakes for flat racers this year have drawn the largest number of entries in history—1,542.

Despite a cut in the number of stakes scheduled for its annual summer meeting, July 28 to August 30, the Saratoga Racing Association announced tonight an increase of 122 entries over 1940, previous all-time high. The horses are from the stables of 125 nominators.

Challedon Entered

One of the outstanding fields of the meeting is in the mile and three quarters Saratoga Cup, one of New York's two weight-for-age distance races. Topping the 55 nominees for the sixty-first renewal of this classic are W. L. Brann's Challedon, Warren Wright's Whirlaway and Charles S. Howard's Mioland.

Other highly regarded turf stars which may start in the cup, an annual getaway day co-feature with the $40,000 hopeful for two-year-olds, are Fenelon, New World, Andy K and Bashful Duck.

Entries Increase

Two other famed Saratoga sakes, the Whitney and the Wilson, have shown a marked increase in the number of nominations. The conditions for both events have been changed from weight-for-age to moderate penalty and allowances. The Wilson drew 73 entries this year, as compared to 50 in 1940, and the Whitney 54 as against 32.

Owners of two-year-olds have taken to the winner-take-all Saratoga Special this year in greater numbers than for the past several seasons. Sven more horses have been named than the 33 originally entered last summer. Entries for the track's 10 steeple chase stakes close in mid-June.

†V. Emanuel-H. T. Johnson entry. ‡H. P. Metcalf-W. F. Hitt entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JOE RAY, $13.90, $6.10, $4.40; FIVE O'EIGHT (entry), $4.00, $2.90; SMART, $5.20.

JOE RAY, in the thick of contention from the start, responded gamely when put to pressure in the early stretch and was kept to a drive to the end while drawing out. FIVE O'EIGHT, off in close quarters, came with a bold rush in the closing test. SMART had keen early speed while saving ground and setting the pace, but weakened right at the close. LONG VOYAGE was off alertly, forced the early pace, but ducked in at the eighth pole while racing greenly and was taken up sharply.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:37. Off at 2:37½. Winner, D. A. Woods' b. or br. g. (8), by Haste—Change. Trained by L. E. Ogle. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:15⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ADOLF, $4.50, $3.20, $2.80; MAJOR B., $7.30, $6.30; MISS MAKER, $6.60.

ADOLF, slow to begin, gained gradually after leaving the backstretch, responded when shaken up and won going away. MAJOR B., off in the first flight, was closest to the pace of HIBLAZE, took command in midstretch, but could not resist the winner. MISS MAKER moved up gamely in the early stretch, but weakened at the close. BURNER was within striking distance from the start and showed an excellent effort. HAPPY HOSTESS bet a good early pace and tired badly.

Daily Double, JOE RAY and ADOLF, Paid $30.70

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,200. For maiden fillies and mares, 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:06. Off at 3:06½. Winner, I. Bieber's b. f. (4), by Peace Chance—Purr. Trained by R. Jacobs. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 1:09.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ETHEL BLUME, $14.40, $5.30, $3.50; HAPPY HOME, $3.30, $2.50; LANTE, $2.90.

ETHEL BLUME, rushed to take command, swung out entering the stretch and came gamely under a strong ride to draw clear in the final stages. HAPPY HOME had good speed, moved up menacingly approaching the stretch, was carried wide by the winner and weakened in the closing eighth. LANTE saved ground while in the first flight and was a tiring third. BUKHARA II closed full of run from a sluggish beginning and appears ready.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:33. Off at 3:34½. Winner, W. A. Coleman's ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—JELWELL, $7.30, $4.10, $2.80; GREENY, $5.50, $3.20; MORSTEP, $3.20.

JELWELL, off alertly and taken under steadying restraint while closest to BERWYN'S pace, rallied when placed to pressure to take command and was kept to a drive to the end. GREENY could not keep up early, responded when shaken up and closed full of run. MORSTEP came with good energy in the closing stages. BERWYN set the pace under hustling tactics and weakened.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:05½. Off at 4:06. Winner, G. Feikner's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RELIOUS, $35.00, $15.60, $8.60; OUR FLORENCE, $4.80, $3.40; ALCINOUS, $4.00.

RELIOUS, off sluggishly and allowed to race on his own courage early, rallied when shaken up, came with good energy and was opening a gap at the close. OUR FLORENCE was within striking distance from the start, responded to pressure in the stretch drive, but could not menace the winner. ALCINOUS had speed in spots while racing forwardly and was weakening at the end. PRIORITY was shuffled back on the backstretch and hung after moving up menacingly.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $5,000 added. The Rowe Memorial Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 4:33½. Off at 4:34½. Winner, V. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OMISSION, $13.50, $6.40, $4.50; CLYDE TOLSON, $4.40, $3.70; CATAPULT, $4.90.

OMISSION, steadied when in close quarters early, moved to the top boldly accompanied by CATAPULT approaching the stretch and drew out nicely to win easily. CLYDE TOLSON broke alertly, was shuffled back to last, rallied gamely to close willingly. CATAPULT came around horses to imrove his position with a rush and weakened badly in the stretch run. GOOD TURN, off slowly while on the inside in the deepest going, moved to the leaders with a rush approaching the far turn, was pinched off and closed gamely.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:01. Off at 5:01½. Winner, A. H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CANDLE ENDS, $15.50, $7.00, $5.60; IDA ROGERS, $4.90, $3.90; INDOMITABLE, $7.90.

CANDLE ENDS forged to the front in the opening quarter, drew clear and was kept to a strong ride to the finish. IDA ROGERS, sluggish early, improved her position on the inside to reach contention and hung in the final drive. INDOMITABLE was well placed to the stretch and tired. SHORT DISTANCE could not keep up after the early stages.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:27. Off at 5:27. Winner, G. C. Brenton's br. f. (4), by Masked Marvel II—Casino. Trained by G. C. Brenton.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ONIBAC, $78.50, $25.70, $17.20; CUCKOO, $5.30, $4.30; SHANSI, $4.40.

ONISAC, allowed to settle into her best stride, improved her position steadily after a half, responded when shaken up and was drawing out at the end. CUCKOO was steadied within striking distance, took command when put to a drive and hung in the final drive. SHANSI was in the thick of forward contention from the start, got to the front and weakened in the closing test. HARRY'S DREAM had good speed and faltered.

Selections at Bowie

Dear Al:

The prospects for a big season in Maryland racing are bright. On last Tuesday's opening program, the crowd of 8,000 wagered a total of $372,738 as compared to $305,349 on seven races last year, when 10,000 customers showed up. This year's opening was staged in the rain while last year the weather was clear. Provided Saturday is a good day, I look for all attendance records for this track to go by the wayside. Henry Erickson, former jockey and now track superintendent at Charles Town, is here with the horses owned by Mrs. Helene W. Boyle, wife of the President of the West Virginia track. Mrs. Boyle's horses were shipped from Oaklawn, where her Harebell was a winner. Apprentice Jockey R. Poteete, who rode Maupeace to victory opening day, is 19 and from Bowling Green, Ky. He rode his first winner last June 20 at Charles Town. Jockey R. Bernhardt is working for the MacThorn Stable. Jockey R. Cardoza got in from Cuba. Jockey Nick Wall, among the first ten riders in the country arrived from a Florida vacation and swung right into action. He won the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap with Bay View. Who ever sent out the publicity on Havre de Grace having minimum purses of $1,200 seems to be all wet. The Graw condition books are out and the $1 600 races are on every program. Bowie is setting the pace with its $1,200 low. William Gillespie, secretary of the Jockey's Guild, left for New York after conferring with Alfred Vanderbilt, of Pimlico, and Maj. Goss L. Stryker, of Laurel. Both men said they would follow Bowie in insurance for jockeys and exercise boys. David (Whitey) Wilson, Baltimore boy who covers racing for the Boston American, received word that his wife has presented him with a son—their fourth child. Alfred Vanderbilt welcomed the newspapermen to Maryland with a dinner at the Belvedere Hotel in Baltimore. Tuesday's rain was needed by Track Superintendent Dick Pending to pack the track and the oval should be at tops for today's program. Jockey Don Meade went back to Florida last night where he has stake engagements. Frank Christmas is going to ship 15 horses to New York after the meeting closes here. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—PONY BALLET has worked well and could be the right one in this field of maiden juveniles. Comes from a good barn and should take care of the opposition. AIRSPRING is from the Pelleteri barn and is by Ariel. Should be right at home if the track is off. GLYNLAND will be saddled by Trainer Guy Bedwell and is highly regarded.

Second race—ISKIE had speed in spots and probably needed that race here on opening day. Promises to improve and I see no reason for mistakes. TENACIOUS has plenty of speed and fits nicely in this company. KING COTTON has shown foot in trials and is dangerous.

Third race—LEONARDTOWN is the best of this gang. Gets only a steadying impost and should get home in this field of maiden Maryland foals. MISS CHEERS is a fair sort and belongs in the money circle. GOLDEN MOWLEE for the show end.

Fourth race—PUNCHDRUNK has been conditioned by Trainer Bonsal and has just about the cheapest opposition that could be gathered hereabouts. Needs only a ride. TRUE WARRIOR and ROUGH EGG probably will fill out the cash bracket.

Fifth race—IRISH MOON should have won by a city block in that last. Needs only to get off the reserve list so he can tie this gang in knots. KAPTIME should go well. ROUGH BRIGADE will be hard to force out of the pay circle in a field of this kind.

Sixth race—INTERLACE ran in spots while in Florida and likes this track. Gets in with a feather assignment and I'm going to string along. TRANSMITTER was bought in by Bedwell for $2,200 at the recent sale and must be considered. CHARLOTTE GIRL for the show end.

Seventh race—GRAND DUKE has worked well since coming North. Likes this route and will be in there knocking. Worth following. DON PECOS probably needed that last and is a threat. MEMORY BOOK has sore pins, but retains some of that old time class.

Eighth race—JACK STING looks like the right one in the day's finale. The distaance and the company seem to be right up his alley. CHIEF CHEROKEE has patched up legs, but will like the track and may surprise. ANTI AIR was long shot second opening day.

Nats Score Over Blues In 9th, 3-2

tion in the seventh inning, when they swung for distance against Randy Gumpert, southpaw, Chapman greeted the fellow with a long three-bagger into the left center hedges, and scored on Travis' long fly. A bit later in the inning, Bloodworth improved on Chapman's clout. He hit a home run over the centerfielder's head to put the Nats in a 2-0 lead.

Kearse Hits Homer

Carrasquel, who took up the pitching in the seventh, gave up a run in the eighth that cut the Nats' lead to 2-1. To be exact, it was a home run that he gave up. Ed Kearse slugged one of his pitches into the deep center bushes.

Harry Bassin, former Georgetown University football and baseball star, tied up the game for Kansas City in the ninth after Carrasquel developed a wild spell. With one out, the Venezuelan walked two batters, and then Bassin lashed a single into center field to score the tying run. Carrasquel escaped further damage in the inning.

Hudson was showing a clever fast ball during his six-inning turn. He struck out five and walked only one. He escaped trouble of his own making in the fifth inning when the Blues filled the bases with one out, but were unable to score.

In that inning, Hudson gave up his only walk, and then dismally misplayed two bunts that left the bases filled. He got out of the inning, however, by grabbing a drive off Kearse's bat, and throwing to the plate to start a double play.

several irons to work on his swing in front of a mirror.

"That's why I feel he should do well here," the Hershey, Pa., star's wife concluded. "When Ben bears down, he does his best playing."

Hogan's was only one of several subpar scores as the boys finished warming up for tomorrow's first 18-hole round. United States Open Champ Lawson Little and Jimmy Demaret, the winner here last year, had 88s, Demaret's round bringing his odds down from 10-1 to 9-1.

Horton Smith, only two-time masters winner, got his putter blazing for a 69, as did Amateur Champion Dick Chapman. And Dick Metz, who was playing his first round, Craig Wood, runner-up twice, had a 70 and a 71, the latter score being matched by Jug McSpaden.

P. G. A. Champion Byron Nelson, who won in 1937, had another par 72. That also was the best individual score returned in the four-ball match in which Tommy Armour and Bobby Jones finished all-square with Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen. The gallery which turned out for this replay of last month's Red Cross benefit match saw Armour get the 72, Jones and Hagen 73's, and Sarazen 74. All were approximate, since not all putts were holed out.

Nelson and Snead, in most books, still are listed cofavorites at 7-1, with Hogan and Little at 8-1. Play will start at 1 p. m. (E. S. T.).

Chicago Teams Break Camp

Los Angeles, Calif., April 2 (AP).—Chicago's crosstown rivals, idle three successive days because of inclement weather, broke camp tonight with Cubs heading for Yuma, Ariz., and the White Sox for El Centro, Calif.

Wet grounds prevented an exhibition today between the two, but they will get together again Saturday at Phoenix, Ariz., and will play a daily set of games all the way come. Meanwhile, the Cubs will take on Pittsburgh in a pair of games and the Sox will play the Philadelphia A's.

The condition of Pitcher Johnny Rigney and Coach Monty Stratton was reported improved. A physician discovered a streptococcus infection in Rigney's throat and pneumonia germs in his lungs. Stratton is bedridden with bronchial flu and a cold.

Seeded Table Tennis Players Advance

New York, April 2 (AP).—Led by Lou Pagliaro, of New York, and Sally Green, of Indianapolis, the defending champions, the 16 seeded entries in the men's and women's divisions of the National Table Tennis Championships won all of their matches as the tournament moved into the fourth round with opening-day program of 101 singles matches.

Pagliaro drew a first-round bye and then eliminated Bob Delery, of Somerville, Mass., 21—6, 21—13, 21—19, and William Ablin, of Chicago, 21—19, 21—14, 21—13.

Postscripts . . .

Orlando, Fla., April 2.—Announcement was made before today's game that First Baseman Jack Sanford had been released to Chattanooga on 24-hour option. . . . The contest for first base on the Nats thus narrows to George Archie and Mickey Vernon, with indications that they both will be retained until the team is forced to reduce to the 25-player limit on May 15. . . . Clark Griffith took Sanford aside last night and cheered him with a long pep-talk. . . . "He may yet be the best first baseman we own," said Griffith of the departing Sanford, who has spent only two seasons in organized ball. . . . It was a long walk back to the bench for young Bill Mallery in the ninth inning today. . . . The North Carolina boy had drawn a walk to get on base for the first time this spring, and was picked off cleanly by Pitcher Al Gearhauser. . . . He drew no censure, only a smile from Manager Bucky Harris. . . . Harry Bassin, the Washington lad who is playing first base for Kansas City, won't stay with the team. . . . He will be sent to another club, perhaps Newark, to make room for Mike Chartak who was sent to Kansas City by the Yankees. . . . The Nats recently claimed Chartak off the waiver lists but did not get the player when the Yankees suddenly discovered that they could farm him out without asking waivers. . . . The 400 fans at today's game saw a rare play in the eighth inning—an unassisted double-play at first base in which the first baseman did not figure. . . . Second Baseman Andy Glossop grabbed George Case's linedrive bunt while going far to his left, and then beat Rick Farrell back to first to complete the double-play. . . . The best hitter on the Washington club, Cecil Travis, hasn't made a hit in the last two games. . . . It was a rare sight to see Sid Hudson, one of the fine fielding pitchers of the league, mess up two bunted balls in the same inning today. . . . Joe Beck is now the lone survivor of the rookie crop of 15 pitchers who were in camp with the Nats at the start of training seven weeks ago. . . . Bucky Harris threatens to keep him with the club despite his meager Class D league experience. . . . He likes Beck's fast ball and, just as important, his courage.—POVICH.

The victory was the second in a row for the Midshipmen who are slated to face Vermont on Friday and Cornell on Saturday. It was Harvard's first loss, their only other game this season being Monday's win over Maryland.

Former Army Coach Goes to P. M. C.

Chester, Pa., April 2 (AP).—Col. Ralph I. Sasse, former football coach at the United States Military Academy, has been appointed director of Athletics and assistant to the Pennsylvania Military College it was announced today.

Col. Frank K. Hyatt, president and commandant of the Chester School, said Sasse would take up his duties April 15, when the cadet corps returns after the Easter furlough.

Washington Lacrossemen Face Teachers

A revamped Washington A. A. lacrosse team will start against Westchester Teachers Saturday on the Potomac Park polo field.

Not wholly pleased by his team's showing in their 5-to-1 triumph over Washington and Lee last week, Coach Joe Deckman plans to shift Bobby Brooks from wing to close attack, moving Doug Hantske or Harry Hamilton into Brooks' old position. Doug is a younger brother of the veteran, Leo Hantske, who was out most of last season with a broken leg, while Hamilton has been playing at wing defense.

Jim Loughran's unexpected return to the city will bolster the weak midfield and Deckman also was impressed by the work of Ed Fletcher and Jack Hoskinson, defensively. None the less praiseworthy was Johnny Munck's goaltending. In better physical condition than last year, Munck again is clearing the ball all the way to the attack and snagging enemy shots like a riveter's apprentice.

Former Cubs Hurler Banished to Minors

Nashville, Tenn., April 1 (AP).—Bill Lee, one-time ace of the Chicago Cubs pitching staff who experienced his worst season of six years in the majors last summer, will be sent to Tulsa of the Texas League, Sports Editor Raymond Johnson, of the Tennessean, wrote in his column tonight.

Johnson, with the Nashville Vols in Baton Rouge, La., near Lee's home in Plaquemine, wrote he had learned General Manager Jim Gallagher, of the Cubs, was to "banish" the big right-hander to the minors because of salary disagreements.

Zivic Signs for Nontitle Bouts in Boston, N. Y.

Pittsburgh, April 2 (AP).—Fritzie Zivic, world's welterweight boxing champion, signed contracts for nontitle fights April 18 in Boston and April 25 in New York before he departed last night for Minneapolis to box Freddie Demorey Friday night in an overweight contest.

Zivic will meet Mike Kaplan in Boston and Tony Martineloo in New York, Matchmaker Nat Rogers

to straighten out one's intestines. Humans really aren't bipeds. A lot of their aches and pains are the result of their unnatural upright gait. By standing on my head I help to readjust my sagging anatomy."

We asked him about food. "We have no particular dietary beliefs," Lou answered. "Just good, sound, wholesome food. We don't have what you might call regular hours for Yoga practices, either. I take the exercises when I want to, sometimes when I'm boxing in the gym. They're practically indistinguishable from regular exercises, though of course they're bound up with the spiritual side of the movement."

We asked Lou if Yoga would help him in the actual fight with Baer. "Well, yes and no," he said. "I'll have a Yoga session with myself just before the match, as I always do, but during the actual fighting there won't be time to think of anything except winning. I've scratched only the surface of the spiritual side of Yoga. I've read comparatively few of the books on the subject, because I'm a fighter and I mustn't clutter up my mind too much. But when I'm through with fighting I'm going into this thing much deeper than I now am. I suppose I could pick up a lot of Yogi acquaintances and learn more than I know now but I'd rather be around with the fight mob and the sports writers."

By practicing hypnotism and self-mortification, disciples of Yoga believe they can attain "miraculous powers and control of nature itself." It remains to be seen whether Yogi Nova can control again that fabulous child of nature, Maxie Baer.

Youths' Place in National Scene Discussed

DEMOCRACY RALLY—S. Burns Weston (right), assistant to the chairman of the N. Y. A. Youth Plays Major Role Now

Youth training under the national defense program has become doubly important since the English experience has shown that young people can play a strategic part in keeping business functioning in wartime, S. Burns Weston, assistant to the chairman of the NYA National Advisory Committee, said last night.

Weston spoke on the elevated place of youth on the current national scene at a "Youth and Democracy Rally" in Central High School, sponsored by the Baptist Young People's Union, the Methodist Youth Group, the Christian Endeavor organization, the Aleph Zadik Aleph (Junior Order of B'nai B'rith) and the B'nai B'rith Girls' Auxiliary.

"We have just witnessed the birth of a new conception of rugged individualism," he told the 50 young people. "The new variety demonstrates that the best interests of the young individual lies in following the best interests of the group."

Following this theory, young people are bettering themselves by preparing to be of service to their country, he pointed out.

Also featured on the program were a presentation of colors by Boy Scout Troop 32, invocation by the Rev. Edwin Tuller, of Calvary Baptist Church; a "rededication of the Bill of Rights," by Thomas Owen of the Methodist group; selections by the First Baptist Church choir, and talks by Ernest Kipnis and Irving Levitas, of A. Z. A.

DOCTORS stress remaining in bed until the body temperature is normal. Sound advice.

You know how weak you feel after a cold. Colds play havoc in weakening the body. The story is well told in the blood picture. It is important to build back body strength right away to carry the load of work, worries, and loss of sleep. A weakened body may be more susceptible to relapse or long drawn out recovery.

So reason sensibly and take the choice of millions by immediately starting on a course of S.S.S. Tonic—taken three times a day immediately before meals. In the absence of a focal infection or organic disease, you should note improvement in the way you feel and look within the first 10 days. The confidence of millions over many years is the best testimonial of this product.

An experience with S.S.S Tonic will cause you to say to your friends, S.S.S. made me "feel and look like myself again."

Mail Receipts Here Set New Top in March

Washington postal receipts in March totaled $759,105, a new record for the month and 8.7 per cent heavier than the same month last year.

In the first three months this year mail revenues aggregated $2,192,332 compared with $1,997,443 in the corresponding period of 1940, according to City Postoffice figures. This was the largest total for the first quarter ever recorded here. All-time high records were also registered for January and February business.

C. & P. Promotes Griffin

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co of Washington announced yesterday the election of Lloyd M. Griffin as vice president. He also 12345612345612345 has been elected vice president of C. & P. companies in Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia.

MR. GRIFFIN

August B. Haneke will succeed Mr. Griffin as vice president and general manager of the West Virginia company.

In his new position Mr. Griffin, whose offices will be both in Washington and Baltimore, will head customer relations and personal activities for the four companies.

H. Randolph Maddox, assistant general manager of the Maryland company, succeeds Mr. Haneke as vice president and general manager of the West Virginia company. Mr. Maddox started his telephone career in Washington as a student engineer.

Bankers' Group Named

President A. M. McLachlen, of the D. C. Bankers Association, announced yesterday the appointment of the following entertainment committee in connection with the 1941 convention of the association which is to be held at the Homestead, Hot Springs, Va., June 5 to 8.

Willard G. Barker, chairman; Richard A. Norris, vice chairman; Ralph Endicott, W. R. Forster, J. Fontaine Hall, William G. Mehler, jr., Garrett A. Pendleton, Frank M. Perley, J. B. Skinner and Horace F. Stokes.

Inflation Peril Noted

The suggestion that estimates of the future demand for labor and materials must be revised upward was advanced yesterday by the National City Bank of New York in its monthly summary of economic conditions.

"Despite accumulated stocks, the productive resources of this country and the reserve supply of labor," said the summary, "the developments of the last two months give notice of the inflationary danger.

"The rush to buy had not abated in March but the contrary. The shipping situation has tightened and ocean freight rates have risen further.

"The rise of wage rates is more pronounced, with increases general through the textile and apparel trades, fairly widespread in other industries, and under negotiation in coal and steel."

N. A. S. D. Submits Plan

The National Association of Securities Dealers announced yesterday a uniform practice code designed to facilitate over the counter trading in all parts of the country was being submitted to its membership.

The code covers such matters as trade terms, deliveries, payments, dividends, rights, interest, reclamations, exchange of confirmations, stamp taxes and claims.

If approved by the N. A. S. D. membership and by the Securities and Exchange Commission, the code would be put into effect by the association's board of governors.

Corporate Reports

Tide Water Associated Oil

Tide Water Associated Oil Co. and subsidiaries reported for 1940 net profit of $9,519,083, equal to $1.14 a share on its common stock. This compared with $8,958,971, or $1.05 a share, in 1939. The company spent $22,627,159 on additions to property and equipment during the year. The largest item was $11,717,382 for prospecting, developing and acquiring additional crude producing acreage and facilities.

Miami Copper Co.

Miami Copper Co., Arizona producer, reported 1940 net profit of $526,409, equal to 70 cents a share on the capital stock, compared with $768,936, or $1.03 a share, in 1939.

Barnsdall Oil Co.

Barnsdall Oil Co. reported net profit in 1940 amounted to $2,193,471, equal to 97 cents a share on its capital stock, compared with $1,720,292, or 76 cents a share, in 1939.

Egg Futures Set Four-Year Highs On Chicago Mart

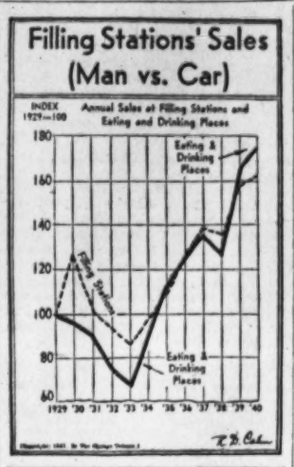
Chicago, April 2 (AP).—Prices on the local wholesale egg market, now at highest levels for this time of year since 1937, were unchanged to ½ cent higher today while futures soared spectacularly to new three and four year peaks on the Chicago mercantile exchange.

Despite heavy arrivals in the wholesale market, prices held firm. Traders said action of the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation in buying 372,510 dozens of eggs privately Tuesday acted as a supporting influence upon the market.

Trading in futures on the mercantile exchange was the most active for any April day in the 21-year history of the exchange, officials reported. October refrigerator standards closed at 24.65 cents a dozen.

Beginning in mid-February, wholesale egg prices have registered steady advances. Quotations currently are the highest since early January. Normally egg prices are declining at this times of year as April is the peak production month.

First graded firsts were quoted at 21 to 21¼ cents a dozen in the wholesale market today. One year ago this grade of eggs was selling at a little more than 16 cents a dozen. In 1937 first graded first sold at 23 cents a dozen at this time of year.



Lone Investor Again Loses 'Reform' Fight

Jersey City, April 2 (AP).—For the second year in a row, Lewis D. Gilbert, the New York lawyer who haunts corporation annual meetings, today lost his battle to make George Washington Hill, president of the American Tobacco Co., attend his concern's annual stockholders' gathering.

Gilbert moved that the meeting be adjourned, but was votoed down by 2,272,252 shares against 2,648.

Paul M. Hahn, vice president of the company, who acted as chairman, said:

"Mr. Hill is in his office today attending to the company's business."

Gilbert said next year he would move for a change in the by-laws to make the president be present at the annual meetings.

Gilbert for the past two years has attacked the amount of Hill's salary and "incentive compensation," which in 1940 amounted to $456,000.

Gilbert also moved that a new basis be worked out for the compensation of the company's officers which would decrease their income. While a teller vote was incomplete, test votes of Gilbert's strength indicated the proposals would be rejected.

Directors were reelected by an overwhelming majority in the face of opposition by Gilbert.

"We are not demanding," Gilbert said, "that the officials of this company be underpaid. We are demanding a ceiling on these absurd salaries of $500,000 and $600,000. They are without rhyme or reason."

Hahn maintained that the sales record of the company was the best argument in favor of the incentive compensation plan. He said:

"The favorable trend of last year, when sales were up $23,000,000, has continued through the first quarter of this year and is continuing now."

Gotham Banks' Deposits Spurt In First Period

By the Associated Press

New York, April 2.—The quarterly condition statements of the Chase National Bank and Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, the first and third largest of the Nation's commercial banks, disclosed today a rise in deposits to the highest levels on record.

The increases represented continuation of an upward trend under way intermittently for nearly a decade.

Competition for Federal issues, for instance, helped boost prices to around the highest prices in Government history.

The Chase bank reported deposits as of March 31 of $3,617,530,000, compared with $3,543,338,000 on December 31 and $3,060,769,000 on March 30 last year. Total resources increased to $3,890,245,000 from $3,824,403,000 on December 31. Investments in United States Government securities rose to $1,252,185,000 from $1,098,108,000 and loans and discounts to $690,342,000 from $664,189,000.

Buying Wave Sweeps Wheat 3 Cents Higher

By the Associated Press

Chicago, April 2.—A fresh gust of buying power that spread broadly in the final hour today swept wheat prices up more than 3 cents a bushel, establishing new high prices for the last ten months.

Buying of previous short sellers accelerated the brisk upturn. Trade attention was focused primarily on crop reports revealing extent of winter wheat abandonment in some localities and on Congressional action on pending farm aid legislation expected to affect grain values.

Broadening of interest in other commodities, the tense European situation and implications of the national rearmament program were additional factors.

Wheat gains from early lows reached 3½ cents and, while final figures were slightly below the highs, the close was 2⅜@2⅞ higher than yesterday; May, 92¼@92; July, 91⅜@91½.

Corn closed ¾@1⅛ higher; oats, ¾@1 up; soybeans, 2½@2⅞ advanced; rye, ⅛ off to 1¼ higher, and lard, 20@23 higher.

April surveys of Chicago crop experts suggested a winter wheat crop of 616,000,000 bushels, largest since 1938 and 27,000,000 more than last year, is in the making but disclosed substantial acreage abandonment in major producing States like Missouri and Nebraska. Due largely to the Armistice Day freeze, abandonment in Missouri was estimated at 33 per cent and in Nebraska at 40 per cent.

'Infation' Spirit of Commodity Marts Inspires Late Rally in Security Prices

New York, April 2.—The stock market swung into step with a late rally in grains and cotton today after a minor setback in the forenoon. Mail order, rubber, oil, motor and miscellaneous shares showed a touch of the "inflationary" spirit exhibited in commodity markets.

Most stocks recovered all or the greater part of the earlier declines and small gains outnumbered losses at the finish. The Associated Press composite price of 60 stocks was up .1 of a point at 41.7, the third consecutive advance of that size.

The rebound in commodities lifted Chicago wheat for net gains of 2⅝ to 2⅞ cents a bushel and corn ¾ to 1⅛. Cotton futures closed 30 cents to $1 a bale improved.

Steels and motors, shadowed by strike troubles and threats of more wage disputes, led the way down in the forenoon selling out recovered with other groups in the final hour. U. S. Steel emerged ⅜ higher.

Rails likewise mostly made up earlier losses to show fractional increases at the last. These included Santa Fe, New York Central, Southern Railway and Great Northern preferred.

While the soft coal tieup was expected to interrupt the upward trend in loadings, the main business tide was assumed in brokerage quarters to be moving favorably for the carriers.

Secondary rail bonds, recently of outstanding strength in security lists, stiffened with stocks in the afternoon comeback but did not fully erase earlier losses.

Prolongation of the Allis-Chalmers dispute brought more selling into the stock, which dropped to a 1941 low around 28, off 1⅛. American Telephone was down only a shade in face of the Federal Communications Commission move for investigation of Bell System long-distance rates.

Among senior shares, top 1941 prices were recorded in Continental Baking A, American Car & Foundry preferred and Chicago Great Western preferred. The Car & Foundry issue jumped 2¾ to 68¼.

The tremendous defense spending in sight for coming months, shipping shortages and possibility higher loan rates might be fixed under the United States farm control problem stirred "inflation" talk in the financial district.

How long stocks could resist a rising commodity trend was a subject of discussion among market analysts. Brokers said one check on demand for stocks was the possibility Washington might extend controls over supplies and fix wider price "ceilings."

Dealings increased on the rally, making the day's turnover 445,510 shares against 433,730 yesterday.

Aluminum Co. of America rose 3½ in the curb list to 140. Electric Bond & Share preferred stocks were up 2 or more and Alabama Great Southern Railroad climbed 5¼. Most curb stocks showed only minor changes up and down. Dealings increased to 93,000 shares from 83,000 yesterday.

Jobless Total Cut 317,000 In February

By the Associated Press

New York, April 2.—The National Industrial Conference Board today reported that unemployment in February reversed the usual trend by dropping 317,000 to a total of 7,039,000.

Even more spectacular, said the board, a private research organization, was the comparison with a year ago which showed that in 12 months 2,318,000 unemployed had been given jobs, mostly in industry.

The board forecast even larger decreases in the jobless than in February as spring and summer activity in farming and construction combined with the defense program in employing workers.

"Expansion in the defense industries and in the armed forces," the board added, "accounted in large part for the increase of 364,000 in the number of persons employed in February. Manufacturing added 198,000 workers to its pay rolls and the service industries 227,000, of which 187,000 represented additions to the armed forces.

"Construction employed 129,000 fewer workers in February than in January, a smaller decline than usual. There were also less-than-seasonal declines of 29,000 in trade, distribution and finance and 21,000 in transportation.

Agriculture's gain of 87,000 workers was also less

Beginning tonight you're going to hear the Nation's oldest quiz program at a new time over CBS and WJSV.

That would be Professor Quiz's perennial battle of wits which from now on will be heard from 10:15 to 10:45 p. m. on Thursdays instead of on Tuesdays, as heretofore.

The only thing that changes about the program, however, is the time. As usual there'll be five contestants answering, or trying to answer, the encyclopedic questions put to them by the quizzical professor and the prizes will remain the same—25 silver dollars for the contender getting the highest score in answering the questions, and 15 silver dollars for the runner-up.

Bob Trout, that successful WJSV alumnus, will continue as the master of ceremonies of the informational show.

And, at about this point, we think it's high time to report again that the Professor Quiz program, now well over four years old and never without a sponsor, originated in Washington at WJSV. It was the idea of John Heiney, now WJSV's sales promotion manager, who tossed it off one day, just like that.

In its long network history it has seen contestants from all over the country win something like $65,000. Virtually two million questions have been asked and answered variously. More than 2,000 persons have been contestants.

There must be something to the show.

The Post Radio Highlights

1 P. M., WINX—"The Automobile Industry," being a phrase very much in the news, the third of the Library of Congress-WINX series on Books in the News, concerns information on the subject available in the District libraries.

3:35, WINX—"Income Tax Versus the Sales Tax" titles a talk by Herbert Wood, of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, on the series, Important to Women.

9, WMAL—Representative James E. Van Zandt (Republican), of Pennsylvania, discusses "The St. Lawrence Seaway."

9:35, WMAL—"Should Our Ships Convoy Arms to Great Britain?" Senator C. Wayland Brooks (Republican), Illinois, and Ernest W. Gibson, jr., chairman of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, are the principal speakers on the question of the week before America's Town Meeting of the Air.

10, WRC—Joe E. Brown boasts to John Barrymore and Rudy Vallee of his baseball prowess.

10:15, WJSV—Prof. Quiz switches to a new time schedule: Thursdays from 10:15 to 10:45.

10:45, WRC—William Green, president of the A. F. of L., discusses "Labor and the Registration for Defense."

10:45, WJSV—"The Country Needs a Strong Opposition Party" titles a talk by Representative Joseph E. Martin (Republican), of Massachusetts.

Contract Bridge

Dr. R. H. Ecker, jr., a former title-holder of the masters' individual, displayed skill in his playing of today's hand, which he met with partner Jack Cushing at the national pair championship. Faulty defense combined with an end-play to allow the doctor to win two extra tricks at his part-score contract of one no-trump.

Today's Hand

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ◇
Pass	1 ♡	Pass	1 NT
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: ♠ 4.

East led his fourth-best spade: West won the ace and returned the suit, North taking his king. The ace, king and a low diamond put East in again with the diamond queen and a third round of spades went to North's queen. Declarer played the jack and his last low diamond, making discarding difficult for West, who stripped down to the singleton king of clubs to hold protection in hearts. Dr. Ecker led the heart queen; East covered with the king and dummy's ace won. A low heart lead went to the jack and now declarer cleverly exited with a club. East unwisely played the queen and West, forced to take with his singleton king, had to play from his heart tenace, cashing the ten and leading a heart to dummy's nine.

Dr. Ecker made two extra tricks at one no-trump, losing one trick in each suit. A club opening or shift would hold the hand to one-odd.

Ten Women To Serve On Grand Jury

EDWARDS

Veteran bailiffs at Judiciary Square said they could not recall a time when there were so many women among the 23 members of the grand jury.

The ten housewives between now and June 30 will hear the inside dope on about 700 real life detective stories. Before them, Assistant District Attorney Evan T. Davis will present some 2,000 witnesses who will testify in matters ranging from murder and espionage to larceny and assault.

Other grand jurors are Mrs. Dorothy E. Chappelear, 32, housewife, 1486 Meridian Place Northwest; Vernon E. Chappell, 50, billiard parlor proprietor, 4913 Forty-third Street Northwest; Benjamin F. Ennis, 36, 1476 Newton Place Northwest, collector; Mrs Carrie D. Grill, 53, housewife, 1337 Montague Street Northwest; Mrs. Alvena Hughes, 53, 3802 Veazey Street Northwest, housewife.

Also Mrs. Henrietta Helen Jacobs, 35, 1342 Ridge Place Southeast, housewife; Morris Benjamin Kershenbaum, 49, 1522 Ogden Street Northwest, beverage retailer; Charles E. Langley, 54, 4809 Eighth Street Northwest, realty salesman; Mrs. Ida Jones Madden, 44, 3900 Fourteenth Street Northwest, housewife; Mrs. Edith Council Macauley, 24, 2138 California Street Northwest, housewife.

Also Mrs. Teresa W. McCabe, 38, 6124 Thirty-third Street Northwest, housewife; Mrs. Sarah Lillian Porter, 52, 4320 Forty-sixth Street Northwest, housewife; Fritz Robert Sauber, 48, 1125 Allison Street Northwest, bookkeeper; Wilfred A. Simpson, 43, 1706 Upshur Street Northwest, dairyman; Harry A. Waters, 51, salesman, 1211 Kennedy Street Northwest.

Also Howard Fennacom Baxter, 35, 207 Oneida Place Northeast, Government auditor; Roy Hoffman Burtner, 50, 1904 Irving Street Northeast, postal clerk; Reuben Hammond, 48, 3231½ T Street Northwest, skilled helper, Government; Roland H. Parker, 26, 1820 Ingleside Terrace Northwest, Government clerk, and John Edward Quander, 51, 1913 Seventeenth Street Northwest, Government laborer.

Army Chaplains Open Conference

Led by Chief of Chaplains William R. Arnold, Army chaplains opened a two-day conference yesterday at the Munitions and Railroad Retirement Buildings.

The chaplains, who are meeting in closed sessions, will announce their findings at the end of the parley today.

At the opening session, Chaplain Arnold outlined its objectives. Later the delegates discussed allotments of chaplains to organizations and installations; responsibilities and duties of corps area chaplains and chaplains of higher tactical units, and other matters.

The 'Perfect Secretary'

More than spelling was required to be the "Perfect Secretary" selected by the University of Missouri Business and Public Administration school students at their annual "Commerce Day" celebration. Looks counted, too, as witness Grace Stemme, of St. Louis, the winner. She is holding Jim Durham, of Okeene, Okla., chosen the "Ideal Boss"

Boy Hurt When Piano Falls on Him

Six-year-old Franklin Barbour was in serious condition at Casualty Hospital, victim of a freak accident in the backyard of his home—a piano fell on him.

Son of Charles E. Barbour, a gas company employe, the boy was playing behind his home, 468 H Street Southwest, while his father was demolishing an old piano for kindling wood.

The piano was knocked off balance, police said, and toppled over on the child, pinning him underneath. The boy was taken to Casualty Hospital, where doctors said he suffered head injuries. His condition was described as serious.

Franklin is the brother of Charles Barbour, local newspaper sports writer.

Gen. Hartman Gets Camp Lee Assignment

The Army yesterday assigned Brig. Gen. Charles D. Hartman, assistant quartermaster general, to command the new Quartermaster Replacement Center at Camp Lee, Va.

Gen. Hartman, who as chief of the construction division of the quartermaster general's office last fall, inaugurated the huge Army cantonment building program, has been ill for the last few months.

FCC to Investigate Long Distance Telephone Rates

The Federal Communications Commission ordered yesterday an investigation of long-distance telephone rates of the vast Bell System.

The commission directed the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and 21 associated companies to show why its long-distance rates should not be reduced.

The order will be served on each State Governor and all State public utility commissions in addition to the companies directly concerned.

Simultaneously, the FCC dismissed an inquiry of similar nature ordered by its former telephone division in September, 1936.

The commission called attention in a statement on today's action to the fact that A. T. & T. had increased its net income from $20,160,763 in 1938 to $27,217,438 for the 12 months ended last January 31.

The commission said that the company's reports showed net operating income of 8.89 per cent for the 12 months ended January 31 on its average net investment in its telephone plant, compared with 6.39 per cent in 1938, and 8.19 per cent in 1939.

Plenty of Parking Space Here...Even for the Baby!

True this isn't a picture of our official Parking Building, but for Baby Prusik, the "Bac-Saver" laundry basket she placed him in, was as comfortable as his Mother's arms. As for Mother Prusik, it certainly proved a boon to her, as she busied herself on our Housefurnishings Floor. Meanwhile enraptured salespeople and customers "ooh-ed and aah-ed" and Baby Prusik gurgled with delight . . . the center of all attraction.

Just a little incident, but it proves that our customers feel at home with us . . . that they're never inhibited. And our salespeople, equally so. It's the sort of thing that happens daily in The Store of Nationally Known Merchandise . . . the store that Washingtonians know well . . . that newcomers to Washington will enjoy shopping in.
